who even thinks that he can lick Jeffries." Smith continued. "Well, I do, and why abouid I be given a chance? I've got the nerve to believe I can and that is the truth. I have seen Jeffries fight and know what he can do. And here is something I know I can do: I can knock any man down who ever lived if I can but iand on him. And I have boxed some; in fact, a great deal, but always in private."

ing lenses that are only half satisfactory." If those persons who think they are fitting their own eyes knew how difficult it will be for them to get satisfaction from glasses when old age comes on they would not try to be their own optician. Scarcely a day passes that we do not have some elderly man or woman say. "I always fitted my own eyes but now I can't get any glasses that are satisfactory." There's the rub. The use of improper lenses has done the work and it's too inte to go to the op-tieins. The muscles of the eyes have lost their accommodation and such a thing as comfortable reading is now an impossibility.
