The Angels made it five straight by defeating McCredle's Giants again yesterday, and this was accomplished after the locals had butted into their old-time | 15,500. Score; style of batting. It was the first time in some few days that the home boys connected with the ball as often as they did off the two Angel twirlers yesterday, but all the chances they had of victory were tossed away by bad playing.

Bertie Jones was on the slab for the locals and had the misfortune to have his support behave in a far from clever fashion and incidentially to allow the visitors to connect with the ball at critical moments, which resulted in a ninth-inning rally and another loss by

The first inning saw some bad playing and some clever sticking on the part of McCredie's men. The bad playing was thrown into the Angel's half of the session, when Tim Flood, the first man up, was passed on four that were not over. Toman sacrificed and Smith's out put territory.

Hoffman in a Trance.

Dillon bunted and caught Hoffman in a trance and was safe at first, Brash taking the miding at third. Dillon stole second, and with these men on the paths nearest home, and two gone, with Cravath up, Schlafly made a glaring misplay by running to cover the bag on the pitch, and the result was that the batter hit through the very spot where he had been stationed. Brashear and Dillon scored on the bit, which made a total three for the inning, when, had Schlafly played the game, only one would have resulted. With two out the play is always on the bataman.

Big Warren Hall essayed the task of fooling the local talent and when he mounted the hill he wore a healthy smile. probably acquired by glancing at the score-board with the figure three prominently displayed in the Angel corner. He was not destined to wear the facial adornment for any length of time, how ever, for the home boys were determined to make a strong bid for this game and succeeded in tieing up the score by regis-tering three runs in their half. Jake Atz ed off by securing a base on balls. Van Buren followed by lacing a safety to left. Mitchell sacrificed, and Bchlaffy laced one at Jud Smith which was too hot for the ooth-carpenter to handle, and Atz scored. walked to the plate with his mighty off a ninth inning rally. Falkenburg was club and tied the game by scoring all but invincible in the second. Attend-two-base hit to center. Hoffman ended the inning with a chance to Dillon.

A pass to Mitchell, Schlafly's second hit. sacrifice by Householder, and the suc-McHale handling the bat, scored Mitchell, and gave the locals the lead temporarily in the sixth. This run was acquired off Dolly Gray, who had relieved Hall in the fifth, for the big fellow was being found too frequently to suit Captain Dillon.

Win in the Ninth.

Brashear tied the game up again by hoisting one over the right garden wall in the eighth for a home-run. The Angels won the game in the ninth, then singles by Ross and Gray, which were followed by a three-bagger by Flood netted them two runs. The score was

The Angels will make their last appearance on the Portland grounds this after-noon, and the pitching will be done by Cutes or Essick for Portland and "Spider" Baum for the visitors.

FARM LANDS IN DEMAND

Eastern Multnomah Attracts Many Newcomers Who Are Impressed by the Varied and Profitable Crops.

> GRESHAM, Or., Aug. 26 .- (Special.) -Eastern Multnomah's natural resources and developed industries are attracting considerable attention from visitors just at this time, and the rewisitors just at this time, and the results are sure to be permanent and far reaching. Within the past few weeks, or since the influx of Eastern visitors to the Fair began, at least five families have made purchases in this vicinity—coming from beyond the Bookles and bringing with them plen-Rockies and bringing with them plen-ty of money to make investments in property and to further develop their oldings.

The most important from a business standopint is the purchase of a prom-inent corner lot in Gresham by a gen-tleman named Myers, lately of Minnesota. He formerly held a high post-tion with the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, and comes here to put up Gresham's first brick building which he will open a general banking business sometime within the next three months. Brick has been ordered for the building from the local brick-yard, and the contract for the building will be let today.

The other investments spoken of were all made in farm property, and the prices paid for land will show that there is an upper tendency in farm values. F. Fieldhouse, a jeweler from a Wisconsin city, lately bought 10 acree just west of town from Roberts & Wirtz, paying therefore $1600. Three acres of this land is cleared, the re-mainder is in small timber and brush Mr. Fieldhouse says it is his intention to locate here and establish a jewelry store in Gresham. He has plenty of capital, and will make other invest-

Three Farms Sold.

