German Ship Henriette Chartered to Load for Niuchwang-Flour Demand Subsides-Another Attempt to Float Elder.

It is believed that the captain and crew of the schooner C. A. Klose, which was abandoned off Heceta Hond, were taken off by a parcing vessel and are now on their way to some Coast port. This is the only theet; by which local mariners can account for their desertion of the vessel while are still remained affoat, as the men would hardly strike out for land in such bolsterous weather with the schooner 10 miles off shore.

It is probable that the derelict will be picked up soon by one of the coasters in the vicinity, which will stand a show of finding her sooner than the tug show of inding her sooner than the tug which left San Francisco Priday night to make a search. The Nome City and the Northland, from this city, and the Redondo and Cascade, coming north, may encounier the schooner. Orders have also been sent to the Alliance, which has been burbound at Cook Bay, to keep a sharp lookout for the Klose on her way to Portland.

ASTORIA Or., March 25.—(Special.)—
The bar ting Walluia, while outside this afternoon, sighted two four-masted schooners in the offing and started after one of them, but the schooner put off shore again. The ting then returned and picked up the oil harge Santa Paula. As she was crossing in with the barge about t o'clock this afternoon she sighted a three-masted schooner, with only a small jib set, heading north about four nilles south of the lightship. While nothing definite is known, this vessel is thought to be the derelict schooner C. A. Klose, and the ting will leave tomorrow morning to search for her.

As the line to North Head is down, Captain Stuart came to Astoria in a small boat to notify the tugs. There is little question but that the versel is the derelict schooner Klose.

The terrific gale that has been raging off the coast during the past week reached its height less night. Today the wind moderated considerably, and as the glass is rising steadily this evening the indications are favorable for better weather tomorrow. The bar, however, continues very rough, but the steam schooner Kliburn croesed out this afternoon, and the steamer Whittier, with the oil barge Santa Paula, crossed in. Consider the difference between a home where there is a plano and the children are growing up anyoring all the pleasures and refinements which music offers, and one in which there is none and every member of the family is feeling the lack of it and perhaps seesing the pleasure elsewhere. In the light of present opportunities for buying, decile which your home shall be. It only requires the decision in order to have a plano. The Ellers Plano, House present co-operative plans of selling planos opens the way for every one to have this present-day necessity.

Prices on every instrument we carry are now practically wholesale, and an abundance of time is granted in which to complete your purchase.

For Ill club mombers are accuring planos that ordinarily sell for 200, and the cash payment is but it. What family is there in these days of prosperity who cannot easily raise that sum? And the weekly payments are only $1.5.

It is really a reproach to a man under such favorable buying conditions as we are now offering, who does not provide a plans for his family.

Although the plands in Club "A" above referred to are most excellent in both tone and wearing qualities, buyers do not need to stop at these. Our very finest makes in rareat art styles, are included in this sale—the splendid Chickering, of Boston; the famous artists' favorite, the Weber, of New York, and the worderfully popular kimball, of Chicago—are in the co-operative proposition. Payments on three planos for club members are only $25 to $30 down, according to price, and weekly payments $1 to $5.

Prices and payments in all the other clubs proportionately reasonable.
