

Goods Bought Tomorrow and Tuesday Charged on March Account

Lipman, Wolfe & Co.

A Great Embroidery Sale Tomorrow

The values offered in this sale are of such phenomenal worth that every woman who participates will have ample cause for feeling grateful to this store for many moons.

35c to 50c Embroideries 24c

50c to 65c Embroideries 29c

75c to $1 Embroideries 37c

$1 to $1.50 Embroideries 47c

These in cambric only—12 inches wide.

Cambric, nainsook and Swiss—12 to 16 inches.

Cambric nainsook and Swiss—12 to 16 inches.

Cambric and Swiss only—16 inches.

$3.50 Curtains $2.79

Scotch Lace Curtains in arabe, cream and white; wide variety of cluny and Renaissance patterns; splendid value.

Women's Hosiery 50c

Most exceptional values—equal to goods shown elsewhere at 75c, 85c; all newest designs of embroidered effects and colors.

$1.00 Buckles 25c

Great variety of fancy Belt Buckles in gilt, silver and oxidized finishes; 50c to $1.00 values at .25c.

12c Kerchiefs 7c

Women's Pure linen hemstitched Handkerchiefs, good 12 1/2c value—today at .7c.

65c-85c Veils 49c

Big special purchase of lace and chiffon veils underprice; best 65c, 75c and 85c grades...49c.

20c Stockings 15c

Boys' and Girls' School Stockings, fine ribbed, have double knees, perfect toes, absolutely fast black.

Women's Apparel for Spring Wear

Every woman who is in need of outer-to-wear garments for Spring, owes it to herself to inspect the showing we make tomorrow. Our greatest efforts are behind this display—every iota of mercantile knowledge we possess has been used to make the display worthy of us and of you.

JOVERT JACKETS—Made of all-wool Covert Cloths in various shades of tan, collarless and notched collar effects, 19 to 24-inch lengths; some plain, others strapped, stitched, appliqued and cloth lined. Silk, satin and serge lined $10.00 and up to $35.00.

SILK TAILOR-MADE AND SHIRTWAIST SUITS—In green, brown, navy blue, black and changeable colorings; in Redingote Blouse and novelty styles $12.50 to $50.00.

CLOTH TAILOR-MADE SUITS—In plain and fancy styles of Panama Cloths, Broadcloths, Cheviots, Serges, Fancy Mixtures, etc., up from $16.50.

WAISTS—We've simply outdone ourselves in our Waist Store. Come prepared to see the handsomest collection of Waists in the Northwest—of Crepe de Chine, Pannu Crepe, Messaline, Louissine, Chiffon, Taffeta, Mulls, Lawns and Batistes—in lingerie and plainer effects as well. Prices are remarkably low.

Great Sale of Silks at One Dollar

The Silks we place on sale tomorrow at one dollar are positively the best values procurable anywhere at the price. They will more than hold their own when compared with those SHOWN ELSEWHERE at $1.25 and $1.50.

Swivel Gras de Londres, Broken Check Surahs, Checked and Swivel Louissines, Figured Chiffon Taffetas, Coin-Dot Messalines, Plain Chiffon Taffetas, Monotone, Checked Louissines, Changeable Chiffon Taffeta, Cheney Taffeta Melange, Plain Messalines, Checked Messalines, Singapore Punjab Silks.

$1.00 Pongee 75c

We offer for tomorrow one thousand yards of Fern Pongee Silk, 25 inches wide, which we guarantee to be equal to the elsewhere $1.00 quality, at the very low price of .75c.

Chiffon Faille $1.25

These are a silken fabric entirely new this season, are 21 inches wide and are warranted to give satisfactory wear. Identical in quality with those shown elsewhere at $1.50.

Messalines $1.25

Also known as Monotone Messaline Merodeaux, a beautiful soft imported silk in a large variety of color combinations; fully equal to anything shown elsewhere at $1.50.

