

RESCUED FROM CAPTOR

FIVE-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER SAVED FROM A KIDNAPER.

Man Known to Police as Tommy Marks Is Pursued and Surrounded, but Escapes.

Almost caught with the 5-year-old daughter of J. Pfeiffer in his arms, a man known to the police as Tommy Marks managed to elude the officers in a lumber pile and make good his escape from a crowd which would have lynched him had the kidnaper not been present.

Mrs. E. B. Bunch and Mrs. W. A. Bunch, both living on Thurman street, saw late yesterday afternoon a man carrying a little girl who was kicking at her brutal captor and protesting most vigorously.

Immediately they gave the alarm. When Marks saw that he was discovered, he dropped the child and ran behind a lumber pile at the corner of Seventeenth and Thurman streets, near the warehouse of Mitchell, Lewis & Slater.

The startled women ran for help to some men working near by, and the men remembering their little ones at home lost no time in taking after the kidnaper.

Slipping in between huge piles of lumber Marks managed to avoid his pursuers. Policemen Key and Reeling happened along and took part in the chase, but they did no more than the workmen. The whole community was rapidly aroused and men and women joined in the pursuit.

Several times persons were positive they saw the wanted man dart from one lumber pile to another, but in every case before the policemen arrived at the spot no Marks could be seen. For more than an hour the crowd hunted through the block, but neither they nor the trained sleuths of the law could find the man whom they had surrounded. At last the crowd disbanded and the policemen came down town to report to the station. Some hours later they returned to the scene, evidently believing that the man whom they wanted would come back and try the same thing over again or give himself up.

But Marks preferred to stay away, so up to a late hour last night the vigilant policemen had not captured the kidnaper. It is almost incredible that he left the lumber yard while the women were so close behind, but in the game of hide and seek which followed the kidnaper certainly got the best of the policemen.

J. Pfeiffer, the father of the little girl, who came so near being the victim of a brutal kidnaper, lives on Ephur street. From the description of the would-be kidnaper Detective Frank Snow identified him as Tommy Marks, a man known to the police as one capable of doing such a deed without a moment's hesitation. He wears several aliases and may give another name when captured if he remains in the city long enough for the police to find him.

Had not the women seen Marks when he had the girl in his arms, he had an open field to spirit the little girl away. Marks is described as a young man, 25 years of age, wearing a gray suit and a gray crusher hat. The detectives say they know the man and will not hesitate to arrest him wherever found.

TRAILS IN THE FORESTS

Adolph Ashoff Says They Are Necessary to Thorough Ranging.

Adolph Ashoff, assistant supervisor of the Cascades and Bull Run forest reservation, came home yesterday from the Marmon, where he has been directing the opening of trails for protection against forest fires in Marion, Linn, Clackamas, Wasco and Multnomah counties. He went out to his home on Salmon River, widely known as the "Ashoff's Place."

Mr. Ashoff is a very enthusiastic mountain and forest man, and a member of the Marmon. He likes nothing better than running over the most rugged of mountains.

"What we need," said Mr. Ashoff in a brief interview, "are men who have an interest in protecting the forests and not men who go out for a vacation, and we need to cut wide, well defined trails so the rangers can get through the rugged wild country to the most inaccessible points. The main thing to do effective work in case of fire is to stop it at the start, as when once it gets under way there is little hope of getting it stopped. We have hardly mountain men in the division I just came from. They know their business and will do their work well. There is now a trail from Mount Hood to the McKenna and to Marion Lake, the most beautiful body of water in the world, 4000 feet elevation. Trails are being cut to Elk Lake, Hot Springs, Minto Mountain, Periwinkle Lake, so it will be possible for the tourist to reach these points."

"I am a crank on forest and mountains. I am in this work largely to aid in opening up our most magnificent scenery, so that our people may see what we have right here in Oregon. I have traveled in the Alps and in other widely known mountains in foreign lands, but we have as good if not finer scenery here in Oregon."

"How would you better protect the forest?"

"By cutting more wide trails and by getting a class of rangers who love the mountains. Then the rangers are not paid enough. They get $60 a month, furnish their own horses and everything. This is too small a sum for what is required of them. They should be better paid than that. I would cut more trails and employ enough men to make their work effective. A fire once started is hard to stop until it burns itself out. To stop a fire in the forest the ranger must be on the spot, or so he can get there at once without loss of time. With men enough to cover the territory and with trails this can be done."

"Is there much danger now?"

"Yes, there is a constant danger from now on. James Branch, who has a saw-mill on the Sandy River, just told me that the lightning struck several trees in that district and started a fire, which, however, did not spread. Provision will be made for the Bull Run reserve. I am to see M. C. Isenberg, forest supervisor or head ranger, of Hood River, about putting men in that reservation at once. We have good men at work where I came from and we will try to get the same class out there."
