JAPAN AND RUSSIA MAY JOIN HANDS

China Fears Possible Alliance Will Mean Continuous Vassalage.

WITTE'S POWER LIMITED

Expresses Himself in Manner Which Leads World to Believe That He Considers Failure of Peace Negotiations Probable.

CHICAGO, July 22.—(Special.)—The Evening Post's London cable on the Far Eastern question says:

It is believed here that the agitation displayed by the Peking government as to the peace negotiations arises from its knowledge of the willingness of Japan to enter into a working arrangement with Russia as to China that would place the Celestial Empire in a state of perpetual vassalage. Both Komura and Witte are known to favor a Russo-Japanese rapprochement, and, if at the high point in the posthumous discussion, the Japanese envoys should throw upon the table an offer of an alliance, there is little doubt that Witte would see a great light.

It seems morally certain that the only way to avoid an impasse is for the belligerents to cast themselves into each other's arms. Such an outcome would gratify Britain and France, and the possibility of it is believed to have stimulated Emperor William to the recent perilous activity with which he has sought to convince the world that Germany does not intend to be isolated.

Not Consistent of Agreement.

Europe shares the high hopes of America that the negotiations will result in a modus vivendi acceptable to both powers, but Europe is less confident than America. Witte's description of himself as an Ambassador extraordinary for four years with the Japanese plenipotentiaries impressed London and Paris very much as it impressed Tokyo. The impression was distinctly bad. Whether M. Witte spoke for Japanese consumption or to satisfy the amour propre of the Russian, or to save the face of Nicholas with the court party—whatever the motive, the declaration was doubtless one he felt compelled to make. It only to break the force of a failure which Tokyo appears to regard as being as likely as anything else. So argues London.

M. Komura, speaking in Humanistic and scrupling up French opinion in his trenchant way, says:

Czar Still Undecided.

"We who have long studied the methods of M. Witte will not misunderstand him in a crisis. His uncertainty, his anxiety is due to the fact that the Czar and the Russian government do not know what they are ready to concede for the sake of peace. Nicholas and his advisers are in a perpetual state of agonism. They do not know they are beaten; they do not know how to face defeat; they do not know anything worth knowing about war or peace or making either. M. Witte is placed in an impossible position. He will stand his ground as long as he can and put the ultimatum to Nicholas: 'If you do not know, Sir, I do.'"

In Lombard street, where the indemnity side of the question is being carefully considered, in view of the likelihood that the money market would indirectly supply a large fraction, it is rumored persistently that Lord Lansdowne has communicated to the Rothschilds the irreducible minimum of Japan's conditions and that the indemnity demand works out at approximately $20,000,000. This is considered remarkably moderate.

WITTE WILL NOT YIELD VERY MUCH

Witte Says All Russia Is One on This Point.

CHICAGO, July 22.—(Special.)—A special telegram to the Daily News from Paris says: "I hope for peace with all my soul," said M. Witte, the Czar's envoy to the peace conference at Washington, who passed the day in what are believed important conferences with the head of the French government. "There is one question on which all Russia is unanimous—contented or discontented, rich or poor, noble or peasant—that it is an impossibility to accept any peace terms involving a sacrifice of Russian territory or material concessions definitely damaging the development of Russian unity in Asia. As far as even the most ignorant class in the country understands the war, this feeling prevails, constituting a strong moral force behind the Czar and his government."

"I am entirely unaware of any details concerning the conditions the Japanese are about to demand, but I know that I shall return to St. Petersburg, peace or no peace, without having yielded any vital interest of the Russian Empire. This is the Czar's will."

M. Witte keeps repeating that his well-known peace disposition does not mean anything at the present moment. "I am only an instrument," he says. "We speak shortly in America. It will not be I, but the Czar through me. He has made his will clear, and it is the will of the Russian race."

M. Witte's presence is due not only to a courteous desire on the part of Russia to exchange points of view with her ally before opening the conference, but also to the more practical wish to consult the French bankers about changes in their financial disposition toward Russia in case peace should be the issue of the American initiative. M. Witte neither affirms nor denies this, but the presence of Baron Hottelinguet's carriage before his hotel at the present moment is mute evidence of a certain value. The Baron is president of the Bank of France. M. Witte is also unwilling to say anything about a possible Russo-Japanese alliance, but it requires no effort to gather from his manner in dealing with the subject that Russia would be willing to agree to this, should Japan make it possible.

President Loubet received M. Witte this evening at the Elysee Palace. The meeting was devoid of ceremony, and consisted of half an hour's talk in the President's library. M. Loubet and Mme. Loubet later left Paris for their summer vacation at Rambouillet.

