MANAGED MANY CELEBRITIES CAREER OF MAJOR J. B. POND, SOLDIER, AUTHOR, EDITOR AND MANAGER OF FAMOUS FOLK.

Last Sunday Major James Burton Pond, author, soldier, editor and the most renarkable manager the country has ever known, died at his home in Jersey City of of poisoning, following the amputation of his right foot. He was 65 years old. Major Pond had a remarkable career.

It may be said safely that every lecturer or singer worth remembering was at some time managed by him.

James Burton Pond was born in Cuba, Allegheny County, N. Y., June 21, 1838. His father, William Elmer Pond, a farm-His father, William Eimer Pond, a farm-et, with his family, joined the pioneers to Illinois in 1842. Later he went to Wis-consin, and, yielding to the strong senti-ment around him, became an aboiltionist and engaged in underground slave-run-ning. Major Pond as a boy assisted his father in siding the slaves to escape Northward, their house being a station for slaves. for slaves.

After serving his apprenticeship in Fond du Lac Major Pond began to set type on the Herald of Freedom, at Lawrence, Kan. There the "call" came to him as it had come to John Brown. And he be-came one of those who made history that will live to the end of time as a raider in the little frontier town of Kansas. This was in 185. As a member of Brown's band he carried one of the Sharp's rifles known as the Beecher Bible, for the rea-son that the guns were shipped West by itionists as Bibles.

Major Pond was one of the pioneers to Denver and Pike's Peak in 1838. When the Civil War broke out he enlisted, rose from the ranks until he was made a Major, and in 1963 was one of the 17 sur-vivors of a band of 118 Union cavalrymen who were attacked by Quantrell in the Baxter Springs masacre

Then the genius of the Major as a manager became appar-ent. He at once saw the possibilities of making money with Ann Eliza Young as a lecturer. He yielded to the winkes of Denver and let her speak there first. Of this experience he said: "I got the school-room, charged 41.50 a ticket, sold 400 tick-ets and took in 5000 that evening. I re-member when she was to appear in Denbeen waiting since 4 o'clock in the morn-ing," said Major Pond, "and Mark got unchsy. He said, 'I am tired of this business. Pond contracted with me to travel and here I am waiting for late trains that "Mrs. Clemens said, 'Mr dear, are you not making a feel of yourself? 'No, I am not,' Twain replied. "I have never found so earnest a talker," the Major said afterward. I have heard a great many, too. She had a cause. She was in dead earnest. She was able in two years from that time to leave Utah with her children and her family, and she never returned."

His First Good Angel.

Major Pond was a good angel on two notable occasions in the life of Charlotte Cushman, the great actress. The first was when from a tramp printer he became a callboy in a St. Louis thester at $7 a week. He began the night Charlotte Cushman opened her engagement as Lady Macbeth. She had complained that the boy who carried the basket containing her jewels had lottered. She needed some on she could rely upon, who would walk faithfully by her side with that precious basket. To the little lad, Pond, fell the

"So that night I walked home with Charlotte Cushman, the great actress," he writes, "carrying her basket to her room in the Planter's House. I did this until I became ill and was obliged to send a sub-stitute, who brought the basket on Sat-urday night. After the play, when the lights were turned off with the excep-tion of the dressing-room. I heard Miss Cushman asking for me. I replied, and she came across the sflige to me, hoped I would not be ill and put a coin in my first meeting with the great Charles Sum-ner. It stamped this fact on his brain: "Charles Summer was an aristocrat. He was my father's ideal. We walked nine miles to hear him speak. Father always spoke of him as the Honorable Charles Sumner, so great was his reverence of the would not be ill, and put a coin in my hands. I scratched about and got to where there was sufficient light to dis-cover that I was the owner of a $20 gold-He enjoyed the speech immensely, man I do not know whether I did or not. After the unlocking of the box Mr. Banks paid no more attention to the de-positor, who in a little while departed. Later, walking through the room, the doorkeeper perceived a heap of jewels upon the table, and cartled them to the superintendent of the company. Their owner on their return to him gave Mr. Banks 55 .$85

the best policy?" was put to Mr. Banks the other day. He replied: "I do." All the money that he found was found An the money that he found was tound in the same way. A client of the com-pany would open his deposit box on a table, take out part of its contents, rum-mage about fill he came upon what he wanted, close and lock the box, forgetting the valuables he had taken out, and de-nart leaving them on the table. Or else the "But," it was objected, "if you had been less honest, look what you might have the valuables he had taken out, and de part, leaving them on the table. Or else the valuables would fail from the table un-"I might have had," said the old man, "a good iong term in jail." He lives in a clean and modest house at perceived and the box would be relocked without its owner's missing them. Or else they would fall from the packet the man had made of them as he departed with them in his hand or pocket. Mr. Banks once found jewels valued at $2000, and their owner did not know he ad lost these jewels for seven years.

They were discovered late in the day on a chair in a distant corner of the roo As 500 persons had visited the room in day's course, and as the jewels had the
