

The social affairs of the week have included several charming school entertainments, the holiday hop of Bishop Scott Academy, which had a decidedly smart, military air about it, Portland Academy's senior promenade, and some clever theatricals given by the girls at St. Helen's Hall.

Aside from these the social event of the week was the marriage of Mr. Fielding Scott Kelly and Miss Bess Lillian Barker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Barker.

The play given at St. Helen's Hall was a romantic comedy, "The Love Chase," and was a brilliant success in acting, costumes and scenery. The young ladies in the cast were Myrtle Wilson, Sara Wilson, Harriet Ankeny, Edna Burkholder, Thora Polson, Rena Kuhn, Elizabeth Reese, Helen Chandler, Gussie Humphrey, Ina Ray and Willetta Leizer.

Wednesday was an ideal day for a winter wedding, and the wedding of Mr. Kelly and Miss Barker was celebrated at high noon at St. Stephen's Chapel in the brightest of December sunshine.

The little church was crowded to its doors, and, indeed, would not hold all the guests.

White chrysanthemums and candles ornamented the altar, and the white vestments of the choir boys made the church interior a picture of churchly dignity and impressiveness. Before the ceremony Mr. Denton played some charming selections upon the organ. Among them were: "Meditation" (Battison Haynes); "Elsa's Prayer" from "Lobengrin"; and "Alleluia moderato" (Beynolds). The choir boys, who came before the bride procession singing for a processional hymn, "O, Perfect Love."

The ushers were Mr. Bert Mackay, Colonel R. E. Jubita, Mr. Henry Connor and Mr. Henry Teal.

The bride came in leaning on her father's arm and attended also by Miss Amy Kelly, her maid of honor. Mr. Kelly's best man was Mr. Paul Bates. Dr. A. A. Morrison read the marriage service from a dainty white service book. Mrs. Morrison's gift to the bride. At the conclusion of the service Mr. Denton played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." In the recessional the choir boys sang, "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden."

The bride, who is a very beautiful girl, was exquisitely gowned in cream imported crepe, elaborately hand embroidered, and trimmed with duchesse lace. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, and her tulle veil was held by a single carnation and a spray of smilax.

Miss Kelly wore a very pretty gown of white crepe, with inserted lace applique. She wore a large white velvet hat and carried pale pink carnations.

Mrs. Barker wore a strikingly handsome gown of cream crepe de Paris, with a fluffy long-ended ruche of liberty silk and violets and a large white hat, trimmed with black Chantilly lace.

Mrs. Kelly, mother of the groom, wore a handsome gown of black silk with trimmings of lavender chiffon and black lace.

After an informal wedding breakfast to the members of the family, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly went away on the 2 o'clock train to the Sound. They will live in Tacoma, at the Rochester.

The announcement that the Stanford Glee Club is coming to the city and will give a concert at the Baker Theater on Friday night has created a great deal of interest in Portland, for everybody has friends at Stanford, and it is a well-known fact that the Glee Club men are exceedingly popular on account of their own personality, aside from their musical ability.

They have been feted everywhere, from Mexico to British Columbia, and several entertainments are, of course, being planned for them here. The patronesses for the concert will be: Mrs. Charles E. Sitton, Mrs. L. L. McArthur, Mrs. A. E. Rockey, Mrs. Richard Koehler, Mrs. J. Wesley Ladd, Mrs. W. B. Ayer, Mrs. Charles F. Beebe and Mrs. W. C. Alvord.

Mr. Fielding Scott Kelly gave an elaborate dinner on Tuesday evening at the Hotel Portland to his best man and ushers. The dinner was served in a private dining-room, which was decorated very beautifully with roses.

The subject for discussion at the Current Events Club on Tuesday evening was "Economics." The well-known satirist by Lowell, entitled "The Pious Editor's" was a good preface. Miss Marie La Barre, the reader, portrayed the spirit of the satire. In a 20-minute paper on "Economics," Mrs. W. Wynn Johnson treated the subject in an original and interesting manner. She found something to commend in the federation of wage-earners as well as in organized capital, but equally condemned the drastic demands of both parties. In closing, she very eloquently referred to President Roosevelt's message to Congress, wherein he touched upon the economic conditions of the country. Miss Annylud Jones read a paper on the book output of the passing year. The interest of the paper was much enhanced by clear and well expressed. Mrs. W. G. Fisher's rendition of the beautiful "Prize Song" of Wagner proved her not only fine in technique, but an artistic interpreter of exquisite harmony. True music, like Miss Watson's portrayal of the invasion of the "Higher Culture" into Dinah's home was heartily endorsed and the reader kindly responded with a selection entitled "Nothing at All."

The Twentieth Century Social Club gave the fifth of a series of parties at the hall of the Western Academy of Music on Wednesday evening, December 16. The party was attended by a merry crowd of club members and their friends. The following programme was given by Mr. Clifford A. Ball's Diletante Orchestra: "Chant" march, Sousa; "Sousa's Golden Sceptre," overture, Schlegel; Monologue—"Wandering Minstrel's Dream," Miss D. Ball; "Lantana Races," Galop, characteristics, "The..."; "Daniels' After the Party," the club will give their sixth party very soon.

On Tuesday evening, December 16, 1920, about 100 people, of both sexes, of various ages, gathered at the home of Mrs. W. W. Wynn Johnson for their series of socials. The affair was a masquerade party and was largely attended, the masquers representing every phase of life and nationality from "The Father of His Country" to the wandering Zangari and Bedouin of the desert. So unique and varied were the costumes that it was with difficulty that the five competent judges came to a decision in awarding the prizes.

Miss Ethel McCarl enjoyed a pleasant surprise last Thursday evening. A few of her friends gathered in honor of her high birthday, very pleasant evening was spent in social conversation and playing ping pong. After a light supper the guests departed wishing their young hostess many happy returns of the day. Those present were: Misses Maud Smith, Effie Stokes, Miss Conroy, Miss Fish, Ethel Vesta and Stella McCarl, Mrs. McCarl, Messrs. Henry Krupke, Fred Zinner, Frank Mulhern, Oda Yates, Fred McCarl.

The members of the Larned Whist Club were entertained in a delightful manner on Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Luther M. Davis, 568 Commercial street. The house was daintily decorated for the occasion with cut flowers, maiden-hair ferns and Oregon grass. Those present besides the hostess were: Mrs. Theo. Nicolai; Mrs. W. Nicolai, Mrs. A. Neppach, Mrs. J. Watson, Mrs. Sherman, Mrs. Billings, Mrs. Heller, Mrs. Proctor, Mrs. Fullison, Mrs. Albright, Mrs. Oliver, Mrs. Kissell, Mrs. Baker.

The young women of Gilbert Camp Auxiliary, No. 1, Spanish War Veterans, gave a pleasant party on Thursday night at Burkhard Hall. The hall was decorated in holiday fashion with festoons of evergreens, snow-sprinkled, and the orchestra played a screen of snowy Christmas trees. The patronesses were: Mrs. Masten, Mrs. French and Mrs. Morse.

A beautiful children's entertainment to be given about the last of January is being planned by the management of the Baby Home. It will be rather in the nature of a Kirmes, and will require 150 children. There will be a series of national dances, with carefully planned costumes for each dance, and some fine choruses. Twenty-five children have already been secured by Mr. Bezgs and Mr. Lighter, who will train them for their dances and songs. It is several years since the Baby Home has been before the public in an entertainment, but it is a most popular charity, and the entertainment will of course be a successful one.
