both Cates and Iberg were in good form. Portland made a switch by retiring Cates and throwing Garvin in the box at the close and giving Conrad, a bush leaguer, a try behind the bat. Conrad is from the Presidio baseball club, and has been signed by McCredle. He is a good utility man, and will add strength to the team. He is a fair catcher, can play any infield position, and is a litter who can be depended upon.

The batting throughout the game, out-side of two innings, was weak. Portland played a nice fielding game. Jim McDonald reappeared as an umpire, doubling up with Bray. The score:

Harriman Line, Charging Higher Freight Rates Now, Is Well Patronized by Shippers Because of Regularity.

There has been no indication that the San Francisco & Portland Steam-ship Company will reduce its new north-bound rates on freight, and Portland merchants are skirmishing around to find a cheaper means of getting freight carried from California. What has always been the drawing-card of the Harriman line to shippers s the regularity of its service. instance, most of the fresh vegetables received here during the Winter comes on these steamers. Front-street men could calculate almost to an hour when the produce would arrive. By other steamers there was much guesswork.

Very much cheaper carriers are the steam schooners which come north for lumber. They are willing to take freight for little more than the cost of handling, as their profits are made from the south-bound lumber cargoes But there was always the uncertainty as to when they would sail, and still more uncertainty as to when they would arrive. Then there are steam ers like the Redondo, Czarlna, Despatch and Leggett, making periodical visits. They usually bring north a quantity of low-class freight.

The Roanoke and F. A. Kilburn ar-rive and depart with fair regularity, but the best the Roanoke can give is a 14-day service, as she runs to San 14-day service, as she runs to San Pedro, after stopping at San Francisco nd Eureka. North-bound, she also cops at Coos Bay. The Kilburn makes and Eureka. these stops, but turns back at the Bay City. She has a limited capacity, how-ever, and is well supplied with way freight.

Since the new tariff went into effect Augut 1, and the wholesale grocery houses, in particular, found their freight rates from California greatly increased, the demand for better service at lower rates has rapidly grown. The grocers have requested a reduc-tion on several lines of goods, and other classes of shippers will probably take similar action when their August freight bills are presented.

Owners of independent steamers raise the cry that Portland merchants will not patronize the steamers outside of the Harriman line when the opportun-ity offers. If a five-day service was If a five-day service was maintained, however, and an arrival or time could be depended upon, it would undoubtedly be another story. The owners of the steamer Roanoke are considering placing another vessel on this run, but first want the assurance of local patronage.

When Will-am Chambers, the publisher, was visiting London in 1844, there drove up to the door of his lodgings in Greek street, Soho, an old family coach drawn by a pair of sleek orses. From this descended an aged gentleman, who, from his shovel hat and black galters, was seen to be an ecclesblack galters, was seen to be an eccles-lastical dignitary. He was ushered in and his name announced, "the Rev. Sydney Smith." "You are surprised, possibly, at my visit," said Sydney, "There is nothing at all strange about it, The originator of the Edinburgh Review has come to see the originator of the Edinburgh Journal." Smith talked about old times in Edin-burgh. He made some little inquiry about Chambers' own early efforts, and he Chambers' own early efforts, and he inughed when Chambers reminded him of a saying of his own about studying on a little catmeal. "Ah, labora, labora," he said, sententiously. "How that word ex-presses the character of your country!" presses the character of your country!"
"Well, we do sometimes work pretty hard," observed Chambers; but, for all that, we can relish a pleasantry as much as our neighbors, You must have seen that the Scotch have a considerable fund of humor." "Oh, by all means," said Syd-ney Smith. "You are an immensiy funny people, but you need a little operating upon to let the fun out. I know of no in-strument so effectual for the purpose as the corkscrew.'

Meanwhile the cruiser incoma, with the Aupanese envoys and their suite on board, had arrived from New York, making the run in two hours and three-quarters. The ship came to anchor at 12:39 o'clock about half a mile from the Mayflower.

Almost at the same time the naval racht Sylph, with Third Assistant Secretary of State Herbert H. D. Pelrce on board also came to anchor a short distance from the Mayflower. Mr. Pelrce, who, in the absence of Secre-tary Root, was to represent the De-partment of State at the ceremonies incident to the reception, boarded the Mayflower from a launch about ten minutes after the arrival of the President. He and the President chatted a few minutes before it was reported to the President that the Japansee envoys were about to come aboard the Mayflower.

