

The Simple Life

By Charles Wagner

Chapter IV.—The Simple Word.

Speech is the great organ which reveals the mind, the first visible form that it gives itself. As is the thought, so is the speech. To reform one's life in the sense of simplicity one must watch over word and pen. Let the word be simple, like the thought, and that it may be sincere and that it may be sure, think justly and frankly.

Speech is the great organ which reveals the mind, the first visible form that it gives itself. As is the thought, so is the speech.
