San Francisco	25	21	.543
Los Angeles	23	26	.469
Portland	20	28	.417
Seattle	20	28	.417
Tacoma	20	29	.408

The elements prevented the Portland-Tacoma baseball game at the Vaughn-street grounds yesterday, and as a result there are now four teams practically tied for second place in the league race. San Francisco and Los Angeles are two points ahead of Seattle and Portland, but this advantage is credited them on account of having played more games, although the relative standing of the four teams is practically the same, as each has lost two more games than it has won.

Portland and Tacoma will play two games this afternoon, for which only one admission will be charged, which will be the first time since 1903 that the Portland fans have had a chance at "bargain day" baseball, as Mike Fisher terms it. Mike says that there will be baseball today, no matter what kind of weather is dished out by the weather man, and yesterday he instructed Umpire McDonald to call the first game at 1:30, if the official had to swim out to the field. According to Fisher, the only thing that will prevent a game will be the washing away of the ball park.

McCredie is not as sanguine as the Tacoma manager, but says that the teams will play if there is the slightest chance. The Portland fans will have their first opportunity to see the local new pitcher, Cy Ferry, in action, for the big fellow is slated to oppose young Emerson in the first game today. Will Ewick will pitch the second game against Bobby Keeffe.

The first game will be called promptly at 1:30 P. M., and the second ten minutes after the conclusion of the initial contest.

HALL'S HIT SAVES SEATTLE

Oakland Wins in Last Game on Washington City's Grounds.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 7.—Russ Hall's hit in the last of the ninth to save a shutout and brought in Seattle's only run. The Commuters had pushed three men across the plate on bunched hits just as the game finished a pouring rain started, and it is probable that the game today will be the last on Seattle grounds this season.

Score: Oakland 10, Seattle 1.

Batteries—Miller and Blankenship; Graham and Hackett.
Umpire—Howitt.

Bay City Beats the Angels.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—Tozer was warmed up in the opening inning today in a manner not to his liking. The locals bumped him for three hits and secured a lead that served them throughout the game. It was largely a pitchers' battle after the first inning.

Score: Bay City 10, Los Angeles 1.

Batteries—Tozer and Eager; Williams and Wilson.
Umpire—Davis.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—(Special.)—The following is the standing of the National League:

Portland High School Eleven.

The Portland High School football eleven has been practicing faithfully under the supervision of Coach Henderson, and are ready to give the other local teams a strong fight for the interscholastic honors. Coach Henderson has trained the eleven in Michigan tactics, and hopes to produce a winning combination with the material at hand. The boys have been prompt at practice, and every preliminary exercise is attended by almost the full strength of the team, which fact is a source of great satisfaction to the coach and the admirers of the eleven. Manager Blagen is arranging a series of games, which will be announced upon the completion of the interscholastic schedule.

Portland Academy's Strong Team.

The Portland Academy will have a strong team in the field, and is prepared for a strenuous season. The eleven is prepared to compete in the interscholastic league, and will have a representative present at the arranging of the schedule during the coming week.

Captain Harold Reed has had his men at regular practice during the past few weeks, and the team is now ready to meet any of the various amateur elevens in the city.

Hill Military Academy.

Hill Military Academy expects to send a fairly strong team into the field this year to compete with the elevens of the Portland Academy and the High School for the championship of the city. Dr. J. A. Leonard, former member of the football teams of Knox College and Drake University, and former assistant coach of the Albany College eleven, has been engaged as coach and is rapidly gaining the friendship and confidence of the cadets, so that they are working harder and with more enthusiasm than they have done for some time. The material this year seems rather light. However, there are a number of strong active men among the candidates, who will make up in speed and vim what they may be lacking in weight. At a general meeting of the football squad held last Monday Major von Eglowstein was re-elected manager of the team and Cadet Charles M. Taylor was elected captain. The following members of last year's eleven have returned: Cadets Taylor, Williams, Voss and Runey. These four cadets are forming the nucleus for the new team. Cadets Clifford and Marx also members

Jockey Has His Leg Broken.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 7.—Jockey A. Walsh, who rode Christians in the third race here today, had his leg fractured, and it is thought he is injured internally. He was caught in a jam while rounding the first turn and unseated. Several of the horses following stepped on the lad. He was taken to the Windsor Hospital. The bone was protruding through his leg. His home is in Toronto.

Football Man Injures Brain.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—(Special.)—F. Fugue, of Pendleton, Ind., a student of Swarthmore College, is in the University Hospital seriously injured as the result of football practice, and the physicians have little hope of his recovery. He is suffering from hemorrhage of the brain.