Reception Is Informal.

Scarcely had the report been made before the guns of the Tacoma began to fire the salute of 19 guns as the plenipotentiaries and their suite went over the side.

As the Japanese mission, hended by Baron Komura and Minister Takahira, ascended the gangway, all attired in black frock coats and shiny silk hats the hand sounded three ruffles and then played a march. At the head of the gangway Commander -Winslow received the envoys and as they stepped to the deck they were greeted by Mr. Peirce. They were escorted immediately to the cabin, where the President was awaiting them.

The reception was brief, and was as devoid of formality as the nature of the occasion would permit. Baron Komura and Minister Takahira shook hands with the President, the cordial-

As the representative of the Emperor, Baron Komura then extended his thanks to President Roosevelt, and through him to the American people, for the interest they had manifested in the pending peace negotiations, expressing, particularly, his gratitude to the President for the friendliness he had shown in initiating the negotia-tions which had resulted in the pleas-ure they were to have today. The President assured Baron Komura that he had found great pleasure in taking the steps toward what he hoped would be a permanent peace between the two great nations. The exchanges, if they may be so termed, were entirely in-formal. No addresses were delivered.

Calls Takahira "Comrade."

Baron Komura then presented to the President the 12 members of his suite. The President gave particularly cordial greetings to Commander Takahira, the naval attache of the Japanese legation, addressing him as "comrade" and to Mr. Hanahara, the third secretary of the legation, with both of whom he is personally acquainted. The President then introduced the envoys to the Army and Navy officers present, after which, with Baten Komura and Minis-ter Takahira, he retired to an inner cabin for a brief consultation prior to the arrival of the Russian mission. The cruleer Chattanooga, with the Rus-sian envoys on board, anchored a third of a mile from the Mayflower at 1:50 P. M., and Il minutes later the Chattanooga's 19 gun salute announced the departure the Russians. A few minutes afterward the form of M. Witte, Russian chief pienipotentiary, appeared at the starboard gangway of the Mayflower. He was foldor and second peace envoy, and eight members of his suite. They were received precisely as the Japanese had been, and they, too, were ushered into the cabin, where the President was waiting to re-

During the reception of the Russian mission the Japanese envoys and the members of their suites were in one of the forward cabins.

With notable cordiality, President Roosevelt shook hands with M. Witte and Baron Rosen, exchanging with them in-formal but hearty personal felicitations. After receiving the members of the suite, and presenting all in turn to his personal guests, the President then brought the two sets of envoys together, introducing them formally to one another. The President himself led the party, followed in order by M. Witte, Baron Komura, Ambassador Rosen and Min-Takahira. Even the formation of inter racanita. Even the formation of this little procession involved a difficult diplomatic problem, but it was agreed that the President solved it admirably.

Luncheon Eaten Standing.

Although the luncheon was served with the guests standing, the President escorted the envoys to chairs in one corner of the saloon, and in haif a minute, through tact and delicacy the whole party was engaged in animated conversation over their dishes.

The conversation generally was in French, as M. Witte speaks very little English. Baron Rosen and Baron Komura chatted as though they had been lifelong friends, and Minister Takahira, at no time particularly communicative, entered into the conversation with mest and inter-Before the luncheon had proceeded far Boise River at Low Stage.

Company B. Ashland, 82.

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 5.-(Special.)-The remarkably low stage of water in the Boise River is causing threatened iosses of thousands of dollars' worth of crops in the Boise Valley. Never in the history of the state has the water been so low at this time of year. The upper canals have been using the water and the lower ones are dry. There will be no second crop of hay, and farmers fear they cannot keep their meadows alive. Judge Stewart has made a sweeping order to have nearly all the water taken from the upper canals and give the lower ones a chance."

hum of conversation which followed, little was heard but enthusiastic comment on the character of the President's expression. M. Witte and Baron Komura both cordially thanked him.

President Leaves Envoys.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, after the President had posed with the four envoys for an official photograph, arrangements were made for the President's expression. Mentage of the envoys and their suites, shook hands with his personal guests on board, and to the music of the band and to the roar of the Mayflower's gurss went over the side and entered his launch. His flag was hauled down, and a few minutes later, at 2.56, he was land.
