CAUGHT UNDER A CAR, Logging Camp Employe May Lose His Life.

ASTORIA, Or., June 27.—(Special.)—A perhaps fatal accident occurred at the E. F. Libke logging camp on the Lewis and Clark river about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A car loaded with logs was being hauled up a heavy grade when a cog on the sprocket wheel broke. David Watlidt, an employe in the camp, and Mr. Libke crawled under a car to remedy the difficulty.

As the chain was loosened the car started down the grade, catching Wal-lidt under the wheels and dragging him some distance. Libke escaped by grab-bing hold of the axis and clinging to it until the car stopped. Wallidi's right leg was found to have been crushed and mangled in a frightful manner. His left leg was also broken above the ankle. He was brought to the hospital here, where his right leg was amputated at the hip. There is slight hope of his recovery. Mr. Wallidt is a single man, E years of age, and came here from Minnesota about three years ago. His only known relative is a sister living in Minnesota.

FOUR CASES AT YACOLT.

Smallpox Is Under Control, Says Dr. Stowetl, of Realth Board.

VANCOUVER, Wash, June 7:—(Special)—Dr. A. P. Stowell, member of the State Board of Health, returned yesterday from an investigation of the reported cases of smallpox at Yacolt, in county. Dr. Stowell positively denies that there are 100 cases of the dreaded disease there, as reported in the papers yes-terday. On the contrary, he found only four cases, in an isolated camp, and these, he says, will be discharged next Friday. The scare started by uninformed in-dividuals is misleading. Laborers and others who bestinted going to Yacolt for that reason need have no fear of the disas the health board has the matter under control at present.

looked toward the creek and saw the flood rearing its threatening crest just above the house of Mrs. Kirk, a large and substantial two-story building which had just been finished. Another instant and the wall of water struck this building as high as the upper windows, tearing off the whole top and hurling it out in advance of its seemlingly perpendicular front. At this time Willow Creek a dozen yards in front of the advancing wall of water was not out of its banks. Mr. Humphreys' first thought was of his home and family, five blocks away, and he turned and ran with all speed for his house, but so rapid was the rush of waters that the flood outran him by two blocks. Fortunately, however, a huge pile of drift was thrown out in front of Mr. Humphreys' house and it escaped.

out in front of Mr. Humphreys house and it escaped.

The house of Thomas McHailey stands at the extreme lower end of Main street on ground as low as any in the town, but the flood did not rise to the level of his ground floor. Those who had the best opportunity to note the appearance of the waters say it was heaped up at the center, sloping away to the side, and from the nature of the destruction wrought such certainly seems to have been the case.

Soon after the disaster occurred the representatives of the fraternal orders were on the ground looking out for their members and making preparation for the payment of insurance policies of those who were drowned. Mrs. John Ayers and Mrs. James Matlock have already received payment of insurance held by their husbands in the A. O. U. W. ledge, and many other survivors in favor of whom insurance was written in the various beneficial orders have their claims well under adjustment and will be paid in a few days.
