WRITES NOTE TO

G. P. McIntyre Declares He Is Dis grace to Her and All His Friends and Is Not Fit to Live.

> * SUICIDE'S PATHETIC NOTE.

Dear Jen., My Wife: Hope you will my tools and trunk to my friend St.

I am no longer fit for you or this Sorry to leave you when you are sick, but see my old friend, John Lafferty, at Caradero, Or., and maybe he will help you while you are sick. voted little wife that ever lived. Am sorry I have to do this, but I cannot be a man any more, so think I am better off dead. I am a disgrace to you and to all our friends. You are a iittia queen-too good a little woman to waste time on me. I am, as ever, your husband, McIntyre had been married but about x months. His wife, who has been in poor health for several weeks, is hysterical over the sad affair and is be-ing attended by a physician in her apartments, 247% Fifth street.

That McIntyre had deliberately plan-ned to take his life was clearly shown by the fact that he penned a note to his wife, explaining his motives for mitting suicide. He was unable to shake off the habit he had formed for imbibing liquor, and became discour-aged on this account. Calling at the Bodega Saloon, 204

Washington street, McIntyre borrowed lead pencil and retired to a rear room, here he wrote the note published above, after which he drank the deadly

Men in the saloon noticed that McIn tyre did not come out of the room in a reasonable length of time, and went in to investigate. They found him almost dead, the note and pencil lying on the table and a bottle beside. He had Coroner Finley was summoned and took charge of the body, which was removed to the undertaking establishment of Finley & Son. The funeral arrangements have not been made as yet, owing to the condition of Mrs. McIntyre.

MRS. ERICKSON DISAPPEARS

Police Fear That Woman May Have Committed Suicide.

Throughout the night police searched the City of Portland for a trace of Mrs. Gus Erickson, who disappeared from her home on the East Side about 5 p'clock yesterdny afternoon and who has not been seen since that time. Mrs. Erickson is slightly demented, the result of severe illness, and has been in this condition for several weeks. It is feared by friends and relatives that she has taken her life. Circumstances connected with the case make it pe-culiarly sad, especially as five young children, the youngest an infant, are left without a mother through her disappearance.
When Mr. Erickson returned from work last evening he discovered that his wife was gone. From the state-ments of the children, he gathered the facts that she went away about 5 o'clock in the evening, taking with her a small telescope value containing some articles of apparel. Neighbors, questioned, said they had not Mrs. Erickson as she left the borhood. Friends and relatives neighborhood. DAVENPORT WILL LECTURE

Famous Cartoonist Will Appear at Marquam Theater Next Saturday.

The announcement that Homer Daven port is to lecture in Portland will be wel-come news to the many friends and ad-mirers of the famous cartonist, who is no less an entertainer than artist. Mr. Davenport will give the first of a series of lectures on "The Power of the Cartoon" at the Marquam Theater next Sat-urday evening. His lecture will deal with the part the carison plays in American life and politics, and his remarks will be illustrated with lightning sketches, revealing the artist's wonderful power with a stub of crayon or pencil.

In his lectures of the past in different parts of the country Mr. Davenport has parts of the country Mr. Davenport has achieved phenomenal success and attracted universal praise. Pens of great writers and critics everywhere have been dipped in admiring praise. Charles Dana Gheon, the well-known artist, said recently after hearing Mr. Davenport

"I was delighted with Davenport's lecture and fairly expressed my pleasure. He is just the same on the platform as off—that's the secret of his success." Of the same lecture the New York World had this to say: "Homer Davesport, the cartoonist, held a large audience in the Manhattan Theater raptly attentive yesterday while he lectured on 'The Power of the Cartoon'

His references of the early days at Silverton. Or., his birthplace, are of especial interest to local people. These little anecdotes of early days on the farm carry with them both tears and laughter. In his audience, no doubt, will be people who will recall the scenes of boyhood days he paints. Following the lecture at the Marquam Mr. Davenport may appear at several cities through-out the Northwest where he has been requested to lecture.