Three whole farms of different sizes have been bought outright lately. They are all about six miles beyond Gresham, and brought good prices. The first was sold by Ben Mathews to Mat Anderson, of South Dakota. It contains 100 acres, of which 40 are in cultivation, but has no other improved. tivation, but has no other improvements. It brought $50 an acre. Another South Dakota man, Eric Carlson by name, has bought 40 acres from B. F. Hawley, paying therefor the sum of $3400. It is only partially improved. B. J. Peterson, also from South Dakota, arrived here with his family three weeks ago, and bought 10 acres from W. G. Calvin for $1200. This piece is all in cultivation, and has other permanent improvements, worth, probably, $300. Numerous others from the East are here every week, and all express themselves as being pleased with the soll and other con-It is noticeable that all of the above-named purchasers have visited other sections of the state before coming ere to settle.

The greatest attractions to the Easterners who come here to investigate was well known to the jewelry trade.

that can be raised here; the scientifi methods pursued by our farmers; the splendid roads running through every half section; and, greatest of all, the best market right at home for every product. Crops rarely fail in this section, which fact is due principally to the diversified farming in practice here. Clover, grain and potatoes rotate in endless cycles, a potato field rarely occupying the same ground twice in less than five years. Clover is the great fertilizer, and grows to its utmost perfection here. It is valuable plant by itself, and yields great percentage of the wealth of the county, besides being the greatest fac-tor in keeping the soil in condition for other crops. Klondike of Oregon.

The potato industry has given Eastern Multnomah the name of being the "Klondike of Oregon." Thousands of acres are planted and gathered every year, and their sale being, probably. the greatest source of wealth to the community. The yield is about 250 community. bushels per acre, but sometimes it goes as high as 400 bushels in good seasons. For the past six years the price has been good and the demand heavy, with never enough to swamp the market.

The hay crop of Eastern Multnomah is an important one, as each farmer must necessarily produce enough for his own use, and must also renew his soil through its agency. All surplus finds a ready market in Portland at the best prices, but much of it is con-sumed by the vast number of cows which go to make up the wealth of the county and which are another great source of revenue. From the city limits to the Sandy River there is scarcely a cross-road that is not trav-ersed by a team and wagon, stopping at hundreds of farmhouses for surplus milk to be had. Two vast creamery enterprises, operated by W. W. Cotton and Vetsch & Sons, take all that is offered. The Portland Dairy Association has a milk route also, the product being retailed each day in the City of Portland. No farm, however small, no cow, however humble, no milk can with its gallon or 10 gallons of milk, is slighted, and the family that has milk to sell in any quantity finds a ready customer at its gate every day throughout the year. These items are a few, the most important, of course, which go to make this part of Multnomah County a vast storehouse of natural wealth. year sees 500 acres of new land re-claimed from the virgin forests, and a proportionate increase in the products of this section. With such vast resources, there is no wonder that land commands a good price and that the Easterners are attracted here with capital and energy to push the coun-try along to its utmost development.

Half Drowned by Flying Spray, They Hang on Until a Launchman Comes to the Rescue and Helps Capture Giant.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.-(Special.)-Racing through the waters of the bas at express speed in tow of a big shark this forenoon, George Hafer and Dan O'Connor, two 15-year-old boys, pluckily hung to their dangerous steed while the flying spray ploughed up in their mad rush and filled their boat. They were seen struggling in the water off the Pa-cific Mail dock by J. S. Cunningham, a launchman, who put out to their as sistance with all speed. When the launchman arrived at the scene of the battle for life between the boys and the shark, they were i drowned, but game, and still hung to the line, at the other end of which the shark was making powerful rushes for freedom. With Cunningham's help the shark was towed into the dock and
