SYMPATHY FOR STRIKERS

GREAT DEMONSTRATION FOR MINERS IN NEW YORK.

Resolutions Adopted Holding Public Ownership to Be the Only Way to Avoid Labor Troubles.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Ten thousand persons attended an open-air mass meeting in Madison Square tonight, organized by the Central Federated Union, in sympathy with the striking coal miners in Pennsylvania. A corps of young women and men, preceded by a brass band, marched around the square, using boxes for contributions to be sent to the aid of the strikers. They were well patronized.

John Mitchell, president of the United Mineworkers, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in their addresses denounced the coal operators in strong terms. Other speakers were Henry George, Ernest Crosby, Charles F. Adams, John S. Crosby and Benjamin Hanford. Resolutions were passed which said in part:

"The time has come when no individual or corporation may longer be allowed to remain in sole ownership and control of a prime necessity of life for the whole people. We declare in favor of collective ownership and operation by the people of the coal mines and railroads dependent upon them as the only way out of the present state of social war between a few capitalists who own all the means of production and the masses of the toiling people who use them—as the only way to secure to each worker the full product of his labor."

In an interview given prior to the Madison Square meeting President Mitchell said the miners are still willing to submit their demands to arbitration, and to abide by the decision of the arbitrators. He said he had not come here to meet any of the operators, and would not try to see any of them. He denied reports that he intended to submit modified demands to J. P. Morgan or the operators.

PANACEA FOR STRIKES.

Commissioner Wright Says It Is for Both Sides to Be Fair and Decent.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—"I do not think that arbitration is the panacea for labor troubles that some persons seem to consider it," said Carroll D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor, last night. "That is why I did not recommend it in my recent report on the coal strike."

Mr. Wright is on his way to Minneapolis, where he will deliver an address on, "Is There a Solution to the Labor Question?" before the National Convention of Employers and Employes, next Monday, and which will be addressed by President Roosevelt next Thursday.

"The practical and to my thinking, the proper way to settle labor troubles," said Mr. Wright, "is for both sides to be fair and decent and settle their differences themselves. They ought to be able to do this better, and certainly can do it with far more mutual satisfaction than by having outsiders step in and settle their troubles."

The Commissioner does not take a hopeful view of conditions in Pennsylvania.

"I cannot say when the strike will end," he declared.

Speaking of President Roosevelt's position in the matter, Mr. Wright said:

"I know that the President was and is exceedingly anxious for the strike to be settled. But I know also that his position was and is most difficult, because, if he stepped in it would be charged that he was using the power and influence of his official position in favor of one side or the other. It is for this reason that he has not done more than he has."

Coal Imported From Wales.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The first consignment of anthracite coal which large dealers and consumers have found it necessary to import on account of the coal miners' strike in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania, reached this port on board the British steamer Devonshire, which left Swansea, Wales, on September 5. A second consignment is expected to arrive here in a few days on the British steamer Glencoe, which left Swansea four days after the Devonshire sailed. These two shipments consist of about 8000 tons.

It is rumored that orders have been placed in Wales for thousands of tons of anthracite, and contracts have been made for the immediate shipment to this city of from 20,000 to 30,000 tons.

THE STENOGRAPHY SERIAL

Rejoinder From "Lapiz" Who Accepts a Challenge.

PORTLAND, Sept. 17.—(To the Editor.)—Simplex in Tuesday's Oregonian asks the undersigned to once more write upon the subject of stenographers. A controversy must sooner or later reach the point where it loses importance to the general newspaper readers, however vital and interesting it may be to any one class. My apology to those who have grown weary of this one is that Simplex leaves no other alternative than a reply, since he declares that a failure of either M. or myself to answer his questions of Tuesday will be considered presumptive evidence that we are weepers and not doers.

It is suggested that the manner in which M. drove a coach-and-four through the moonbeam contentions of Simplex is conclusive that she is a doer; and the simple fact that Lapiz is sensible of the conditions and aroused to that state where she wants to know the why and wherefore, shows she is not a weeper.

One of the striking statements in Harriet Beecher Stowe's great book is that Eliza had long entertained the belief that slavery was wrong. It would seem, especially after this lapse of time, that no American negro in his serfdom could have believed otherwise, and yet such is the power of environment and the force of an ignorance of other and better conditions, that Eliza was an exception among her race. Not only in America, but in Greece, Rome, England and every state where slavery, black or white, ever flourished has this been the case. The slave accepts the conditions in which he is born. He never stops to think. Like the domesticated beast, he never knows his power. The undersigned most respectfully asks to be called Eliza; one who at least realizes the situation, however helpless she may be to alleviate; one who is brave enough to do and dare; who, to carry the figure further, will make the hazardous passage over the floating ice from the inhospitable shore of stenographic work to a more promising one, if she thinks in that her independence lies. Believing with our great poet that "who would be free himself must strike the blow," Lapiz demands a place among the doers, and M. is also entitled to enlistment there.

Surely we have accomplished something when we observe the moderation of Simplex, who, like the sinner, "came to scoff but stayed to pray." Simplex was in a groove so narrow and gloomy that he denied woman's right to earn her bread except as a hired girl. But having "quit bawling" and "gone to thinking," the darkness so far lifts as to make discernible to him another phase of the case which is so affecting he fain would buckle on his good armor and do battle. All Simplex wants is light. He says he has "quit weeping" in his tent. Let us hope he has also quit "sulking" there.

