cial world. But the natural effect of realising sales with the good news out was to cause some reaction in the level of prices. The Lenden financial public has held a clearly defined conviction that the fall of Port Arthur would serve to hasten the end of the costly struggle in the Far East and bring to the world the benefits of an early peace. This opinion has been somewhat modified by the course of events during the week and the apprehension has grown up that the termination of the war is still indefinitely in the future. The disaster to the Russian arms has raised some misgivings also as to the success. tion of the war is still indefinitely in the fu-ture. The disaster to the Russian arms has raised some misgivings also as to the success of the forthcoming Russian loan and there has been some liquidation in the London market for Paris account, which is supposed to be due to the large commitments of that center of capital in Russian securities. This has caused a reflex expression to some extent in other great centers of capital.

In the case of the Northern Securities de-cision, the taking of profits has added influ-ence to the movement. In the first place, the determination to appeal the case and the stay thus effected in the proposed liquida-tion of the company comprises an indefinite

The belief continues general in the financial world that great projects are working out in the rathroad world and it is commonly expected that the great accumulation of money resources in New York this Spring, which seems inevitable, will be taken advantage of to secure the additional capital required for these projects. Rumors of their formation are vague and various, but stress is laid upon the supposed extension of the Rockefeller interest in New York Central and on the admitted intention to add Cassait, of the Pennsylvania, to the New Haven directorate, as going to show the direction of policy of the combination.

The money market has been abundantly supplied and passed through the annual estitement period with very slight symptoms of pressure which was relaxed almost immediately, contrary to the usual experience, which shows a continuation of pressure for several days after the turn of the year. This condition of the money market deprives the persistent outflow of gold of any substantial effect on affairs, sithough there is sentimental effect on affairs, aithough there is sentimental effect on the stock market.

week's exports of gold, for these shipments were included in the astimates and, moreover, the traceable gain was chiefly from the interior flow of currency. The net decrease
