HERO OF BOER WAR

Kitchener Tendered an Ovation on His Home-Coming.

RECEPTION AT SOUTHAMPTON

London Streets Lined With Cheering Sightseers—Officially Welcomed Home by the Prince of Wales.

Lord Kitchener, fresh from his victory in South Africa, arrived at Southampton yesterday morning and reached London soon after noon. His entry into the metropolis was an ovation. The procession from Paddington Station to St. James' Palace drove through a mass of cheering humanity. At the railway station he was served, and the General was toasted by the Prince of Wales. Later he went to Buckingham Palace and paid his respects to King Edward and Queen Alexandra.

SOUTHAMPTON, July 12.—The Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamer Orotava, which left Cape Town June 23, with Lord Kitchener and staff on board, arrived here at 5:30 o'clock this morning. Owing to the fact that Major Gordon, who also was a passenger on the steamer, had been stricken with smallpox, Lord Kitchener and his staff only were allowed to land. The Orotava has been placed in quarantine.

Lord Kitchener landed at 9:15 A. M. He was accorded a magnificent welcome from a huge throng. After a brief official reception at the docks the general was driven through the decorated and crowded streets to Hartley Hall, where he received an address from the Chamber of Commerce, expressing admiration of the generalship, resource and skill which he had shown in South Africa and hoping that the peace which he had secured would be lasting and mark the beginning of a new epoch of prosperity and commercial development throughout the Empire.

In reply Lord Kitchener declared that whatever success had been achieved was due to the rank and file of the army. He thanked those who had looked after the friends and relatives of those left behind in South Africa. In response to clamorous calls, General French and General Ian Hamilton also spoke, the former remarking that they had throughout been inspired by the example of their chief. The freedom of the borough was conferred on Lord Kitchener and the party was then obliged to hurry away in order to meet their London engagements. The progress of Lord Kitchener and his companions to the railroad station was marked by scenes of remarkable enthusiasm.

WELCOMED AT LONDON.

Enthusiastic Greeting to the Popular Hero. LONDON, July 12.—Lord Kitchener reached London at 12:45 P. M., and his reception in the metropolis was one of the most remarkable of the many of the past few days. The carriages carrying the general and his staff in their spectacular features, but evidently the crowd was there in its tens of thousands to see the man of the hour and not a pageant. From the moment he set foot in London to the time of his disappearance beneath the portal of St. James' Palace, Kitchener received such an outburst of popular enthusiasm as quite overshadowed the demonstrations on previous and similar occasions.

The platform at Paddington Railroad station, when Kitchener arrived, looked more like a reception-room of the War Office or London than a railroad station. It was covered with red carpets and decorated with a profusion of flowers and palms, while rows of decorated stands, crowded with spectators, had been erected at intervals from which a view of the returning general could be obtained. The platform itself was crowded with distinguished personages, including Indian Princes in resplendent costume, Generals and other officers in full uniform, and many ladies in Summer dresses. The Prince of Wales, Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Cambridge, Lord Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief; Lord Lansdowne, the Foreign Secretary; Lord Curzon, the War Secretary; the Duchess of Somerset, Lady Roberts, Lady French, Major-General Sir Francis R. Wainate, who succeeded Kitchener as Sirdar of the Egyptian army, and personally expressed his warmest congratulations on the successful manner in which he had terminated the long and arduous campaign. His royal highness also expressed confidence that the sovereign's sentiments in this matter were shared by the empire, which had watched with admiration the general's leniency, skill and patience, qualities in which his armies had followed his example.

Kitchener made a brief reply, which exhausted the toast list, and soon after 3 o'clock the general proceeded to Buckingham Palace to see the King and Queen. Lord Kitchener was speedily conducted to the King's sick chamber, and His Majesty, from his couch, extended a warm welcome to the general, and personally expressed his thanks for the termination of the hostilities. The King then presented to Kitchener the decoration of the new order of merit. The general then saw the Queen, after which he drove to Lord Roberts' residence in Portland Place. Kitchener will visit Mr. Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, Monday.

Even the renewed anticipation caused by the announcement that the coronation of King Edward will occur in August fails to detract from the nation's absorbing interest in his idol and its puzzle. Columns of alleged anecdotes concerning the general, and voluminous descriptions of his life, and especially of his recent campaign in South Africa, monopolize the newspapers. The coronation arches which have come near the entrance of the harbor and then passed on to the north. The American steam yacht Wacousta, with J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railway, and his party, was coming into the harbor at the time, and it is said will be obliged to haul out of the serpent's way.

Character of the New Viscount. A striking description of the new Viscount, doubtless founded on intimate knowledge of the general, appears in the London Times today. It concludes a three-column review by its special war correspondent of Kitchener's work in South Africa. "For some reason," says the correspondent, "after the Soudan campaign, Kitchener was represented as a cold, exacting man, hard and unbending in his dealings with other men—a truly roofs were packed with gaily dressed spectators, who waved flags, hats and handkerchiefs, and shouted with a warlike shout that showed their hearts were in the welcome. At Victoria Gate the Mayor of Westminster presented an address to the national hero, expressing his admiration of his tenacious genius, indomitable energy and devotion to duty, and Kitchener, with the gravity habitual to him, uttered 10 words of thanks and returned the Mayor's address. The vast stands on Constitution Hill were crowded with people belonging to the highest classes of society, and Kitchener's well-known antipathy to "drawing-room talk" immediately became apparent. Whereas he had been all smiles to the man-in-the-street, his features here became immobile, and he contented himself with a cold military salute until he again reached the open ground in front of Buckingham Palace, where the popular ovation was repeated.

