Closing Arguments in Indian Murder Trial.

CASE GOES TO JURY MONDAY

Prosecution is Unable to Rattle De fendant, Martin, on Cross-Examination-Logan Will Be Tried for Crime Next.

Albert Martin, the Siletz Indian, charged jointly with Abe Logan with the murder of U. S. Grant, another Indian, will have to wait until Monday before he learns the fate that the jury has in store for him. Yesterday morning United States District Attorney Hall put Martin through a severe cross-examination, but he was un-able to lead him from his original story Attorney Hall handled the Siletz Indian without gloves, but Martin came out of the ordeal unshaken.

After the cross-examination of Martin, Attorney Hall began his argument to the jury. Mr. Hall dwelt to considerable length on the testimony of Mrs. Grant, widow of the murdered Indian, and the fact that Martin had made threats upon the life of Grant prior to his death. He took the jury step by step over the history of the crime, and was sure that the feud which existed between the Al-

The afternoon session was taken up by counsel for Martin. Thomas G. Greene opened the argument and for over an hour he attacked the argument made by the United States District Attorney, which, he declared, was constructed from conjectures and "maybes," and which which, he declared, was constructed from conjectures and "maybes," and which he claimed was not worthy of the jury's consideration. He was followed by At-torney McFadden, who followed the same concluding argument on Menday and then the case will go to the jury. Just as soon as the Martin case is out of the way, the trial of Abe Logan, the other ian charged with the murder of Grant, begin. A queer circumstance connected with Logan's trial is, that the witnesses for the defense in the Martin case, will be witnesses for the state against Logan. Logan, it seems from the testi-mony given at the Martin trial, tried to lay the killing of Grant on Martin. Logan stated in the presence of many witnesses that Martin had choked Grant to death and then had thrown the body in the river. The Coroner who made the examination swore positively that Grant's neck showed no signs of strangulation and that the only wounds were those on the head, which, as near as he could tell, were made by a blunt instrument. Several large stones were produced as evidence, They were covered with blood and were ed to have been used on Grant's

Just what line of defense Logan's attorneys will bring out is not known, but it is expected that they will try and prove that Grant's death was due to his falling from his horse, when, being hung by the stirrups, he was kicked to death, Among the many contradictory stories said to have been told by Logan after the finding of Grant's body, this is one of

NEIL AND MOROSCO TO MERGE.

New Theatrical Combination to Prob ably Include Daniel Frawley.

Another step in reorganizing the various Neill-Morosco theatrical enterprises may be taken about the end of this week, when James Neill and Oliver Mo-rosco meet in San Francisco. By next February, it is proposed that Daniel Frawley and Mary Van Buren, now playing in New Zealand, will join the Nelli-Morosco people, and will present reper-toirs work on the road, that the present individual Nelll company shall be known one of the Nelli-Morosco com and that James Nelll and Edythe Chapman will be given another company in which Nelli will be featured as a dollar star, the same as now. This will prac-tically mean that the Nelli-Morosco people will have four companies in the field, before very long. The deal has been in process of completion for months, and has been commented upon in different Pacific Coast cities.

Daniel Frawley has latterly been wish-ing to have a finger in the theatrical pie and he sent a cablegram from Dunedin New Zealand, to Mr. Neill at Portland, stating that he was tired being his own manager, and that he wished to get under the shade of the Neill-Morosco shelter-ing wing. Mr. Neill communicated with Mr. Morosco, his fellow-partner at Los Angeles, in regard to Frawley's proposition, and it was arranged that the matter will be decided when the Nelli com pany reaches San Francisco. The com pany leaves this city tomorrow morn ing, after playing two nights and one matinee at the Marquam, and after one performance in Astoria of "A Gentleman of France," it will sail from Astoria Tuesday morning for San Francisco, en route for Honelule

It was found that the Neill Stock Company and the present Nelli-Morosco company, in which Lillian Kemble is the leading lady, operated largely in the same Western territory, and that the dates for engagements ahead could have been improved upon if directed from one central office. It would also have been convenient to have exchanged players temporarily between the two companies. Mr. Morosco states that he has contracted for dates ahead for the different Nelli-Morosco companies from the present time until 1908, in a chain of theaters stretch-ing from Los Angeles to Denver.

INDIVIDUAL BANK DEPOSITS, $120,000,000.

If the New Yorker who worries about the ups and downs of United States Steel and Pennsylvania on the Stock Board, and who awalts with anxiety the publication of the weekly bank statement, would but glance at the individual deposits of the National Banks of the Pacific Northwest he could be convinced that at least one section of the United States is little in fear of a "financial pinch." Never have the people of Oregon, Washington and Idaho had so much money in bank as now. The last published statement of the National banks, issued in September, showed individual deposits of $59,290,240, an increase of $17,000,000 in two years. To this enormous sum must be added the deposits of the private and foreign banks, which easily bring the total to $120,000,000, about $190 per inhabitant.

