DOG-EATERS NOT TO BE AT FAIR

Igorrotes to Keep Away From the Centennial Exposition Grounds.

DISAGREE AS TO TERMS

Agreement for Concession Is Not Satisfactory, So the Managers Decide Not to Make an Exhibit of Natives Here.

Turn loose the dogs, for the Igorrotes are not coming to make Portland their Summer home! Big Chief Tom-coley Ponce, and his brother-chief, Domocmat, Pidel, besting of brow and piercing of eye, with the marks of the head-trophy tattooed into their breasts, will not lead their band of untamed warriors against the peaceful kennels of the Exposition City. The village of the heathen children of Uncle Samuel will remain unresponsive to the war drum and the purring shuffle of naked dancing feet as the sons of the tropics wear their weird incantations, and all because of 10 per cent and $10,000.

Dr. T. K. Hunt, who is in charge of the band of 50 Igorrotes, now at Seattle, accompanied by C. S. Moody and the two chiefs, reached the city yesterday morning. Dr. Hunt and the natives to look over the grounds and see the sights. Mr. Moody to have an interview with President Goode and Mr. Wakenfield, of the Exposition. In the morning, while the sun-browned children of the wilderness were making awkward attempts to don the garb of civilization, after having had their pictures taken, Dr. Hunt told of his colony and stated that he would be here with the whole band on Friday next, to remain for the Exposition. In the evening, before the canine feast had been spread for the famished braves, the show was all off, and the fact was patent that the guests of the Exposition will not have the pleasure of listening to the war chant or gazing at the graceful contour of their dusky brethren from over the sea.

There has been trouble brewing in the Igorrote camp for several weeks, so it is said, and this has at last come to a head and ended in the decision of Mr. Moody and Dr. Hunt not to exhibit their band in Portland. The whole balk is over the terms of the concession wanted by the managers and asked by the Exposition officials.

Dr. Hunt and E. A. Felder, it seems, had the original concession promised them by the Lewis and Clark Corporation, which, though never formally ratified, provided that three villages should be brought here, one of Philippine, one of Negritos and one of Igorrotes. Dr. Hunt, who was for four years Civil Governor of the province from which the Igorrotes are brought, was to gather the crowd, while Mr. Felder was to furnish the expenses, advancing part of it for immediate expenses and depositing the rest for future calls. It is said that Dr. Hunt went to Manila, but upon his arrival there found no money, and after a time Mr. Moody, who agreed to help finance the deal, it was decided to reduce the camp to one tribe, and bring the Igorrotes alone, they being the wildest and most typical of the three.

In the meantime, it seems, Felder entered into negotiations, and upon the arrival of Hunt and Moody in Seattle with their band, wired the latter, offering him a sub-concession and urging him to drop Hunt out of the bargain. Later he wrote to Moody, saying it would be better for them all if the concession should be secured through him (Felder), inasmuch as he could get the concession for 15 per cent of the gross receipts, while it would cost the new firm 25 per cent, with an added bonus of $5,000 as insurance that the village would remain during the whole course of the fair.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Moody, after conference with President Goode, refused to accept the terms of the final proposition made to Hunt and Felder, and not being able to come to any agreement, he and his partner decided to drop the matter and not make any further attempt to come to the Exposition.

Dr. Hunt, Mr. Moody and the two natives returned to Seattle last night, where an elaborate dog feast will be given today in honor of the arrival of the band from across the ocean. It is thought that the village will remain in Seattle for a short time, when it is probable that a trip may be made to San Francisco, and later perhaps through the East. After that Dr. Hunt will take his charges back to the islands.

TOOK PART IN FAMOUS SIEGE

Four Igorrotes Who Fought Spanish to Be Seen at Fair.

SEATTLE, APRIL 22.—(Special.)—Four of the Igorrotes who participated in the siege of Bontoc 40 years ago and a son of one of the Philippine soldiers who defended that town are in the Hunt-Moody party that will be exhibited at Portland during the Lewis and Clark Exposition.

The aged Igorrotes who were indirectly responsible for that famous siege and the two victors the Igorrotes won against the Spaniards and a mixed soldiery is one of the men who will be exhibited in the Philippine village at the coming Exposition.

are afraid to estimate the number of years.

There was but a small garrison of Spanish and the siege did not last long. The flag was hung out and the cry of friendship "amigo" was sounded by the besieged garrison.

A detachment of Igorrotes entered the town to receive their money and settle upon terms of peace. While they were within the gates a detachment of Spanish and Filipino soldiery arrived and the Spanish Governor repudiated his first agreement. An effort was made to capture the peace envoys, but with two exceptions they escaped.