Shortly before the arrival of the procession at Buckingham Palace, Queen Alexandra and the Princesses appeared on a balcony and remained there until the victor of South Africa had passed in his triumphal journey to St. James' Palace, which he entered amid a final hurricane of cheers. Luncheon at St. James'. Kitchener and the Generals who accompanied him were entertained at luncheon in the great banquet hall, where covers were laid for 30 persons. The Prince of Wales occupied the central seat, with Kitchener on his right, and with Lord Roberts opposite. Among the guests were the Premier, Lord Salisbury, Lord Lansdowne, Mr. Bredrick and Lord Raglan, the Under-Secretary of War. The hall was hung with pictures representing war scenes.

The luncheon occupied an hour and a half. The Prince of Wales toasts King Edward, and then proposed a toast to Kitchener. The Prince expressed the pleasure which it gave him to extend to the general, in behalf of the King, the heartiest congratulations on the successful manner in which he had terminated the long and arduous campaign. His royal highness also expressed confidence that the sovereign's sentiments in this matter were shared by the empire, which had watched with admiration the general's leniency, skill and patience, qualities in which his armies had followed his example. Kitchener made a brief reply, which exhausted the toast list, and soon after 3 o'clock the general proceeded to Buckingham Palace to see the King and Queen. Sea Serpent Sighted Again. NEW YORK, July 12.—Again the sea serpent has been sighted. According to a World dispatch from Halifax, it measured 200 feet in length, and was observed by pilots of Cranberry Head. It is alleged to have come near the entrance of the harbor and then passed on to the north. The American steam yacht Wacousta, with J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railway, and his party, was coming into the harbor at the time, and it is said will be obliged to haul out of the serpent's way.

PLAN TO FINANCE CANAL

NEW YORKER LAYS HIS SCHEME BEFORE THE PRESIDENT.

Proposes a Bond Issue Under What Is Known as the Colonial System. OYSTER BAY, July 12.—President Roosevelt has received a communication from James Madison Lively, of New York, proposing a plan to finance the proposed Isthmian canal. Mr. Lively suggests that his proposition "will bear inspection and test to the last analysis."

Mr. Lively details the steps necessary to be taken prior to the actual beginning of the Isthmian canal project, and then proposes to place in a designated depository of the United States Government a majority of the capital stock of the Canal Construction Company, together with a deed of trust for 100 years, approved by the Attorney-General of the United States. This deed and the majority, carrying control of the company's stock, would be the basis of the bond issue. Provided the company's stock should be $500,000,000, its directors would resolve to make $200,000,000 of it preferred stock and guarantee to pay annually a dividend of interest of 2 1/2 per cent payable semi-annually on the preferred stock for 100 years into the treasury or depository.

"The company could then issue bonds for $100,000,000, under the form of what is termed by financiers the colonial system, bearing 3 per cent interest payable semi-annually at the United States Treasury. The funds would provide a sinking fund of 1 per cent of the issue to be deducted annually for the redemption of the bonds at stated periods at the option of the holders to the amount only of money for such redemption in the treasury. To secure the bonds the company would deliver to the United States Treasurer the $300,000,000 of preferred stock.

"In the distribution of the money received in the Isthmian canal financial problem, it will be observed that in the present $300,000,000 of the preferred stock, bearing 2 1/2 per cent, dividend payable semi-annually, is paid into the depository designated by the United States Government. The bond issue is to be $150,000,000, which bears an annual interest of 3 per cent payable semi-annually, and 1 per cent as the annual sinking fund based on the face of the bond issue for 100 years. There is still 1 per cent based on the bond issue, that is retained by the National Treasury to be disbursed by the United States commission appointed by the President. This fund can be expended by the commissioners paying the salaries of the commissioners, maintaining and keeping the Government forts that may be required to protect its trustworthiness, and also to pay the tonnage of the Government vessels through the Isthmian canal. The entire tonnage that will seek passage through this canal from all the nations of the world, as well as the ships of citizens of the United States, will thus be required to pay a fixed rate per tonnage for shipping of all kinds and thereby a rule uniform to all nations be adopted."

At his leisure the President may examine Mr. Lively's proposition, but it is not at all certain that he will follow the suggestions embodied in it.

Bishop Potter to Marry. NEW YORK, July 12.—The engagement is announced of the Right Rev. Henry C. Potter, D. D., Bishop of New York, to Mrs. Alfred Corbin, appointed by the President and of Cooperstown, N. Y. Mrs. Clark is a well-known philanthropist and patron of art. Bishop Potter is now in Europe. The date of the marriage has not yet been settled.
