Underwriters Abandon Hope of Pulling Her From Rock.

MAY BE DISMANTLED SOON

Three Months' Work Has Been Use less, and Offers Are Wanted for Steamer as She Lies on Ledge at Goble.

'After 'many attempts to raise the eteamer Geo. W. Elder from the rock at Goble, the English underwriters re abandoned the vessel

It was announced yesterday that bids were to be advertised for. This means that the Elder will either be purchased by wreckers, dismantled and broken up, or that she will pass into the hands of a more fortunate ship-raiser men, who have watched the proceedings at Goble wish an opportunity to try raising the steamer. They have said that the plans tried by Archibald McFarlane, who has tried for over the underwriters, were wrong in principle. First the plan of crecting bulkheads inside the hull of the vessel was tried. Then a cofferdam was built under the bows. But no matter which plan was used, as soon as toe pumps had driven a certain amount of water from the sunken hull, in would pour understanding of the principles which govers the success of public libraries and like organizations.

Several librarians and educators from throughout the state were present as well as Miss Isom, of the Portiand Library, and her staff, and several Portland booklovers.

In a brief address before the morning session, Mayor George H. Williams paid a high tribute to the work of public institutions for the furthering of knowledge, and laid particular stress on the good to be derived from intel-

For days at a time Captains McFar-lane and McIntosh have worked with-out rest on the wreck. When the pumps were going they have gone days and nights without sleep. Apparently they have done all that experienced men could do. But the Eider is still on the rock at Gobie, and the underwriters decline to put up any longer.

May Yet Be Raised.

What the amount of the bids on the wreck will be is a problem. There will be two distinct classes of bids. Wrecking companies whose experts will calculate every dollar's worth in sight will undoubtedly submit several offers. Men who believe they can raise the vessel will take a long chance and make bids. The O. R. & N. Co. will now receive its insurance, and the money paid for the wreck will go to the underwriters. It has been an open secret that the owners of the vessel were quite willing to take the insurance instead of the steamer being placed in family any chance the Elder is raised. If by any chance the Elder is raised, it is believed that an entirely new bott.

it is believed that an entirely new bot-tom will have to be placed in her, as the pounding on the ledge in the Coundoubtedly damaged the plates considerably.

WHARVES ARE WHITE NOW

Coats of Whitewash Improve Appearance of Water Front.

By the time the Lewis and Clark Exposition opens the water front will pre-sent an appearance that will be a credit to the city instead of a shame. credit to the city instead of a shame. For years the docks and wharves along the Willamette have been an eyesore. Now they are being whitewashed. All along the river from the Portland Mills to the boneyard dazzling white has covered dingy planks and piles. Even the buildings which are none too safe look clean and white.

The work is done from a barge upon whica is operated a whitewash spraying machine. By June 1 nearly every wharf will be white.

There are still a number of spots along the river that could be male more attractive to the eye. The hulk of the old steamer Emma Hayward, near the foot of Stark street, is an offset to many whitewashed buildings.

Alliance Finds Business.

Carrying 56 passengers, eight carloads of freight for the East and 100 tons of local freight, the steamer Alliance arrived at 4:10 yesterday afternoon from San Francisco and way ports. The passenger traffic up the Coast has been devidedly increased within the last few days on account of the approach of the opening of the Exposition.

Another rumor concerning the steamer Telephone is affoat. Captains H. B. Ken-nedy and U. B. Scott arrived from Puget nd yesterday, and it is reported that the litigation in which the Telephone is involved will be settled, so that she may be taken around to Seattle. The Telephone has been tied up since she was Suit in Truilinger Estate.

OREGON CITY, Or., May 27.-(Special.) -D. N. Trullinger et al., children of the late Gabriel Trullinger by his first wife, have brought suit in the State Circuit Court for Clackamas County to set aside the deeds by which Trullinger left the greater portion of his estate of the esti-mated value of $15,000. The defendant in the suit is Erikke Truilinger, who, it is alleged, employed an undue influence in causing the deceased to deed to her his most valuable property after executing a will by the provisions of which it was directed that the property be sold and the proceeds equally divided among the widow and the surviving children.

Desirable Lots in Any Part of Town Immediately Find Purchasers, and Rates Rapidly Advancing Throughout City.

The real estate market has broadened out more in the past few weeks than at any time in years. For months past there has been the greatest activity in retail realty that the city has known and whole realty that the city has known and whole stretches of the retail districts have been practically sold out, some pieces several times within the year, and now the speculative instinct has grown until buyers are pientiful for a good piece of property in any locality. Prices anywhere in the city are stiffening rapidiy.

Though the largest two sales of the week were of down town property, the resident district has faired very well. South Portland, which has seen little transferring for a long time, even came in for its share, and the prices paid show that the sales were not sacrifices.