Cut Glass

Inventory disclosed the fact that we are overstocked with Cut Glass Berry Bowls and Water Bottles. Don't know of any better method of getting rid of this surplus than reducing prices—You benefit like this:

- 4.50 Water Bottles... $ 3.38
5.00 Water Bottles... 3.75
5.50 Water Bottles... 4.13
6.75 Water Bottles... 5.09
7.50 Water Bottles... 5.63
11.50 Water Bottles... 8.63
13.50 Water Bottles... 10.13
5.50 Berry Bowls... 4.13
6.00 Berry Bowls... 4.50
7.00 Berry Bowls... 5.25
9.00 Berry Bowls... 6.75
12.50 Berry Bowls... 9.38
15.00 Berry Bowls... 11.25
25.00 Berry Bowls... 18.75

All other in-between prices on sale at a like reduction of One-Fourth.

Art Department

Those who wish to take advantage of our Free Instruction in Water Color Painting should make arrangements for joining the Second Class tomorrow before 12 o'clock.

ART NEEDLE WORK.

Fashions change in this as well as in other things. Just now English Eyelet Embroidery is the thing. Two specials—CORSET COVERS stamped in English Eyelet Embroidery on fine French Cambric...75c. SHIRT WAISTS stamped in English Eyelet Embroidery on mercerized fabrics...$1.50. Free lessons every day.

Genuine Imported English Crepe 25c

We place on sale tomorrow a large shipment of genuine Japanese Crepes at 25c per yard. They are our own importation and are the handsomest and best Japanese Crepes ever shown in this city. A most remarkable value at .25c.

'Twill Pay You to Buy Your Easter Gloves Now

- $1.00 for 2-clasp "Rigo" overscam Kid Gloves, one row Pouterie embroidery, all colors.
$1.50 for 3-clasp "Carlyle" quality tre-fousse overscam Kid Gloves, Paris point embroidery, all shades.
$1.50 for 3-clasp Livo overscam Suede Gloves, Fillet embroidery, black, white, mode and slate.
$1.50 for 2-clasp Tanforan English Walking Gloves, Paris point embroidery, red, gray, tan and white.
$2.00 for 2-clasp Tre-fousse pique Suede and Kid Gloves, Paris point and fancy embroidery, all colors.

- $1.49 instead of $1.75 for 3-clasp Com-point embroidery, black only.
$1.49 instead of $1.75 for 2-clasp Livo don quality Tre-fousse pique Suede Gloves, Paris point embroidery, black, white, mode and slate.
$1.49 instead of $1.75 for 1-clasp, two-toned pique Gloves, fancy embroidery, brown and onion, navy and green, green and navy, white with black, red and white, red and black.
$1.69 instead of $2.00 for 2-clasp overscam Consuelo Kid Gloves, fancy embroidery, pink, mode, sky lavender, champagne and white; fancy stitching.

- $1.25 for 2-clasp "Dena" overscam Kid Gloves, Paris point embroidery, all shades.
$1.50 for 2-clasp Livo pique Kid Gloves, Paris point and fancy embroidery, all shades.
$1.75 for 2-clasp Reymier, overscam Suede Gloves, Fillet embroidery, black only.
$2.00 for 2-button Dent's English Walking Gloves, self sewn, Paris point and spear back embroidery, in Havana and English red.
$2.00 for 3-clasp Tre-fousse overscam Kid Gloves, Paris point embroidery and fancy embroidery, all colors.

Lipman, Wolfe & Co.

WRONG, THEY SAY

Few Portland Men Agree With Osler.

AGE NO BAR TO MENTALITY

Men Past Forty Accomplish Great Things.

ON WORLD'S ROLL OF HONOR

Many of the Intellectual Giants Have Given Their Best to Mankind in Their Latest Years.

A day or two ago Dr. William Osler, on the occasion of his departure from Johns Hopkins to accept a chair at Oxford, delivered an address, in which he declared that a man became passe at 40, and at 60 became 'so useless to society that he should be retired or chloroformed.'

