Gus Klopf, umpire, needs attention at the hands of an oculist. To lose a game in a listless, dont-care sort of manner fs bad enough, but to have the man behind the throne rob you of what little chance there is to make a score—that is the worst of all. It is not that Klopf actually obbed the team of its game, for no one ly enough that he does not intend the Portland aggregation should have anything in a tight pinch.

It was in the eighth that all the trouble happened. Tacoma had gained the run that gave it the match, and to that extent the visitors were on Easy street. Big Larry McLean started things going with a hit. Runkle sacrificed him to second and Cates walted his time and walked. French hit down to Eagan, who threw to Doyle, covering second. Doyle sent the hall to first, and Klopf waved his hand that the man was out. He waved fairly before the play had been completed and blocked the Webfooters of any hope of an blocked the Webfooters of any bope of an even break. After that, they gave up hoping, and it was a Tacoma game.

Thomas was in good form, and won his sixth game this season, without a defeat. For the most part, Portland was unable to hit him safely, and the men were out in the regulation one-two-three order. French, who pitched his first game on the home grounds, worked himself into a couple of bad holes at the start, but solved the puzzle without letting in a run-Laughlin walked. Then Lynch sacrificed. Eagan was forced at the plate, and Hap-py Hogan made the third out. Again, in ning to third, made a double play, unas-sisted. The story of the solitary run that was made through the entire game is soon told. McLaughlin opened with a two-base hit into left field, and Lynch followed with another in the same direction. Had Van Buren been in the field instead of holding down first base, there might have been a different story, but there is little use talking of "ifs."

When he killed off what might have been a chance for Portland to at least have tied the game, the storm broke least have tied the game, the storm broke loose. When the last man was out the angry fans broke into the field, and in an instant Klopf was the center of a surging crowd. Sticks and stones were buried at him, and for a time it looked as if he would get roughly handled. All the crowd needed was a leader. Klopf evidently knew this, for when he came to leave the grounds, he saw the crowd was still waiting, and he made his way to the city by a circuitous route. San Francisco fans were after Gusie while he operated there, and now he has the local fans on his heels. The question now is, how much is there of Klopf as umpire?

Annual Bench Exhibition Opens Wednesday.

POINTERS RIVAL TERRIERS

Canines in Whose Veins Flows the Bluest of Blood Will Compete for Prizes-Many Eastern Dogs Entered.

The Portland dog show, which opens next Wednesday, will run unusually strong towards two classes, hunters and terriers. The pointers will have the better of it in the first class and the fox and bull terriers will have an even showing in point of breeding and qualitys. The fox terriers are sure to be more plantiful.

The little, useless dogs and the big fellows are rather scare. The medium-sized, useful animals are presumably more highly valued, judging from the entries made. All varieties of setters and pointers, fox, bull and Airedale terriers, collies and cocker spaniels, make up the bulk of the show. There are a number of good fox tertriers owned here, especially the strain introduced by W. B. Fechheimer, but this year some of the very best fox terrier blood in the country will be represented. The Wandee fox terriers are the strongest competitors for honors here. They are owned by C. K. Harley, of San Francisco, and he has won the highest honors for his dogs in the country. The Sound country has also produced some fine entries, especially from the Morgan kennels in Se-attle.

The pointers are always strong rivals of the fox terriers for numbers and value of dogs exhibited. This year value of dogs exhibited. This year the pointers are far the best which have ever been introduced into this portion of the country. Frank J. Moore's Wootlon Bang, a famous dog, and Young Sam, by Plain Sam, out of Woolton Bang, owned by Charles Stratton, are probably the best Oregon dogs in the show. J. A. Taylor, with whom pointers are favorites, will enter a pointer pup. Three compelitors to these dogs have been entered from the East, and Oregon, although full of well-bred pointers, will have difficulty in upholding its prestige against these dogs. Narragansett was the winner at the Brooklyn show last year; Lands-downe's Bit of Courage and Mark's Rush have taken prizes in lesser East-ern shows. All three of these dogs have been brought by Ben Lewis, who will show here and in San Francisco.

Many fine collies are owned all over the Northwest, and the pick of these will be at the show. C. D. Nairn, of Ballsten, Or., and Dr. Strickland. of Oregon City, have good entries and the Glen Tana kennels, of Spokane, and T. P. McConnell, of Victoria, will each P. McConnell, of Victoria, will each have a string. Entries expected to make a good showing are Mrs. M. M. Wells' Theodore Roosevelt, Henry Berger's Ravenswood and Lady Clipper, M. N. Majo's Oregon Banker, and Prince Bob, owned by Mrs. & J. Bryan, of Falls City. The English setters, the popularity of which for hunting purposes is growing, will be a select class. T. P. McConnell's Mallwyd and Fanilia, C. W. Minor's Roy's Last Montez, both Seattle had four men left on third base after the fifth inning, but the needed hit was not forthcoming. Shields pitched so well that only once did Los Angeles get a man on base in the 11 innings after the lisastrous fifth.

Miller belted one to left field and on a hit-and-run play he slid into second while Frary was being retired at first. With two men out and the winning run only half-way home, Jimmy McHaie waited until he got three balls and two strikes on him and then he jammed a line drive into right field that would have netted him three bases had it been neces-sary, sending Miller home with the winning run. Cravath made a desperate effort to reach the ball, but seeing he could not, he ran to the bench and a lot of small boys had a mad race to capture the trophy of the great fight.
