

DIVINE HEALER NOW DEPENDS UPON FAITH TO CURE

"Surrender yourself wholly to God." To all the afflicted in body, mind and soul, this is the command of John Johnson, an elderly Swede, formerly a common laboring man, now a divine healer, whose home is in Seattle.

JOHN JOHNSON, FORMER LABORER NOW A "DIVINE HEALER."

For the past two days John Johnson has proclaimed the power of faith in the name of Jesus Christ. He is now at the Home Ranch saloon, a place of villainy and vice. There he will continue to meet the faithful, the curious and the scoffers for three or four days longer, including today, at 2:30 each afternoon and at 7:30 each evening.

me, and I have seen no instance in them of a benighted person being restored. I know that all things are possible with God, but we should not experiment with his mercy. I ask for it humbly in all cases of the sick and maimed that I meet, and that are willing to have me ask for them.

BUILDINGS ARE DELAYED

EAST SIDE SCHOOLS ARE NOT COMPLETED.

Lack of Finishing Material Retards Completion of Two Annexes and Highland Building.

Architect T. J. Jones, in charge of the new school buildings, who has been confined until this week to his home at 334 East Third since the wreck of the Elks excursion train, says that the delays in the completion of the Stephens and North Central schools' annexes and the Highland building are caused by the lack of finishing material.

the address of State Master E. J. Leedy and reports of Secretary Mary S. Howard appear. The pamphlet is packed with information concerning the order in this state, and its arrangement reflects credit on Mrs. Howard, the secretary. Over 500 copies of the proceedings have been printed, for distribution among the Granges of the state. There never has been a time when the order in this state was more prosperous than at present.

SCARCITY OF FARM HANDS.

Powell Valley Farmers Are Compelled to Help One Another.

Henry Kane, a prominent farmer living in Gresham, was in the city yesterday, and he said that he had never before known a time when it was so hard to find farm hands. Owing to the great scarcity of help farmers are resorting to the device of helping one another, which is done by exchanging work. Mr. Kane said the only way by which he could get help in haling his hay was to help some other farmer. It was impossible to hire any one.

To Improve Grand Avenue.

The first steps for the improvement of Grand avenue between East Clay and Belmont streets have been taken. A survey of the part of the street to be improved has been made, and the estimates will now be made by City Engineer W. C. Elliott. There are no prospects that Grand avenue will be improved south of East Clay street very soon. The property-owners there feel that they have spent enough for improvements and will wait a while longer before investing any more money for the benefit of slabwood and lumber wagons, which have quickly worn out every improvement made south of East Clay street.

TEAR OUT DECAYED BRICK

WORKMEN MAKE REPAIRS ON OREGONIAN TOWER.

New Brick Are Replaced in Walls Which Are Then Made Impervious to Moisture.

"What are they doing up there?" is a question asked probably a hundred times a day by people who crane their necks to look up at the men who are working on a scaffold far up on the walls of the Oregonian Building. Every now and then showers of fragments of brick comes down on the scaffold erected over the sidewalk, at the corner of Sixth and Alder streets, to protect pedestrians, and this causes the curious to walk out into the street and look up at the building.

paraffin, while the work of putting in new brick is confined to the points where decay has taken place. One can see at a glance where the paraffin has been applied, for it colors the brick a deeper red than its natural color. How effective is this paraffin process can be seen from experiments which were made before it was tried on the Oregonian Building. A brick 2 1/2 inches was heated, paraffin was applied and the brick was dried with a torch. It was then soaked in water for 24 hours, and was found to have absorbed only one ounce of water. A brick of the same size was treated with Cabot's brick-preserve, of which 3/4 ounces were used, and was then soaked in water for 24 hours, and was found to have absorbed 11 ounces of water. A brick of that size, untreated with any substance, absorbs 20 ounces of water. A brick 2 1/2x19 inches was next treated with silicates of soda and potash, the material which was used three times on the Oregonian Building, and it absorbed 21 ounces of water.

robbing passengers or express companies or the United States mails in stage coaches, electric cars or other cars, defrauding cars or locomotives or railroad trains, and like offenses endangering human life, punishable by hanging as murder is now. In cases of doubt, or of extenuating circumstances, such as extreme youth, I would permit the jury to bring in a verdict of a lesser degree, as in murder cases now. I would by law require the Circuit Court to give precedence to all such cases, try them first, and minor criminal cases later and civil cases still later. Then, instead of giving such great criminals six months within which to appeal from conviction in the Circuit Court, I would require them to serve their notice of appeal within two weeks and "perfect" it within a month. I would make it the duty of the Supreme Court to hear such grave criminal cases, first of all appealed cases. And, finally, I would by law require the final decision and sentence to be executed at the end of a week from its announcement. In this way justice might be administered to such great rogues with much more celerity, without depriving them of their constitutional rights. Innocent men might establish their innocence. But men like Arpin and Tracy would soon cease to bother their law-abiding neighbors. An admirable result of such a change in our laws and judicial procedure would be the judicial and legal extermination of such human wild and vicious animals on the same principle on which we pay scalp bounties for coyotes and crows. ED. W. BINGHAM.

HANG THEM ALL. Rope Suggested as Penalty for All Grave Crimes.

PORTLAND, Sept. 12.—(To the Editor.)—If Edward Arpin's confessions of arson and "hold-ups" under threats of assassination are true, he ought to be hanged as a proper reward for himself and as a hint to others inclined to imitate him. But of course such punishment as the law now is—cannot be legally inflicted. All that can be done is to send him to the penitentiary, there to subsist at the further expense of the taxpayers. This inadequacy of the law for such cases, and "the law's delays," are what provoke lynching. I think a justice of the United States Supreme Court suggested as a remedy the abolition of all appeals from the verdict of a jury in such cases. But my idea is not to cut off appeals (which might raise constitutional and other questions), but to specially speed them. In the first place, I would make such crimes as arson, rape, highway robbery,