In order to get a consensus of the best opinion in Portland on the subject, prominent professional men were asked to express themselves on the subject. Some kindly responded, and below are given their views: Ex-Judge McGinn Agrees.

Ex-Judge Henry McGinn is one of the few who agree with Dr. Osler. "He's right," he answered. "After 40 a man loses his enthusiasm and his zest. It is the young men, the boys, one might say, who are doing and have done the great things. I'm well across on the wrong side of the deadline; so I can talk frankly. After a man's destiny is fixed, the inspiration is gone. If he has succeeded reasonably well, he is satisfied, and if he has failed, he is hopeless. Dr. Osler is right, and he has experience to support him in his statement."

Right Within Limitations. "Within certain limitations, the doctor is right," said Dr. J. Whitcomb Brounger, of the White Temple. "By the time a man reaches 40 his course in life is usually fixed, and the man who discovers or develops any great truth, whether of religion, science, art, philosophy, or literature, does so before passing that age limit. There are, of course, exceptions, but in the main the rule will hold good."

Absurd and Ridiculous, He Says. "I regard Dr. Osler's statement as absurd and ridiculous," said Rufus Mallory. "There are many and many instances where men have done their most useful and beneficial acts after they have passed even their sixtieth year."

Depends on the Individual. "It depends entirely upon the individual," said C. A. Dodge when questioned as to his opinion on the usefulness of men after they have passed their fortieth year. "Some men are useful after the age of 40, or even 70 years of age, while others under 40 are of no use whatever, either to themselves or to others. If Dr. Osler is of the latter class, I hope he will be given his choice either of retirement or chloroform, as stated by the doctor; and if he is near the limit, he need not wait on my account."

Judgment Not Warranted. Archbishop Alexander Christie said: "Dr. Osler's gloomy judgment upon men who have passed the age of 40 years is hardly warranted by the evidence at hand. It is a little rash to run counter to a universal persuasion, and certainly the conviction of society is that it is at the age of 40 that her members attain that maturity of mind and stability of character which fit men for the weightier responsibilities of life."

Thinks Dr. Osler Wrong. "The statement made by Dr. Osler in Baltimore regarding a man's usefulness after 40 years of age is, in my opinion, foolishly based on the evidence at hand. Joseph Simon, when questioned concerning the matter, 'My personal observation has been decidedly to the contrary,' continued Mr. Simon. 'I believe a great number, in fact, the majority of men, accomplish more after they have passed their fortieth year than before.'"

"A man doesn't reach the prime of life until he has passed 40 years. The tendency of mankind is to live longer in this highly civilized age than they did in past generations. This naturally lengthens a man's age of usefulness. Dr. Osler's theory might apply to the races that inhabited the world several centuries back, but it is decidedly out of place in this advanced stage of civilization."

Self-Evident Absurdity. Dr. A. E. Rockey said, when asked for his opinion: "The absurdity of Dr. Osler's statements should be self-evident to every inhabitant of the city of which George H. Williams is Mayor. Age as applied to the decline of physical or mental vigor is a relative term. Certain physical changes known as senile degenerations begin with some persons quite early in life. Presumably bald and gray heads are in common evidence. Atheroma and sclerosis of the arteries with attendant disturbances of the heart, kidneys and nervous system are of similar type, but less conspicuous, because they require physical examination to detect their presence in early stages. The great majority of persons, however, escape these degenerations when they occur at all until a much later period in life than that mentioned by Dr. Osler. Mental vigor is maintained to a much later period than physical vigor. An absolutely youthful condition of the tissues, histologically speaking, is not at all uncommon in the seventies and even in the eighties. Surgeons have abundantly demonstrated this. To mention the intellectual giants who have past middle life made history in war, politics, music, poetry, art and science, would be to read from the world's roll of honor thousands of names which may well fill us with pride and admiration at the great achievements of mature men."

