SEVENTH STREET FINISHED.-The work of laying asphalt on Seventh street, from Taylor to Burnside, was finished late yesterday afternoon, much to the satisfac-tion of the property-owners and residents along that thoroughfare. It has been many months since the first pick was struck into the work, and after tedious struck into the work and after tedious waiting and vexatious delays, the new roadway is at last in place. The new street has a most attractive appearance, and it will doubtless be a popular route to the Union depot. Just as soon as possible the work of repairing Sixth street will be taken up, and the general gubile will then have two first-class traffic ways to North Portland and the Grand Central to North Portland and the Grand Central

FHEE BATHS TO OPEN.-The Portland FREE BATHS TO OPEN.—The Portland Public Baths will surely open on June 24, announced Messra. Holman and Samuel yesterday. There have been numerous reports that the haths would be opened this week, but the gentlemen in charge are of the opinion that the baths ought not to run in opposition to the schools, as the latter might not prove a good counterattraction. Just as soon as the institutions of learning quit business, the baths will be opened in full blast, and the little boys can swim and paddle to their hearts' content. The same regulation will be in force as last year, and in all probability orce as last year, and in all probability

Mr. Murray will be in charge again.

Mone Rieris Than Dearns.—The monthly report of Health Commissioner Biersdorf shows the happy condition of affairs of more births than deaths. For several months past the birth rate has been smaller than the death rate, and those informed on the problem of race middle were in communications. guicide were, in consequence, greatly alarmed thereat. In May, however, there were 119 infants born in the City of Port-land, against a total of 102 deaths, or a balance on the nativity side of eight. Be-side the mortality statistics, the report gives a wealth of information about the city, and records the issuance of 8 mar-riage licenses during the month.

ART AND LUXURY.

Combined With Good Cheer, Are Found at 267 Morrison Street.

The ordinary place of business or cafe attracts but little attention in this progressive age, and it is only somethic extraordinary or out of the commonpla that attracts even more than passing attention. Theo. Trautman and the Schiller Cigar Factory fully realized this truth when the plans were arranged for the new cafe and cigar store at 267 Morrison street, between Third and Fourth. street, between Third and Fourth.
The front is occupied by the Schiller
Cigar Factory, and is known as store
No. 3. The fixtures and appointments are the best that money could procure, but it is the excellence of the goods sold over the handsome cases that will challenge your admiration. The Schillers have demonstrated that it is possible to manufacture the best grade of cigars in Portland under perfect sanitary condition and at the same time employ only expo union help. In a few years their busine has grown to immense proportions, and today their goods are carried by every dealer of any importance in the North-west. The intrinsic merit of the different brands manufactured by Schiller's factory is the basis of their claim for public patronage, not the large and constantly in-creasing pay roll created by them. The Cafe, Theo. Trautman, proprietor, is probably the most attractive resort for gentlemen in Portland. The room is large and airy, while the magnificent appointments are in excellent taste. Solid polished mahogany bar fixtures, counter and partitions have a rich effect, which is beightened by the elegantly tinted walls State of Oregon on the occasion of an extended visit here in March.