Mrs. Addle Foose Homrighous

Mrs. Addie Forse Homrighous, com and Clark Exposition, is a resident of and a social favorite. She is one of Oklahoma's brightest and most cultured women. She was appointed commissioner by Governor Furguson together with Ed L. Peckham, a former resident of Fortland, and Leander Martin, a former resident of Oklahoma, but now of Portland.

Weinberger insists that it is worth $45,000. To the visitors of the build-ing he explains in detail his acquisition of the table, saying he cut down 1500 trees to find it. He also points out to them bugs and snakes which are not distinguishable to any one but

The Washington people say that he has developed a mania concerning the table, and they look upon him as being irresponsible. It is for this reason that it is thought that he will be compelled to leave and to take his curiosity with him. The Washington people in the building have presented a petition to Commissioner Johnson, asking that some action be taken con-cerning the matter.

SEE THE GREAT PANORAMA

Now that the weather has cleared, fol lowing the recent heavy rains, the atmosphere is perfect to view the great mountain peaks of the Cascade Range which surround the city of Portland. Banquet Given for Japanese Director-General.

HOTEL PORTLAND SCENE

Japanese and Americans Exchange Felicities Over the Exposition and Good Will Existing Between Two Countries.

The Orient gave greeting to the Occi-dent last night at the Hotel Portland when Vice-Consul Tsuneji Aiba gave a dinner in honor of Ichihei Inc. director-general of the Japanese Exhibit Associa-tion for the Lewis and Clark Fair.

The main parlor of the Portland had been converted into a tea garden in far Japan by Manager Bowers, and from the Sapan by Manager Bowers, and from the time the guests passed through the doors into the banquet hall until they sought their homes at the close of the dinner the sights and sound of the Western Coast were left behind.

Coast were left behind.
The ceilings were hung with many colored lanterns, while on every hand were placed palms and other tropic plants and flowers, until even the air became Oriental to match the occasion.
The tables were hanked with roses and other flowers, both from the garden and the hothouse, the whole scheme making one of the most elaborate and beautiful dinner settings ever presented in the

At the conclusion of the repust, which was a sumptious one, I. N. Pleischner, the toastmaster of the sevning, introduced Mr. Alba, who responded to the toast. Mr. Alba, who responded to the toast "The President of the United States." H. W. Goode responded to Mr. Alba with a toast to "The Emperor of Japan."

Mr. Ito Expresses Japan's Good Will Following Mr. Goode's speech Mr. Aiba was asked to introduce Mr. Ito to the assembly as the guest of honor. Mr. Ito spoke through an interpreter, Jire Harada, the secretary of the Japanese commission, translating his speech to the guests around the table. The director-general in his remarks thanked the Exposition officials for their kindness to him when he was in the city last year as well as for their kindness since his recent arrival. The speaker since his recent arrival. The speaker then turned to the reasons causing the Japanese exhibit at the Exposition. There were many causes, the speaker said, why the Japanese government and people took so much interest in the United States and the American people, but the most eminent of all was the sympathy of the $0,000,000 of Japanese people who had nothing but friendly feelings for the Americans. That sympathy was not the Americans. That sympathy was not a thing of yesterday, but has been fos-tered by every resident of Japan since the time Admiral Perry and General Grant made their visit to the Islands. Japan had a special kindly regard for Oregon, said Mr. Ito, because Oregon was the only state represented at the Osaka Exposition in 1901. The speaker then told of why the government of Japan was im-pressed with the good of making an ex-hibit at Portland. It was on account of the resources of the state and of the city, of the beauty of the site and the impres siveness of the buildings, and for all of these reasons as well it was expected and predicted that the Exposition would be a great success. Mr. Ito closed by offering great success. Mr. Ito closed by offering a tonst to the Exposition and its officials. Judge W. D. Frenton spoke in response to the tonst of Mr. Ito, thanking the Japanese government and its people for the kindness and interest they had shown in Portland, the state and the Exposition.

At the conclusion of Mr. Fenton's speech Colonel Dosch told of his stay in Japan in 1968 and of the friends he had made while there. The list of speeches was closed by
