Rogers. Menger is a night employe at the Standard Box Factory and sleeps during the day. Yesterday morning, shortly after he retired, some small boys were annoying themselves by reading how much disturbance they could cause, and Menger, losing his temper, rushed out, grabbed young Rogers by the seat of his trousers and hair of his head and precipitated him into the street. This action Mrs. Rogers resents, and she will endeavor to make things tropical for Menger in the Justice Court Monday afternoon.

H. Skene made him as comfortable as possible. An effort is being made to save the injured leg, which, it is feared, will have to be amputated.

WHAT MR. BRANNICK SAID... In the report published yesterday of the debate on the fireboat which took place at the meeting of the Executive Board, Mr. Brannick was quoted as stating that General Beebe told him about the attempted bribery of Mr. Johnston. One Out of Many. Cleveland Leader. One fortunate effect of the changes in the character of the immigration from Europe in the last few years will be to cause all foreign nationalities, in self-defense and for self-interest, if for no other reason, to unite as quickly as possible with the great mass of the American people in all essential matters of government and business. The new admixture of races and nations in the great centers of population makes it hopeless for any single element to maintain special advantages over the others, or obtain peculiar favors from the public authorities. The divisions among the foreign-born citizens are so numerous and many of the various nationalities represented are so strong that they check and defeat efforts on the part of any to get what cannot be given to all. It is easy to see that the greater the variety and the more equal the power of the many nationalities well represented in the American population of today the more surely and quickly they will all be welded into one solid though complex