WITTE WISHES LASTING PEACE

Believes End Possible With Smaller Indemnity.

PARIS, July 22.—The Russian peace plenipotentiary had a two hours' talk with Premier Rouvier today and was received in audience by President Loubet at the Elysee Palace. No authoritative statement was given out concerning the meeting. One report is that M. Rouvier and M. Witte went over the prospective peace negotiations, dwelling particularly on the influence France could exert on Great Britain to induce the latter to moderate the Japanese demands. It is also the accepted view that M. Witte is favorable to a Russo-Japanese understanding by which lasting peace in the Far East would be secured. The prospects of this understanding are regarded as one of the chief means by which Japan may be induced to abate the severity of her conditions, particularly on the question of indemnity. The French officials speak favorably of such an understanding, the conclusion of which, beside benefiting Russia and Japan, would strengthen France in the Far East as the ally of Russia and Great Britain as the ally of Japan.

Among the callers at the hotel were some of the leading financiers connected with previous Russian loans. However, M. Witte has no need of sounding financial sentiment, as he has been completely fixed on this subject through the representatives of the Russian Finance Department and by the Paris branch of the Russo-Chinese Bank, of which he was one of the chief organizers. It is in relation to M. Rouvier's caution was not due to any hostility toward Russia, but solely to hostility to a continuation of the war. He shares in this respect the general view of the financiers, every one of whom remarked: "Russia is able to secure all the French money she wants to make peace, but not a centime to make war."

After his conference with M. Rouvier and his visit to M. Loubet, M. Witte passed the rest of the afternoon in returning the visits of personal friends.

It was pointed out that the report circulated regarding the transfer of the Japanese war loans to Russia as one of the conditions of peace was entirely unwarranted, and likely to endanger the prospects of a settlement. Such a transaction would arouse a protest from the investing public who subscribed to the loans, many of whom consider that the transfer would be contrary to their interests. They requested certain guarantees from the Japanese and they fear that those given by Russia would not be equivalent.

Komura's Triumph Trip.

ST. PAUL, July 22.—The journey of Baron Komura and the other Japanese peace commissioners eastward from Seattle has been somewhat in the nature of a triumphal progress. At almost every station throughout, hundreds of Japanese, of whom a large number are employed by the Great Northern Railway, have welcomed them with hearty "hansai." Baron Komura has enjoyed his trip exceedingly.

SEVENTY-FIVE APPEARED ARMED AT DELMAR TRACK.

March Out to Racetrack and Then, Like Fabled King of France, March Back Again.

ST. LOUIS, July 22.—A detachment of 75 heavily-armed St. Louis police, headed by Chief Kieley and President Stewart of the Police Board, surrounded Delmar racetrack gates in St. Louis County at 4 o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of making a raid, but an hour later the police were employed in the result of a conference between Kieley and Stewart, representing Governor Joseph A. Folk, and Secretary Adier and Attorney Krum, representing the racetrack.

The officers who were to have made the raid were disposed of at the police station of the mounted district of the World's Fair grounds. Messrs. Kieley and Stewart had previously gone to Kirkwood for the purpose of arranging for the issuance of commitments for the men who, it was expected, would be arrested. While the officers were returning from Kirkwood to Delmar, the police were marching from the World's Fair station to the track. The latter arrived first, although it had been planned that the officers should be first on the scene. The word to march had been given by telephone from Kirkwood. No arrests were made.

Pape in Scuffling Events.

Alex Pape, champion amateur sculler of California and the Pacific Northwest, will arrive in Portland this afternoon on the steamship Columbia, and will at once go into active training for the matches scheduled to take place here July 23 and 24. The Exposition officials have planned for triangular races on Guild's Lake, and Ed Gloss, the local sculler, has announced a disinclination to compete under those conditions, and it is likely that other contestants may find the course equally objectionable.

In that event arrangements of some sort may be made whereby the races may be rowed in the Willamette River, under other auspices than the Fair Association. Pape will remain with friends at 336 Montgomery street while here, and will doubtless participate in all the championship matches. His object in coming here is to row. He defeated Gloss at their initial meet two years ago, but it is understood the local man is in fine form just now, and Pape has also won honors in the East since then, so a match between the two would prove an interesting feature of the Exposition.

JOHN PAUL JONES COMES TO HIS OWN

Naval Squadrons Unite in Bringing Body Into Hampton Roads.

BURIAL AT ANNAPOLIS

Pageant on the Sea When Finest Battleships and Cruisers Bear Remains of Great Admiral Into His Last Port.