Agrees With Osler. "I am fully in accord with Dr. Osler's views as expressed in a speech at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore last Wednesday evening," says Dr. K. A. J. Mackenzie. "The world's annals abundantly prove that the play of genius in the arts and sciences and in all departments of life, takes place between the ages of 25 and 40. After 40 it is sporadic and spasmodic. Men are successful in all walks of life after 40—of course, you say—but they are working in and from the edifice built up during the early productive period of life and of genius. The man of 50 is entirely out of place in the business and professional world. The aged Senators who have rallied

JUST A QUITTER

Boring's Town-Terror Done by Prize Fighter.

BUNGOED BY TOMMY BURNS

Meets Noted Pugilist Under an Alias.

THINKS HE HAS EASY MARK

When He Gets a Blow in the Stomach, Free Coldwell Screams "No Fair," and Quits for Good.

Have you ever heard of Free Coldwell, prizefighter? Guess not. For the reason that he has been the town pest at Boring for several months and last night he got "his." Coldwell has been posing as a full-fledged prizefighter at this little Oregon burg for several months. In that short space of time he has walloped into dreamland several Boringistic aspirants. These victories gave him the impression that he was a second Champion Jeffries. Coldwell became a swashbuckler of the ancient times and he swaggered about until he became a town pest. Several of the good citizens of this growing town read through The Oregonian that Tommy Burns was training in Portland for his match with Jack "Twid" Sullivan. They wanted to get rid of this up-to-date swashbuckler, so they hiked to Portland and requested that Burns put him out of business.

He Meets Mr. Bruno. This caused a hundred local fight fans last night to journey to Boring to see an alleged prizefighter. The news that a good thing was to be pulled off. They did not see a good thing, but they had the pleasure of seeing an alleged prizefighter quit like a school kid. Coldwell looks like Fitzsimmons. He is sorrel topped, nas arms like a gorilla, has the heart of a snail, and has the punch of an infant. Coldwell was itching for a fight, so when the job was put up on him he fell to it as easy as old Farmer Vane, when he was gold-bricked out of $10,000. Four rounds he stood up before Burns, who was introduced as "Mr. Bruno," and during those four rounds he thought he had knocked Burns down twice. Some of the innocent gillies of Boring thought that Coldwell had Bruno going and they howled their heads off. They actually thought that the red-headed quipster could get his breath in another fight, but a short-arm jab to the nose, in the fourth round gave Coldwell a change of thought.

When the delegation of citizens waited on Tommy Burns and his manager, Larry McKenny, the only request that they made was that Burns would not kill Coldwell. They made this request because they did not want to go to the expense of paying for his funeral. Burns and McKenny promised this, and the fight was held in a building that is sometimes used as a lodgeroom. A rig was stretched that would not hurt two infants, and Burns, all the time he was in the ring, was fearful that he would break through the floor. Coldwell saw Burns, looked at his own image in a mirror and concluded he could whip a whole backmask County of "Mr. Bruno." McKenny asked him before the fight how he wished to split up the $450. He wanted the winner to take all and the loser to pay the expense of the hospital bill. The 75 cents was charged for the hat because there was to be a dance after the fight. Tommy Tracey was referee and Coldwell, after he saw Burns, promised Tracey that he, Coldwell, would pay him for services. Burns was 40 pounds lighter than Tracey, well, and for that reason the latter promised his friends present that he would finish him in five minutes.

Allowed to Stay Four Rounds. But he did not. Burns let him stay for four rounds. Then he cut loose. A jab to the nose in the fourth chapter brought the blood that was a shade darker than his hair. In the fifth, in a clinch, Burns walloped Coldwell in the stomach. It was just a tap, but just as soon as the red-headed quipster could get his breath he howled: "It's no fair to hit a man in the stomach. That's foul."

Tommy Tracey almost threw a fit. The timekeeper waited two minutes for the Boring burg to answer the charge of holding up Albert Hoer's saloon, at 753 Hood street, several nights ago. Hoer and F. Finley testified that Treau had searched the men present under Marchand's orders, and that they both were without masks. They recognized the two men without trouble. There was no doubt regarding Marchand from the beginning, and Treau's part was not so obvious, as he had entered the saloon a moment earlier than Marchand and was unarmed. He also remained after Marchand and left and seemed anxious to telephone the police. Treau's complicity was testified to by Detective Hartman, who said that Treau was in Marchand's room, asking to Marchand's wife when arrested.

