Heard in the Rotundas

Game Warden J. W. Baker, of Cottage Grove, is in Portland arranging for a live bird exhibit at the Lewis & Clark Exposition.

"The deer are increasing, but the game birds, such as the Chinese pheasants, grouse and Oregon quail are rapidly disappearing and at the present rate it would not be many years before they were practically exterminated," said Mr. Baker at the Imperial Hotel yesterday.

"With the new game laws enacted by the Oregon Legislature we hope to give the birds better protection and shall prevent them being killed off so rapidly. We expect that the law prohibiting the sale of the game will prove a great factor in the better protection of the birds. There will not be such a demand for them as there has been heretofore."

"But from questions drawn from the reports of the deputy game wardens and my own observations I am satisfied that the deer are increasing and that there is no danger of their being killed off for years to come. The law prohibiting the sale of the large game animals has worked wonders for their protection."

"Within the last two months we have secured six convictions for the violation of the game laws. They were all in Lane and Douglas Counties. Four of them were for having deer in possession. The other two convictions were secured through violations of the game laws relating to Chinese pheasants."

"The worst case we had was that of W. Frost in Douglas County, who had 25 deer hides in his possession when arrested. He was fined $5 and costs, which aggregated about $60. We have more violations of the statutes relating to game in Douglas and Coos Counties than any of the others. That is a great deer country."

"We have more difficulty in apprehending hunters killing birds than the animals. If a man kills a deer he cannot prevent leaving traces, but with the pheasants it is entirely different. The small birds are so easily hidden, if a hunter sees a warden approaching he can throw the birds in the brush and escape detection."

"This winter we expect to turn a lot of the California quail losses in the Willamette Valley as we have reason to believe that they will thrive here. The California quail are very plentiful in Jackson County and that is where we will trap them. The Eastern or Bob White quail are increasing in the Willamette Valley. Last year we turned several dozen of them loose in the vicinity of Cottage Grove and we expect that within a few years they will be plentiful, provided they are not hunted too much."