NORFOLK, Va., July 22.—The body of John Paul Jones was brought back today through the Virginia capes to the land of his adoption. Cottagers at Cape Henry, Ocean View and Willoughby Spit lined the shore to witness the pomp of the American Admiral's return to his own. The sight as the ships passed in line was one of grandeur and beauty.

The three divisions of the North Atlantic fleet, headed by the battleship Maine, flagship of the Commander-in-Chief, Rear Admiral Evans, bore down the capes, and at 7:20 the long line of battleships forming the escort to the body of John Paul Jones, on board the Brooklyn, passed the capes. The first division of the battleship squadron separated from the second division of the squadrons and the third squadron, under command of Rear Admiral Sigbee, after the entrance to the capes was reached.

The Maine did not lead the long line of battleships and cruisers up the bay, but instead, Captain Niles, commanding Rear Admiral Evans' flagship, headed his vessel for Hampton Roads. The battleships Kearsarge, Kentucky and Missouri followed the Maine in the Roads. The second division of the battleship squadron, commanded by Rear-Admiral Davis, continued in a northward course up the bay, headed by the flagship Alabama, of the second division, the battleships Illinois, Iowa and Massachusetts following the flagship in regular formation. The Brooklyn, flying the flag of Rear-Admiral Sigbee, followed the second division of the battleship squadron in the capes and up the bay, the protected cruisers Chesapeake, Commodore Barry, Galveston, Commander Kumlir, and Tacoma, Commander Nicholson, coming after.

The Brooklyn will not venture closer to Annapolis than the mouth of the Severn, for fear of grounding. The body of John Paul Jones will be transferred to Annapolis on a launch. Admiral Evans will accompany the funeral procession, and his anchor about two miles from the Naval Academy reservation.

The two fleets met yesterday morning, 20 miles from the capes. When Rear Admiral Evans' battleship left Admiral Sigbee's fleet today the Kearsarge, Maine, Kentucky and Missouri each fired a salute of 15 guns. The Brooklyn responded. Admiral Davis in charge of the cruiser division, will accompany Admiral Sigbee to Annapolis. Admiral Evans will return with his fleet in Hampton Roads until Tuesday, when his ships will go to New York.

The ceremonies will be participated in by the French cruiser Jurien de la Graviere, which was detached from the French North Atlantic squadron and sent to Chesapeake Bay to represent France at the ceremonies.

TRANSFER TO NAVAL ACADEMY

Ceremonies Will Be Simple, Pomp Reserved Till Later.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 22.—All details of the transfer of the body of Admiral John Paul Jones from the United States cruiser Brooklyn to the Naval Academy have been arranged. The ceremonies will be in general "pomp and ceremony" being reserved for the time of the removal of the body from the temporary vault in which it will be placed on Monday to its permanent resting-place, the crypt of the splendid new Naval Academy chapel. This will likely be a year hence. Admiral Sigbee will be in general command of the cortege as senior officer present.

The ships of Admiral Sigbee's squadron will anchor for the night 15 miles below Annapolis. Tomorrow morning they will take up their position just outside Annapolis harbor and about five miles from the Naval Academy wharf, where the French cruiser Jurien de la Graviere is now anchored. At 10 A. M. Monday the body will be conveyed to a point on the north seawall of the commanding ground by the naval tug Standish and, as the cortege moves from the landing-place, 15-minute guns will be fired by the academy battery. The burial party, after a short march, will be joined by all the officers attached to the academy, attired in white service uniforms.

The pallbearers will be Rear-Admiral James H. Sandes, superintendent of the Naval Academy; Rear-Admiral Charles H. Davis, commanding the first division, of the North Atlantic squadron; Captain George S. F. Upton, commanding the battleship Iowa; Captain E. D. Taussig, commanding the battleship Massachusetts; Captain William E. Reeder, commanding the battleship Alabama, and Captain E. S. Gervais, commanding the French cruiser Jurien de la Graviere. There will be eight body-bearers, seven from the different vessels of the fleet, and eight seamen from the French cruiser will act as honorary body-bearers.

The escort will consist of four battalions of sailors and marines from the Naval Academy and a detachment of 50 sailors from the Jurien de la Graviere. All the midshipmen of the battleship, 20 strong, formed of the newly-admitted members of the fourth class, will be paraded without arms. The body will then be deposited in the temporary vault.

No considerable crowd is expected by the academy authorities, as there will be little to see. There will be no service, and the whole affair is expected to be over in a quarter of an hour. The chapel in which the remains are to find their permanent resting-place will in all likelihood not be ready before Spring.
