in the stagnation of the day's nock marke-The price movements were confined to special-ties. Total hond sailes were $407,000. There has been no sign of life in the invest-ment demand for stock this were, and prices have drifted sluggishly. The case and abund-ance of money keeps the market free from any ance of money keeps the market free from any ance of money keeps the market tree from any pressure to sell to procure cash resources, and those who are not obliged to sell have every incontive to keep their offerings off the mar-ket, in view of its small power of absorption. At the same time, the abundant facilities in the money market have proved no inducement to operators to accumulate stocks for specu-lative purposes, as doubt and unstraining over lative purposes, as doubt and unoriality over the future course of values offers no assurance of profits on the operation. The market is practically deadlocked in consequence. The movement of rold toward Paria, in view of the large resources already at hand there, strengthens the conviction that the issue of a large Russian loain there is imminent. The securities market in London has fared räther better than our own by reason of the relaxing of the money rates, and has also shown a good investment demand for high-grade securi-ties and an avakening speculation in South and an awakening speculation in South ican mining stocks. in the same more than half what was supped in the same month last year and about a quarter the amount that went forward in April, 1902. The showing, however, is better than that made on the Sound, all the ports in the North only sending out 195,046 bushels, of which 78,788 bushels went to California. For the cereal year to date, Portland has shipped 4,115,346 bushels of wheat, as against 2,075,044 bushels of wheat, as against 2,075,044 bushels shipped by Puget Sound ports. Flour shipments from this port were also light in April, amounting to only 61, 633 barrels, while in April last year they were 94,100 barrels, and in April 1905, 111,575 barrels. Although the Portland exports were but half what they were a year ago, the showing made in the North was far more unfavorable, Puget Sound exporting 78,195 barrels last month, as against 37,336 in the month of April last year.
