Military Commands Will Be at the Fair.

MODEL CAMP IS PROVIDED

Sixty Acres Set Apart for Soldiers Along River.

Attractive Site to Be Fully Equipped So as to Accommodate Several Thousand Soldiers at One Time.

Sixty acres of land bordering on the river at the Lewis and Clark Exposition were set apart yesterday morning as the site of a model military camp. So persistent have been the applications from military organizations all over the United States for camping ground that the Exposition management has decided to create a new department. Plans will be made at once for the pest equipped model camps ever provided at an Exposition, They will be made sufficiently large to nodate several thousand troops at one time The routine of army life will be carried on each day. There will be service calls, from reveille to taps, guard mounting, fatigue and police duty, drills, retreat parades and dress parades, and all the other features common to a force of soldiers in camp or garrison.

Come From Long Distances.

Some of the crack military organiza-tions of the country are already included in the lists of those that will come here. Distance seems to be no drawback with the commands. The cadet corps of the Maryland Agricultural College is com-pleting arrangements to attend, while others are coming that travel nearly as Several trophies which are to be offered will undoubtedly serve to cause the best drilling that was ever witnessed. It is intended to offer a prize for the best-grilled battalion, for the best-drilled company, for the best guard-mounting exhibition and for the organization that is highest in efficiency in all the points of manual. Judges will be appointed from the Regular Army and all awards will be made on the latest infantry regu-lations of the United States Army. During their stay at the Fair soldiers who occupy the model camp will be atlowed free admission to the grounds and all parts of the Exposition. Visitors will be allowed to visit the model camp at certain hours of the day, the soldiers being granted several hours' immunity from visitors in which to attend to camp Correspondence has been exchanged with Washington officials relative to bringing West Point cadets to the Fair, but no definite result has been obtained. Now that the camp site has been set apart and it has been definitely decided to hold military maneuvers, a determined effort will be made to have the West momentous anniversary of the great Oregon exploration. This monument is appropriate to the Fair, as it is what has grown from his ideas."

Contract for Idaho Building.

The contract for the erection of the Exposition was let yesterday by Executive Commissioner Robert W. Mc-Bride, from Idaho, to the Burrell Con-struction Company, of Portland. The structure will cost $8900. It is expected that the building will have been erected inside of 21 days, when work on the installation of the exhibits will begin. J. A. Fennell, the architect of the building, who is in Portland, returns to Boise today.

PRESIDENT OF LEWIS AND CLARK COMMISSION FOR STATE OF WASHINGTON

DR. J. J. SMITH, OF SEATTLE,

SEATTLE, April 1 .- (Special.) -- Dr. J. J. Smith, president of the Lewis and Clark Commission for the State of Washington, is one of the youngest and ablest men in public life in Oregon's sector state. He has been a member of the State Senate from King County for two terms, and prior to that time served in the Lower House. ing physician, and makes his home in Enumeiaw. Prior to the last state conventions. Dr. Smith was a candidate from King County for the no of Governor. His backing did not come from King County alone. Republican politiciane throughout the state who had been associated with Dr. Smith in past political deals were among his strongest supporters, and had he carried his fight into the state convention, the prediction among politicians was general that he would have made a splendid showing, and in all probability been nominated. Political condition in King County, however, arose which convinced Dr. Smith and his friends that it would be wise for him to withdraw. These conditions involved the candidacy of Mr. Piles for the United States Senate. Had Dr. Smith continued in the race for Governor, his candidacy would have, in all probability, interfered with that of Mr Piles For that reason Dr Smith voluntarily withdraw and ment his time thereafter in trying to bring about Piles' election to the Senate.

His election as president of the Lewis and Clark Commission was regarded as a very wise one, as he is a man of plensing personality, executive ability, and pos-

AMPLE FACILITIES ASSURED

Twenty Thousand Strangers a Day Can Be Provided for Without Taxing Present Accommodations in the City.

According to the statements of hotel-keepers, restaurant men and the proprie-tors of lodging-houses, cafes and board-ing-houses, Portland will be able to feed 30,000 strangers on the opening day of the Exposition, and 25,000 people can be al-lotted comfortable quarters without taking into consideration the private rooms on the lists of the Lewis and Clark Ac-commodation Bureau. The people inter-ested have figured it down, and they de-by the clare that the city can care for her

In first and second-class hotels fully 4000 people can be given rooms. In other hotels, which may be deemed third-class, 1900 more can be accommodated. In first-class lodging-houses 1900 people can be housed with comfort, and in second and third-class lodging-houses 2000 more will be able to find shelter and a bed. It is also figured that 2000 people can be accommodated in private families, and tak-ing into consideration the rooms to be had in suburbs and also that a certain percentage of the visitors will spend the time in Portland with relatives and friends, it is estimated that the number without discomfort will reach 20,000.

"This talk about the city not being able to feed and lodge the Expostion visitors is without foundation," said a well-known hotel man yesterday. "The number of As Mr. Conger has been for some time strangers who can be accommodated is the dean of the diplomatic corps and enormous. The hotels will be able to care came to Portland from Spokane several for many thousands daily. There are the siege of the Legations here by the weeks ago, having quarreled with this several new hotels and lodging-houses Boxers in 1900, his departure is invested man, who was her consort at that time, just being opened, each one of which will with peculiar inferest. be able to care for a hundred or two. The regular hotels can squeeze in a great many people when every room is thrown open. Then there are lodging-houses without number, and private rooms in private residences all over the city. Minister. There will be plenty of room unless the attendance surpasses anything we now think reasonable. Personally, I think that at least 25,000 strangers can be com-fortably accommodated. While there is an abundance of room, there will be no excuse for raising rates beyond a slight advance. The hotelkeeper will have to raise his rates say 25 per cent, because his business will be transient, his guests will be with him a day, or two or three days, and there will be extra work as a equence of a continual change of ts. But to raise the rates above 25 per cent higher than they now are would be without excuse, and I do not think the hotel men will do it. We are going to have plenty of room."

Many New Restaurants.

The question of feeding the crowds does not raise so much of a question. It is expected that the restaurants and cafes will be crowded, but there is scarcely one who believes it will be impossible for the visitor to the Exposition to get his three square meals a day. At the present time, according to those conversant with the subject, there are restaurants, botels, boarding-houses and cafes enough to feed the 30,000 who can get rooms, and to do it easily. On top of this comes the fact that many such places are making preparations and alterations that will enable them to feed more than at present; that numerous boarding-houses not in existence at present will be in existence when the Exposition opens, and that new restaurants are expected to spring up like mushrooms between the present day and June I. It is the universal opinion of peo-ple who ought to know that Portland will be able to feed and house her guests at least to the extent of 20,000 strangers a day. Granted that the influx and exodus continue equal throughout the Centennial, all will puss off without the complaints that predominated at St. Louis during the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.