The figures of individual deposits here set forth and of loans and discounts published elsewhere, tell a story of prosperity for the people and of conservative banking. Taking the statement of March 9, 1897, as the line of demarcation between the old and the new order of business, individual deposits of National banks had increased, up to September 9, 1900, over $42,000,000, and loans and discounts about $25,000,000. Loans and discounts could easily have gained another $10,000,000 and still the condition of finances would have been healthy. Deposits stand at $59,200,-249, and louns and discounts at $40,196,148. This is safe, almost too safe, but it has its compensations in the ability of the people to meet their obligations, and in the ability of the banks to handle the Northwest's without straining. Whatever situation may arise in the East, it should be borne in mind that the Pacific Northwest has not been over-speculating in industrials or even in real estate; that it is not aded down with debt as it was in the '90's, and that above all the foundation of sound finance is not attacked as it was ten years ago. In general, the Pacific Northwest has continued the policy of figuring own enterprises which it began in 1897. This is why its position is

Mrs. Mattle Grim Receives Most of Stolen $700 Through the Mail.

A male caller whom she suspects of having stolen a check for $700 from her; a chase by detectives and the final receipt of almost the entire amount through the mail, sent to her by the unknown thief, have been the principal chapters in an affair in which Mrs. Mat-tle Grim, of Woodstock, and James Mc-Carthy, a bartender, have been the leadg characters.

McCarthy visited Mrs. Grim, who is a widow, at her residence several days ago. When he left she discovered that an indorsed check for $700, which had been in the room, was missing.

The police were notified, and Detectives Snow and Kerrigan started to hunt up McCarthy, who was suspected by his former entertainer. McCarthy had been tending bar at several saloons around Fourth and Taylor streets, but he had left the city. He was being traced by the sleuths when the whole matter sud-denly came to an end.

Mrs. Grim was notified that the Postoffice had an unstamped letter addressed to her. In the letter was a certificate of deposit for $600 and a $10 bill. Apparently the thief had cashed the indorsed check, but fearing detection, had sent back most of the money. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Mc-Carthy, but as the money had been re-turned and as there was no positive evi-dence against the bartender, the sleuths were called off his trail.

MAYAMENDTHELAW

Legislators Change Front on Portage Road.

FAVOR GOVERNMENT CANAL

Extra Session May Decide to Give the War Department a Free Rightof-Way and Abandon the Railway Scheme.

Indications are that the portage road law will be amended at the extra session. The change will be made so that the state can give to the National Government ground for the Ceilio canal. And since the portage road could not be operated while the canal is building, the Legislature may give up the portage road. Several Eastern Oregon lawmakers who worked to pass the portage road law are now advocating the amendment, among them being Representative C. P. Johnson, of John Day, author of the portage road law, and Representative N. Whealdon, of The Daues. The Multnomah delegation is coming to the same opinion, and several are strongly championing the amendment. The conditions which rendered the portage road desirable have largely changed. The National engineers have finished their surveys, estimates and plans for the canal, and the general Government is ready to begin construction immediately. if it can get right of way free of cost. The War Department has ordered that "the work proceed under the modified project, recommended by the board (of special engineers), subject to the condispecial engineers), subject to the condition that no work shall begin until the right of way and the release from damages shall be conveyed to the United States free of cost."

Consequently the Legislature faces the necessity of providing means for right of way for the canal.

It will not be possible to operate the portage road while the canal is under construction. Both will occupy the same ground at many places, and if the portage road is to be located where it will be out of the way of the canal, the cost will go far above $165,000. The surveys upon which the $165,000 estimate is based follow the most economical route also, especially at the termini. From Big Eddy to the at the termini. From Big Eddy to the head of Five-Mile Rapids, about two miles, the two would occupy almost the same ground; likewise at the Falls. Be-tween Big Eddy and the Falls engineers say that the survey of the portage road crosses the line of the canal several

But War Department officials are evidently very much in earnest. The plans of construction have been approved by the Chief of Engineers and by the Secre tary of War. The special Board of En gineers has estimated the cost of construction at $4.125,000. Inasmuch as this is approximately the estimate according to the Harts plan, the War Department can go ahead without further sanction of

The board, several months ago, thought that the cost would amount to $8,000,000, and that Congress would have to provide additional money to make up that sum. But Major Langfitt and his engineers succeeded, by taking advantage of natural contours, in making a survey which will entail an expenditure of only half the sum expected. The board showed its eager desire to open the river to naviga-tion by approving Major Langfitt's plans with scarcely an amendment.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21 .- The inability of opposing counsel in the case of the will of the late Philo S. Bennett to agree on the form of the formal decree to be entered in the Probate Court proceedings was made manifest today when Judge Henry Stoddard, as counsel for Mrs. Bennett, the widow, and other heirs, filed with Judge Livingston W. Cleveland, of the court, his draft of the form of the decree. With it Judge Stoddard submitted a note to the court, saying Attorney Hewitt, of counsel for William J. Bryan, the executor of the will, had been unable to agree with him as to the wording of the decree, the inference being that Mr. Hewitt will also submit his idea of the form the decree should take and that the court will have to settle the

BIG DOG SHOW PLANNED

PORTLAND KENNEL CLUB TO EXHIBIT NEXT APRIL.

Its Rules Will Govern at San Francisco.