SHIPS, but as to intellectual development, he is entirely at fault. Very few men ever reach the zenith of their intellectual development or knowledge until they have passed the age of 40. It is generally between the ages of 40 to 45 years.

"As a general rule, I do not believe young men acquire a fixed or conservative idea of the great problems of life until they have reached or passed their 40th year. It is after that age that the large majority of intellectual achievements are accomplished."

SIGSBEE AT SANTO DOMINGO

He Has Gone There With Flagship Since Attack on Morales.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Admiral Sigsbee is due tonight at Santo Domingo on his flagship Newark, having sailed yesterday from Guantanamo. His movements are in accordance with a programme cabled to the Navy Department before the recent attempt at the assassination of President Morales, and it is said at the department that this event has caused a change in the naval movements.

HASTEN ACTION ON DOMINGO

Senate Committee Will Consider Protocol During Sessions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The foreign relations committee of the Senate, on motion of Chairman Cullom, was today authorized to sit during sessions of the Senate. The purpose of the committee is to take up the Santo Domingo protocol and consider it as far as possible at this session. It is not expected to report it until the Senate is convened in special session for executive business, but immediate consideration of the protocol in the committee will greatly facilitate the work of that session.

Legacy Tax Does Not Date Back.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—From $5,000,000 to $5,000,000 in taxes upon legacies will be cut off from the Federal Government by an opinion handed down today by the Circuit Court at Appeals. The opinion sustains a decision of Judge Lacombe, of the United States Circuit Court, some time ago, in which he held that estates of persons who died before July 1, 1901, could not be taxed under the Federal legacy law.

WRONG, THEY SAY

Few Portland Men Agree With Osler.

AGE NO BAR TO MENTALITY

Men Past Forty Accomplish Great Things.

ON WORLD'S ROLL OF HONOR

Many of the Intellectual Giants Have Given Their Best to Mankind in Their Latest Years.

A day or two ago Dr. William Osler, on the occasion of his departure from Johns Hopkins to accept a chair at Oxford, delivered an address, in which he declared that a man became passe at 40, and at 60 became 'so useless to society that he should be retired or chloroformed.'

In order to get a consensus of the best opinion in Portland on the subject, prominent professional men were asked to express themselves on the subject. Some kindly responded, and below are given their views: Ex-Judge McGinn Agrees.

Ex-Judge Henry McGinn is one of the few who agree with Dr. Osler. "He's right," he answered. "After 40 a man loses his enthusiasm and his zest. It is the young men, the boys, one might say, who are doing and have done the great things. I'm well across on the wrong side of the deadline; so I can talk frankly. After a man's destiny is fixed, the inspiration is gone. If he has succeeded reasonably well, he is satisfied, and if he has failed, he is hopeless. Dr. Osler is right, and he has experience to support him in his statement."

Right Within Limitations. "Within certain limitations, the doctor is right," said Dr. J. Whitcomb Brounger, of the White Temple. "By the time a man reaches 40 his course in life is usually fixed, and the man who discovers or develops any great truth, whether of religion, science, art, philosophy, or literature, does so before passing that age limit. There are, of course, exceptions, but in the main the rule will hold good."

Absurd and Ridiculous, He Says. "I regard Dr. Osler's statement as absurd and ridiculous," said Rufus Mallory. "There are many and many instances where men have done their most useful and beneficial acts after they have passed even their sixtieth year."

Depends on the Individual. "It depends entirely upon the individual," said C. A. Dodge when questioned as to his opinion on the usefulness of men after they have passed their fortieth year. "Some men are useful after the age of 40, or even 70 years of age, while others under 40 are of no use whatever, either to themselves or to others. If Dr. Osler is of the latter class, I hope he will be given his choice either of retirement or chloroform, as stated by the doctor; and if he is near the limit, he need not wait on my account."