Simplex says, "If Lapiz or M. can suggest a line of action that promises success," he will help in the fight. What he wants is a suggestion of a remedy from those who are troubled. Then, he says, he will proceed to action. It would seem that Simplex himself, having no such weighty subjects as mandolins and hats upon his mind, ought to think out the course we troubled stenographers—and he is one of us—should pursue. A man with the ability to earn enough to keep four persons comfortably certainly has the brains to do some thinking along this line. However, if he wants a woman's advice, he may have it.

Let him bear in mind that instead of offering a remedy, Lapiz sought one in the original letter which precipitated this controversy. Had Lapiz known just how to correct the admitted evil, she would have spent no time writing to the Editor. On the other hand, Simplex injected himself into the case with an answer, and his explanation having failed to explain, he now assumes the strange position that I who asked for information shall answer him who tried to give it. If he had succeeded in answering my query, or indeed, throwing any light upon it, I should the better know how to make answer to him now.

In the first place, Simplex, ever since the barbaric days when a certain bombastic king made a failure of commanding the waves to recede, it has not been considered possible to do the impossible. Nothing but the "immovable obstacle" dare try to check the "irresistible force." You cannot stop that economic law which is being obeyed by women entering the commercial world. Having "quit bawling" and "gone to thinking," you doubtless realize this, and are bowing gracefully to the inevitable.

In the second place, your interests are identical with your working sister. What is of help to her is of help to you; what is of hurt to her is of hurt to you. So complex is society, so intricate and so wonderful is it, that a single law alone can bring exact justice; the Golden Rule. This is a paradox. Think about it and you will see that it is true. Do not rail at the woman who enters the stenographic work. Stop a moment and you will see that the same thing that put you there puts her there; viz., necessity. She is no fonder of drudgery than you, and she works as hard as you and cannot earn enough to keep one person comfortably, to say nothing of four. Above all, never make such a wild tirade against the sex to which your mother belongs as you did in your first letter.

In the third place, study the signs of the times in which you live. Look not backward, look not forward, but look around and about you. Live in the present. Learn what the world is thinking about. Read the books and articles on sociology and economic questions. Do not let the red flag of anarchy infuriate you against the honest men and women who are seeking for the truth in socialistic studies. Find out what the modern Good Hearts are thinking of and you will know that the greatest brains in the Old World and the New are busying themselves with the questions, which if applied directly are, why cannot Simplex satisfy his "unutterable longing" to marry and Lapiz get a job?

A poor stenographer, whose education was cut off at an early age by the pressing need of making a living cannot be expected to offer a solution of the greatest problem the world ever met. Since you do not need be told there is trouble in the world, she can merely point the way you should go to find the truth, the path upon which she herself with many faltering steps and often painful heartaches is trudging, but with an abiding faith that He, watching over Israel, slumbers not nor sleeps. LAPIZ.

Says Mosquitoes Fatten on Oil.

Newark News.

The Summit Town Improvement Association, which was among the first in New Jersey to start a crusade against mosquitoes, appealed to the health board of the town some weeks ago for aid in its fight this year, to the extent of requiring several owners of swamp land who object to the association's method of work to treat these mosquito-breeding spots themselves or permit the association's agents to do so. President Lawrence, in the discussion that followed, declared that in his opinion the petroleum which has been poured into the swamp spots served to fattten the mosquitoes instead of destroying them. It was decided that it is too late in the season to render any service in the mosquito war.

RIOT IN OPERA-HOUSE

SAN FRANCISCO POLICE HAVE DIFFICULTY EJECTING MEN.

Members Gallic League Didn't Like Irish Production and Went to Theater to Make Trouble.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—A riot occurred at the Grand Opera-House tonight, which resulted in several arrests for disorderly conduct and many broken heads.

Last week the Gaelic League, of this city, denounced a series of Boucicault's Irish dramas, now being presented at the opera-house by Dennis O'Sullivan, as being unworthy representations of Irish character.

Tonight the opera-house was crowded. In expectation of trouble, the management had secured a large detail of police. The bill was "The Shaugraun." When the presentation had proceeded a while a number began to hiss. The police ejected 20 or 30 men, who turned on them in the lobby, where a fierce battle raged for several minutes. After the excitement subsided the play went on.

Hated George Eliot.

Harper's Weekly.

When George Eliot was still Miss Evans, and before she had begun to write novels, she used to frequent an old book shop on the Strand, where she left a very unfavorable impression on one young man who was at that time an assistant in John Chapman's shop. His description of her is that of a remarkably ugly young woman of universal knowledge, whose delight it was to use the Socratic method in conversation, but without the Socratic benevolence of intention. The result was that the young men at the dining table (the shop had a boarding-house for its employes and guests) who heedlessly hazarded an opinion were very soon made to feel not only that they knew nothing of the subject under discussion, but that they knew very little, indeed, of anything. Now, a young man does not relish being badgered and made a fool of by a pretty woman, but it is intolerable to be sat upon by an ugly one, at least such was the feeling of our informant, and one consequence of this treatment was that in after years, when Miss Evans had become George Eliot, one man could never persuade himself to read "Adam Bede," or to admit that the author was other than a very intolerant person and an intolerant intellectual prig.

Tom Would Be Easy.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The movement for the nomination of Tom L. Johnson by the Democrats in 1904 is pleasing to the Republicans. Tom is a man the Republicans could beat with special ease. He would be antagonized by a large portion of the Bryanites as well as by many of the Cleveland element. Of course, the chances are that the Republicans will in 1904 be able to beat any man whom the Democrats can put up, but the majority would be particularly large if Johnson should be the nominee.

It is said that the stalwart premier of New Zealand, "Dick" Seddon, was offered a baronetcy by King Edward, but refused it. He says he would far rather be referred to by his neighbors as "Dick" than as "Sir Richard," feeling assured that the latter title would les-
