

State Is Confident of Conviction -Why Lee Went Away.

JEFFERSON CITY. Mo., April 18.-The Cole County grand jury tonight returned four indictments, three presumably against State Senators, for the alleged acceptance of bribes in connection with the alum bill legislation. Strict secrecy is maintained and definite information as to the indictments cannot be obtained. But by deduction it is believed that one indictment is against a St. Louis Senator, two against Senators living outside St. Louis and the fourth against some one living in Jeffercon City. This makes seven indictments so far issued by the grand jury.

The witnesses before the grand jury today were: Senator Marshall, of Scott County; Hugh Koenig, paying teller of a St. Louis bank, where Senators are supposed to have deposited large sums of money; J. E. Crumbagh, doorkeeper of the Senate, and John E. Price, of Olean.

Judge Hazell took under advisement the cases of Poge and Hickox, who refused to state to the grand jury from whom they alwad bills of the den omination of $1000 and $500, until April 27. He will only send the men named to jall for contempt as a last resort.

After the indictments were returned the grand jury adjourned to permit Circuit Judge Hazell, who convened the body, to bold court in Morgan County. Attorney-General Crow said tonight that he felt confident the indictments would

OLD HARDWICK HALL. Historic English Mansion Where

"Bess of Hardwick" Once Lived. Lendon Express.

Hardwick was built by the famous "Bess of Hardwick," who had four husbands. She was married at 14 to Robert Balley. a Derbyshire squire, who died and left her a rich young widow of 15. At 30 she married Sir William Cavendish, an an-cestor of the present duke. Her third and fourth husbands were Sir William St. Low, a captain of the guard, and the Ear of Shrewsbury. The last-named husband separated from her. Second only to her mania for marriage was her mania for building houses. There is a legend that a seer told her that as long as ahe was building she would live, and that when she ceased she would die. She had built Hardwick and Chatsworth and another house, and died one Winter when frost stopped her masons' work. Hardwick is picturesque rather than palatial. It is a large stone Elizabethan mansion, with a tail square tower at each corner. Around it is a park with grand old oaks and hundreds of deer. It stands off a high ridge, and command a magnifi-cent view of Derbyshire. Mary Queen of Scots is said to have been a prisoner at Hardwick as well as at Chatsworth. A bedroom is shown as hers, and the guide points for confirmation to her arms above the door and her initials on the tapestry. Also there is her statue in the entrance hall and her portrait in the picture gallery. This runs the whole length of the house and con tains also portraits of Queen Elizabeth, Lady Jane Groy and many other his-torical characters.

Near the house are the remains of the old hall, built probably in the reign of Henry VII, and interesting because in it Queen Mary passed a small part of her captivity. It is a ruin, roofless, draped
