Wealthy Man's Body Is Then Cast Into a Furnace.

HEAD CUT OFF WITH CLEAVER

New York Police Are Attracted to Low Resort by Odor of Burning Flesh-Three Men and Several Women Arrested.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 .- James B. Craft, a wealthy resident of Glen Cove, L. L. was murdered today, and his body decapitated, in a tentierioin resort known as the Empire Garden Cafe, in West Twenty-ninth street, within a few doors of Broadway. All the evidence goes to show, say the police, that Craft, who had been making the rounds of the ten-derioln, incautiously displayed a large amount of money in the Empire, and was killed by one of the waiters known as Thomas Tobin, for the purpose of rob-bery. The police also say that knock-out were first administered, and that then the victim was dragged into the basement and killied with a sleaver. The odor of burning flesh attracted the attention of the occupants of the upper part of the house early this morning, and led to the discovery by the detectives of the headless body of a man in the basement. The charred head was discovered a few minutes later in the furnace, in which a fire had been recently made with the evident intention of destroying all possibility of identification of the remains. Later the body was identified by Walter Craft, of Glen Cove, as that of his father. The murdered man was about 51 years of age and was a manufacturer of refrigerating machinery in Cortlandt street, this city.

Tobin, who is charged with the murder, was caught hiding in the house. The po-lice also arrested Alexander McAnerney, the bartender; Robert Kelly, a porter in a Chinese restaurant in the building, and several women who were known to be frequenters of the place. The police said tonight that Tobin's real name is Thomas Kelly, and that he is a brother of the porter. They also learned that Craft attempted to get a check for $1250 cashed before he went to the Empire.

Woman Gives the Plot Away. A woman named Mamie Moore, who is known to have been in the place with Craft, and who is held as a witness, made an important statement today which the police declined to make public. She is said to have implicated McAnerney as n accomplice of Tobin. At the Coroner's office the police stated that they found on Tobin, McAnerney and Kelly letters and papers belonging to the dead man. In his story to the Coroner, McAnerney said the man who was killed exhibited a big roll of bills, and Tobin suddenly told him he lied and struck him over the head. Tobin dragged him down stairs, and as he passed through one of the lower floors he picked up a cleaver and struck the unconscious man across the chest.

"I followed him to the cellar," Anerney continued. "I watched Tobin drop his burden and begin to hack at the man's neck. He chopped and chopped, and when the head refused to come he began to saw it with the cleaver. He suddenly turned around, and, discovering me, he said he would cut my head off

As McAnerney related the story, Tobin jumped to his feet and said it was Mc-Anerney who murdered the man, and

Captain Sheehan says McAnerney told Tobin and Captain Jim had a quarrel. Their trouble became very bitter, and Tobin left the room, returning in a few seconds with a cleaver, with which he struck Captain Jim on the head, after which he dragged the man down stairs to the cellar, where he hacked the body to pleces. Captain Sheehan did not learn cause of the trouble. He says he did not find Tobin in the cellar, as first reported, but in a room on the parlor floor, hidden behind some curtains.

NEW YORK, Sept. Z.—The police say tonight the records show that Tobin had once been in Sing Sing and had been reoved from that prison to the insane hos pital at Matteawan, on account of his actions in the prison, but his stay there was of short duration, and that he was returned to Sing Sing as cured.

KILLS WIFE IN FIT OF JEALOUSY. New York Stage Manager Then Surrenders to Police.

Immediately afterward he surrendered himself to the nearest police renered nimself to the hearest police station and handed the revolver to the sergeant, saying: "I have just shot my wife," Jealousy was the cause of the tragedy, Rose, 'according to his state-ment to the police, having detected his wife in an intrigue and being maddened by her admission of suilt. by her admission of guilt.

The man charged by Rose with having allenated the affections of his wife is Samuel Adams, a wealthy real estate dealer, and a constant attendant at firstnight performances, with whom Rose was on terms of friendly intimacy, and whom he says he introduced to his wife. Adams was greatly overcome on learning of Mrs. Rose's tragic death, but denied that there had been any impropriety in his relations with her. Rose was held without bail by the Coroner and committed to the Tombs. Rose made the following statement to Coroner Scholar this afternoon:

"Samuel F. Adams has caused all my oubles. Three days ago I had absolute proof that he had alienated the affections of my wife. Rather than to live in the same house with her, I removed my be-longings to the Hotel Vendome. I did not return to my apartments until this morning. I asked my wife why she had petrayed me, and she said: 'I love Adams and cannot live without him.' That set-tled the matter for me and I shot her."

