What the Government has done for the rivers and harbors of Oregon and the tributaries of the Columbia in Washington, what still remains to be done, together with statements of the benefits to be derived by the improvement projects are all set forth in the annual report of Major W. C. Langfitt, in charge of the United States Engineers in this district. The report covers the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, and is made to the Chief of Engineers at Washington.

From the report it is evident that much work must be done before the best results can be obtained. The channel from Portland to the sea requires attention. The Dalles-Cellio Canal will require an appropriation of $1,20,000 for the next appropriation of $1,20,000 for the next fiscal year, according to the recommen-dation of Major Langfitt; while to carry on the jetty work at the mouth of the Columbia will require $1,150,000. Money is on hand to begin the con-struction of the Cellio Canal, as Major Langfitt reports he has carried over $237,-620, with which 2500 feet at the upper end may be constructed.

The report states that in the region which will be benefited by the canal is produced 400,000,000 bushels of cereals, $1,500,000 worth of cattle and 16,000,000 pounds of wool, and that there is also 5,000,000 feet of standing timber. Major Langfitt reports that $3,779,724 is his estimate of the total cost of the project. estimate of the total cost of the project.

A 25-foot channel at mean low water has been the sim of the engineers in working on the Lower Willamette and Columbia. The dredge W. S. Ladd from January 11 to April 8 removed 526,320 cubic yards of earth from the channel, but the one dredge was not enough to but the one dredge was not enough to carry out the plans of the engineers, and two Port of Portland dredges were em

Traffic on the Columbia River increased tremendously during the fiscal year, for the increase was greater than during any of the previous 11 years, in the 12 months 2.682,779 tons, valued at $58.056,-911, was carried by all craft, up and

At the mouth of the Columbia the jetty extension is gleadily going forward. The tracks have been extended 7576 feet. During October, November and Decem-ber portions of the jetty were washed away. At present 2590 tons of rocks are being received daily.

A deepening on the bar is reported, and a scouring action has also been observed, which tends to deepen the channel by matural forces. The ocean-going dredge, Chinook, removed 245,729 cubic yards of earth while employed on the bar. In November she was brought to the Government moorings, and in April was laid and Long Tom Rivers. and Long Tom Rivers.

For the Coast rivers, the Coquille received improvement work to the extent of $228,997, and there are now eight feet of water on the bar at low tide. The north jetty has been extended. It is proposed to make it 3570 feet long, and the south feety 2700 feet long.

Nineteen feet of water at low tide can be found at the entrance to Coos Bay. Here extensive improvements have been made, costing $691,897. The dredging alone cost $40,899. Tiliamook and Yaquina Bays and the Suislaw River have not een overlooked.
The locks at the Cascades cost the Government $47,194, for maintenance. The freight tennage passing through the locks amounted to 25,106 tons, valued at $2,285,725. A recommendation for $199,260 for improvements is made.

Major Langfitt also recommends that $50,000 be appropriated for a combined sucker and dispart free to be used in

The report is very voluminous, the summary alone covering some 50 type-written pages. This is the last report which Major Langfitt will make from this which Major Langfitt will make from this district, as early in August he will report for duty in the office of Chief Engineers

STRANGERS SEEK THE RIVER

Launch Trade Feels Influence of Influx of Tourists.

With thousands of strangers in the city With thousands of strangers in the city there has been a great revival in river business during the last week. Even with the warships gone from the harbor, scores of sightseers find their way to the river, and, whether they ride or not, there are always dozens of interesting things for an inland dweller to see.

The revenue cutter McCulloch will be officially listed as a gratient of stranger.

ficially listed as a cruiser if she stays in Portland long enough. Ambitious boat-men shout "All abourd for the warship," and the McCulloch is a good enough imitation from the shore to deceive many.

Today six launches will begin making regular runs to the Exposition float, leaving every is minutes. Launches large and small are being used for various purposes.

Two are known as the "tiger boats," as they run to the Milwaukie poolroom es

One of the largest launches on the river, the Princess May, on Thursday began tak-ing observation parties from Ross Island to Portsmouth, giving visitors a view of the Exposition grounds from the water, among other sights. The idea of a "float-ing observation car" is new here, but has been very popular in the East.