Judgment Not Warranted. Archbishop Alexander Christie said: "Dr. Osler's gloomy judgment upon men who have passed the age of 40 years is hardly warranted by the evidence at hand. It is a little rash to run counter to a universal persuasion, and certainly the conviction of society is that it is at the age of 40 that her members attain that maturity of mind and stability of character which fit men for the weightier responsibilities of life."

Thinks Dr. Osler Wrong. "The statement made by Dr. Osler in Baltimore regarding a man's usefulness after 40 years of age is, in my opinion, foolishly based on the evidence at hand. It is a little rash to run counter to a universal persuasion, and certainly the conviction of society is that it is at the age of 40 that her members attain that maturity of mind and stability of character which fit men for the weightier responsibilities of life."

Self-Evident Absurdity. Dr. A. E. Rockey said, when asked for his opinion: "The absurdity of Dr. Osler's statements should be self-evident to every inhabitant of the city of which George H. Williams is Mayor. Age as applied to the decline of physical or mental vigor is a relative term. Certain physical changes known as senile degenerations begin with some persons quite early in life. Presumably bald and gray heads are in common evidence. Atheroma and sclerosis of the arteries with attendant disturbances of the heart, kidneys and nervous system are of similar type, but less conspicuous, because they require physical examination to detect their presence in early stages. The great majority of persons, however, escape these degenerations when they occur at all until a much later period in life than that mentioned by Dr. Osler. Mental vigor is maintained to a much later period than physical vigor. An absolutely youthful condition of the tissues, histologically speaking, is not at all uncommon in the seventies and even in the eighties. Surgeons have abundantly demonstrated this. To mention the intellectual giants who have past middle life made history in war, politics, music, poetry, art and science, would be to read from the world's roll of honor thousands of names which may well fill us with pride and admiration at the great achievements of mature men."

Agrees With Osler. "I am fully in accord with Dr. Osler's views as expressed in a speech at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore last Wednesday evening," says Dr. K. A. J. Mackenzie. "The world's annals abundantly prove that the play of genius in the arts and sciences and in all departments of life, takes place between the ages of 25 and 40. After 40 it is sporadic and spasmodic. Men are successful in all walks of life after 40—of course, you say—but they are working in and from the edifice built up during the early productive period of life and of genius. The man of 50 is entirely out of place in the business and professional world. The aged Senators who have rallied

Have you ever heard of Free Coldwell, prizefighter? Guess not. For the reason that he has been the town pest at Boring for several months and last night he got "his." Coldwell has been posing as a full-fledged prizefighter at this little Oregon burg for several months. In that short space of time he has walloped into dreamland several Boringistic aspirants. These victories gave him the impression that he was a second Champion Jeffries. Coldwell became a swashbuckler of the ancient times and he swaggered about until he became a town pest. Several of the good citizens of this growing town read through The Oregonian that Tommy Burns was training in Portland for his match with Jack "Twid" Sullivan. They wanted to get rid of this up-to-date swashbuckler, so they hiked to Portland and requested that Burns put him out of business.

He Meets Mr. Bruno. This caused a hundred local fight fans last night to journey to Boring to see an alleged prizefighter. The news that a good thing was to be pulled off. They did not see a good thing, but they had the pleasure of seeing an alleged prizefighter quit like a school kid. Coldwell looks like Fitzsimmons. He is sorrel topped, nas arms like a gorilla, has the heart of a snail, and has the punch of an infant. Coldwell was itching for a fight, so when the job was put up on him he fell to it as easy as old Farmer Vane, when he was gold-bricked out of $10,000. Four rounds he stood up before Burns, who was introduced as "Mr. Bruno," and during those four rounds he thought he had knocked Burns down twice. Some of the innocent gillies of Boring thought that Coldwell had Bruno going and they howled their heads off. They actually thought that the red-headed quipster could get his breath in another fight, but a short-arm jab to the nose, in the fourth round gave Coldwell a change of thought.