Club promises local dog-funciers for some time in April. The club will hold its annual election of officers on Saturday evening, December 5, and will commence to prepare for the approaching show. During the past few years local fanciers have taken particular interest in the kennel club's shows. The prizes have been better and more numerous, and year by year the entry list has made steady gains. The last show, held in April, was the most successful ever held in this city, but the coming one promises to eclipse last seaon's exhibition. Competition was the keenest in pointer, English setter, cocker and fox terrier classes, but during the past year the importation of a great many highbred dogs of nearly all breeds, as well as a marked improvement in many of the local dogs, gives the enthusiasts on ca-nines reason to believe that none of the past shows will compare with this year's exhibition.

The dog shows held on the Pacific Coast, with the exception of the San Francisco shows, are held under the rules of the Pacific Kennel League. The San Francisco shows have hitherto been held under the rules of the Amrican Kennel League, the league that governs all other shows held in the United States and Canada. For several years the Coast cities held their shows under the rules of the American League, but the Northern cities were hardly recognized by the league, and were rated far below the position the shows deserved. This eventually led to the organization of the Pacific Kennel League, which has grown steadily until it now claims nine cities in its circuit—Nanaimo, Victoria and Vancouver, B. C.; Spokane, Scattle, Tacoma, Portland, Salem and San-Francisco

Heretofore the San Francisco shows have always been held under the direc tion of the American League, but on De-cember 2 to 5, inclusive, San Francisco will for the first time have a show under Pacific League rules. The show will be given under the joint management of the Oakland Poultry Association, the Pacific Collie and Old English Sheep Dog Club, and the San Francisco Cat Club, and prize poultry, dogs, cats, pigeons and all kinds of pet stock will contest for su-premacy on the bench. The show will be held in the Mechanics' Pavilion. The offi-cers of the association are: P. W. Morse, president; Charles H. Harker, vice-president, and Norman J. Stewart, secretary and treasurer. The show will be the greatest affair of the kind ever held in the Bay City, and the fact that the dog show will be governed by the Pacific Kennel League is looked upon by the local fanciers as a decided victory for the new

A number of local dogs will be sent to the San Francisco show, among them the famous pointer dog Minnesota Joe, who won everything in the pointer dog classes in Victoria. Seattle and Portland last season. At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Portland Kennel Club, E. F. Willis and W. W. Peasiee, president and secretary, respectively, donated a $65 silver cup to be sent by the local club to the San Francisco show, to be offered for the best pointer dog in the show. So certain are the local enthusi-asts that Minnesota Joe will capture the prize that they have asked H. F. Zeigler, the owner of the famous dog, what style of cup he would prefer.

Frank Watkins will send his bull ter-rier, "Bonnybred Stilletto," to the San Francisco show. The terrier was sired by

> On November 19 the Salem Kennel Club was organized under the rules of the Paelfic Kennel League, and it was decided to held a bench show on December 17, 18 and 19. James Cole, the well-known dog judge of Kansas City, Mo., who will judge the dogs at the San Francisco show, is expected to judge the dogs at Salem. Local fanciers will remember him as the judge who judged the sporting dogs in this city at the show held in 1901. At least 100 dogs will be sent from this city to contest in the Salem show, and a great number of new dogs that have never before been on the bench shown. Some fine dogs are owned by the Williamette Valley farmers, especially in the collie, pointer and English setter classes, and already the entry list assures the Salem club a decided success in their first attempt at holding a bench show. As yet no arrangements have been made by local clubs to attend the Salem show, but it is probable that a large number of Portland fanciers will be there.

CAREER OF GEORGE F. WELCH Death Cuts Short Bright Prospects of Young Lawyer.

George F. Welch, who died in this city at the Good Samaritan Hespital at 12 o'clock Monday, November 19, was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Weich and only brother of J. E. Weich and Mrs. Charles W. Holmes, of Astoria. Mr. Welch had many friends and acquaintances throughout the State of Ore gon, who mourn his untimely death, was born in Astoria on July 5, 1873. was graduated at the State University and shortly after his graduation decided to become a lawyer. He studied with J. H. and A. M. Smith in their law office until 1896, when he successfully passed the state examinations and began practicing law. His health would not permit him to remain indoors, so he went to Arizona, and when the Spanish-American War started he went to Porto Rico, where he served under the United States Govern-ment until he contracted fever, which left him in the hospital there for a month. Returning to Astoria in 1899, he opened a law office with J. A. Eakin, but the fever had left his system in a weakened condition and he soon became unable to attend to his law duties and decided to seek a higher and dryer climate. In 1900 he went to live with his unale, D. A. Herren, in Heppner, and after living a free outdoor life for two years he opened a law office in Heppner with C. A. Red-field. He was attacked with Bright's disease in December, 1902, and came to Port-land to be treated for the disease which resulted in his death. His body was taken to Astoria and the funeral services were held from the Grace Episcopai Church at 11 'o'clock Thursday, November 12. The church services were conducted by Rev. William Seymour Short and were under the auspices of Temple lodge of Masons, of which he was a member. The members of Beaver lodge, Independent Order Odd-fellows, also attended in a body. The interment was in the family plot in Ocean View Cemetery.