The siege was renewed and again the Igorrotes were successful. Again the cry of "amigo" was given, but this time the Igorrotes refused to accept their earnings. It is declared that the natives did not punish their enemies; those in the Portland party who were of the besieging party claim as much. They explain they could not take the money after the Spanish trick had been played, because it was tainted, and that they could not kill their enemies because they promised to be friendly.

A Filipino in the Spanish detachment married an Igorrote girl after he had settled in that country, and Julio, the interpreter for the party, is his son. Julio, by the way, selected the party that is en route to Portland. He owns the best house in Bontoc and is fairly wealthy. He dresses in European clothes and will not take part in the dances at the coming fair. He was in St. Louis serving under a contract that guaranteed him a year's salary at $25 per month and commissions. He will draw more at Portland.

BODIES OF TWO SUICIDES FOUND

Lad Fishing in the Willamette Discovers Remains of Dr. R. S. Paulin.

CORPSE IN DENSE WOODS

While Looking for a Stray Cow, Two Boys Run Across the Body of C. K. Borgstrand With the Throat Cut.

While seated on the bank of the Willamette, below Riverview Cemetery, George Schmedeck saw the body of a man floating down stream. The lad was

TWO IGORROTE CHIEFS ARRIVE IN PORTLAND.

Paquon, the cook; Bagoos, Gatonen and Fallon are the four Igorrotes who were in the party that made the attack on Bontoc 40 years ago. Fallon contracted a cold on his way across the Pacific and is in a local hospital.

In the party of Igorrotes there is a medicine man, Mandol, whom Dr. T. K. Hunt refused to allow to treat Fallon. A medicine man, by the way, is something that was not possessed at St. Louis.

SHE DELAYS GIVING BAIL

Mrs. Chadwick Stays in Jail Till the Bankruptcy Case Ends.

CLEVELAND, O., April 22.—Bail was not offered today for the release of Mrs. Cassie Chadwick, pending the hearing of her application to the Circuit Court of Appeals, as previously announced would be done on this date. At the conclusion of a conference between ex-Judge Wing and Mrs. Chadwick at the County Jail, the latter said that it had been decided not to offer bail until after the final hearing of the bankruptcy proceedings against her. This hearing will take place before Referee Remington on May 2.

Oak Barks for Whalers.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—(Special.)—When the whaling season opens next Spring, at least two additions will have been made to the fleet which annually sails from this port. They will be bark-—strong whiteoak barks of New England build and superior in workmanship, capacity and finish to any of the present fleet. Moreover, each of these vessels will be fitted with a 25-horsepower gasoline engine.

Deputy Coroner A. L. Finlay went to the scene and took the body to his undertaking establishment. There letters were found in the pockets that identified the man, and clearly established in the minds of the officials that he committed suicide.

"Hope this letter will find you well and cheerful," ran one message, in a woman's hand, and signed "Faustina." "You must not get discouraged. I know work will come to you if you persevere. I am sorry I cannot send you any money."

Another letter was from his landlord, ordering him to vacate room 23, Mohawk building. From these two letters it is thought the man was financially embarrassed, and from despondency jumped into the river. His body will be held, in the hope that some friends may come forward and save him from a pauper's grave. He had but 5 cents.

A lost cow led to the discovery of the body of C. K. Borgstrand, which was lying more than two miles north of Montavilla, in the dense woods. George Empkins, of 709 Smith street, and G. E. York, of 78 Smith street, were in search of a stray cow, when they came across the remains.

Deputy Coroner Baldwin responded to the call, and investigated. He removed the body to the Finlay undertaking establishment. A small dagger was found on one side of the body. The throat was badly cut. It is thought the deed was done Sunday, April 2, as an Oregonian of that date was found on one side of the victim.

Borgstrand is not known here, and was identified by deposit books on the Security Savings Bank, of Hellingham, Wash., and the Canadian Bank of Commerce, of Portland. In the former he had a balance of $200 and in the latter a balance of $235, according to his books. He had $2.40 in change in his pockets. He wore a suit of almost new clothing, manufactured by a Portland tailor. He was of middle age. His body will be held pending developments.

Falls From a Street-Car.

Peter Naubark, a laborer living in Portland, was severely bruised about the head and neck last night about 8 o'clock by falling from a street-car near Flinders and Third street. He was rendered unconscious by the fall. Naubark was taken to the police station, where several stitches were taken in his forehead. It is thought that Naubark fell from the rear end of the platform, as the conductor was collecting fares at the time and did not see him fall. The car did not stop. He was discovered unconscious in the street by pedestrians. He revived after water had been dashed in his face.