A colored servant in the employ of the couple made the following statement: "There was no one in the flat with Mrs. Rose last night. Mr. Rose stayed out all night. Mrs. Rose retired early, but a little later than I did. This morning Mrs. Rose had her breakfast in bed about 8 Nose had her breaking in bed about a o'clock. Rose came in at $20. Mr. Frohman, in his despondency, has been greatly cheered by the encouraging reports of the dramatization of "Mr. Dooley," which, it is believed, will have the Frohman season. The public has been greatly interested in the progress of this important work, which will certainly tend to the elevation of the American stage and which is said to possess all the spirit and incentive of the progressive drama. From our acquaintance with "Mr. Dooley" we had supposed that it would be monologue, with Ezra Kendall in the title and only role; then we reflected that a man of the name of Hennessey figures to the extent of asking a question or two, a fact that necessitates the engagement of a supporting company of one, unless Mr. Frohman cuts him out to reduce ex-

Nothing Will Make Him Happier Than a Birthday Balloon Party.

New York Evening Post. A balloon party was the form which the celebration of a little boy's birthday re-cently took. The entertainment was given on the lawn, though begun in the house. Toy balloons, one for each little guest expected, were set loose in a room that was kept carefully shut up until the proper moment. To each balloon was attached a long string, and as the doors were opened to let the children rush in, each strove to be the first to selze one of the fluttering toys. As fast as a child secured a balloon he or she went into the next room, the names being taken there in order of arrival. Then all marched out on the broad lawn, the line formed in the order of the names, the leader being the one who first secured the coveted prize.

A trail of white powder (flower was used for the purpose) marked on the lawn a series of figures which the little folks followed in single file, marching to gay mu-sic from the piano. Each child carried his balloon floating at the end of a cord, and, as the toys had been selected in different colors, the effect as the children murched n and out, describing circles and various figures, was extremely pretty. A photographer snapped the scene, and little fin-ished proofs were afterward sent to the children. Games of various sorts followed, with dancing on the lawn, the balloons ughout the afternoon. The refreshment tables were spread on the plazza, a chair being provided for each

As seats were taken the balloons were tied to the backs of the chairs, floating above their little owners while they ate. The centerplece of each table was a very large, gaily decorated balloon, and Chinese lanterns in that form were bung about the plazza. Finally, when the birthday cake arrived, in lieu of 10 candles to mark the age of the celebrant, there were 10 small silver balloons, each fastened by a tiny silken cord to a stout brass pin fully four inches in length, the pin thrust into the cake. After it had been duly admired the balloons were taken out of the cake and pinned at irregular intervals on a sheet stretched between two posts of the plazza for the purpose. When the cake had been cut and eaten and the supper finished, the children were blindfolded in turn, begin-ning this time with the reversed order of the procession of earlier in the afternoon, and each made a signal effort to pick off one of the balloons from the sheet. If the pin or balloon was touched it belonged to the contestant. The balloons were left on the sheet until all had taken a turn, when to every one so entitled a balloon was given. A reserve supply was on hand, and when the fun of the contest was over con-

The Catarrh had passed upward and backward from the throat along the Eustachian tubes lead-ing from the throat into the ear. He had visited throat doctors and ear doctors and catarrh doctors, without relief. In this condition we find him inhaling the never-failing medication, and soon he notices a change. The noises in the ears stop, there is no more discharge, the hearing gets better, and finally the tubes of the ears open up and something seems to give way in the head. His hearing has completely returned. No wonder he con-siders the result a marvel.

Here is another patient who was always sensitive to the weather. He contracted Catarrh of the Head, and it passed to the throat, then down the windpipe and into the bronchial tubes. He coughed at night so that he could not sleep; there was pain behind the breastbone and under his shoulder-blades. When he coughed he brought up a frothy, grayish material, streaked with blood. He lost appetite and strength. He tried cough syrups and different medicines to no avail. He now breathes in with full inspiration the restoring and soothing medicine. It is to be regretted that the Republican Congressional Committee, under whose imprint the text book is published, should have made the ship subsidy bill, which is still pending in Congress, and which has not received the approval of the majority of the House, a part of the book. Such a procedure is unprecedented. To assume that this bill is a Republican easure is premature as well as unwar-nted. The authors of the text book have devoted 18 pages to arguments in favor of this bill and have made their arguments in such manner as to make it appear that the bill is a Republican easure, approved by a majority of the rty. If the book is permitted to be circulated as a declaration of Republican principles, and no objection is made to this particular section of it, or no effort made to answer the arguments, then in case of success at the polls in November the advocates of the ship subsidy will declare that Republicans have approved it as a Republican article of faith, and that it should be passed by Congress as a Republican measure and as a true test of party loyalty. The action of the committee in this regard is unjustifiable.