FRENZIED PEOPLE CHEER

Perfect Weather and Fast Track Aids Noted Horse in Race Against Time—Other Races Are Good.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 7.—Dan Patch, king of pacers, today clipped three-quarters of a second from his own, the world's record, negotiating the mile in 1:53. A crowd of 10,000 was already in a high state of enthusiasm over the smashing of the 1905 race record of the world's three-beat record successively, and when Dan Patch's time was given out excitement approached frenzy. Cheering people threw hats and wraps in the air

Yale Wins From Syracuse.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 7.—Yale scored her second victory of the season by defeating the University of Syracuse, 15 to 0. The game was well contested, and in the first half the snappy play and defensive work of the visitors gave Yale plenty of hard work. But once the game was in the first half, new players in the second half turned the tide in favor of the Blue. The Yale team, with Captain Sheehan, the only veteran on the line, and Flynn, the lone veteran of the back field, acquitted itself well. Yale found the defensive tactics of the visitors a proposition worthy of their steel, and only toward the end of the second half did Syracuse begin to waver. Captain Sheehan was strong at running back and kick-off, and Yale's defensive formation for this play proved effective.

Chicago Has Easy Victory.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—The University of Chicago was very surprised at the ease with which they downed the Iowa eleven today, when they ran up a score of 42 to 0. In the first half Chicago scored six touchdowns, and Parry kicked the same number of goals. The Iowa side succeeded in making one first down. The score at the end of the half was 24 to 0.

In the second half the Hawkeys braced up considerably, though not sufficiently to make any difference with the result. They carried the ball to Chicago's 30-yard line, then kicked to the 35-yard line, but there they blew up and could go no further. The Maroons then took the ball, and after a short battle secured a touchdown and goal, ending the second half with six more points.

Harvard 22, Maine 0.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 7.—Harvard defeated the University of Maine by 22 to 0 today. The contest was lightening fast and there was no wind, and the weather conditions were ideal. Scott Hudson was behind the pacemaker. A strip of cloth between the wheels of the forward axle to prevent dirt being thrown behind was the only suggestion of a wind shield.

Princeton Defeats Georgetown.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—Princeton easily defeated Georgetown here today afternoon. Princeton gained at will and held Georgetown repeatedly for downs. Princeton's offense was the best shown this season. McCormack and Cooney carried the ball for long gains straight through Georgetown's line. Fumbling somewhat marred the game. The visitors showed weakness principally on defense.

Middles Whip Doughboys.

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 7.—(Special.)—The football team of the Naval Academy, the midshipmen winning the initial game from the eleven of the Virginia Military Institute of Lexington, Va., by 29 to 9. For so early in the season the midshipmen played an excellent game.

Michigan Has Easy Time.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 7.—Michigan defeated Case Scientific School today by a score of 15 to 0. Yost's men met unexpectedly strong resistance, and fumbled quite frequently. Case played a fairly defensive game, and in the second half held Michigan to two touchdowns.

Y. M. C. A. Football.

The Y. M. C. A. football team will hold an election for the purpose of choosing a captain for the ensuing season tomorrow evening. The association team has been in practice for the past three weeks, and is rapidly rounding into shape. Physical Director Rabbitt, of the Y. M. C. A., has been directing the preliminary work of the eleven, and hopes to have the boys in shape to play a game within two weeks. They expect to secure games with the various interscholastic elevens in the city and vicinity, as well as with neighboring teams. The Multnomah eleven did not play a game last season. The Y. M. C. A. team will average about 150 pounds in weight.

EASTERN COLLEGE GAMES.

Yale Wins From Syracuse.

California Jockey Club Cannot Bar Men From Track.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—The new California Jockey Club has no right to keep from the privileges of the track a person who is caught "fashing" or "stagnating" the result of races, according to an opinion rendered today by Judge Hunt. The case in question is a suit brought by George W. Sanfanton against the new California Jockey Club for damages for expelling him from the track at Emeryville.

The racing officials admitted they ejected him from the track upon the grounds that he was guilty of immoral conduct and of betting on the track. ## Stanford's Football Squad Is Reduced Almost One-Half.

Four Weeks of Practice Work.

Stanford's Football Squad Is Reduced Almost One-Half.

Four Weeks of Practice Work.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—Four weeks have passed since Jimmy Lawson issued the first call for football candidates, and they have been fraught with work and development. The squad has been reduced almost half, the "varsity" practices three regular teams nightly, the freshmen two.

It is yet early to make a forecast of the personnel or prospects of the team. This much can be said, however, that the prospects are decidedly better than they were at the opening of the season. The old men are playing in better form than ever before, and among the new material some star players are cropping out.

The "varsity" has played but two games so far, winning both easily, the first against St. Vincent's College, of Los Angeles, 50-0; the second against Willamette University, 12-0.

In the back field, Chalmers, Stott and Fenton are playing beautiful ball. Chalmers, particularly, is playing a game which, if he keeps up the gait, bids fair to control his game in Stanford football history beside the never-forgotten Murphy and Traeger. A peculiar circumstance attends the contest for the quarterback position. The fight is pre-eminently between Stott and Fenton. Stott, with his last year's record in the big game, and his extra weight, undoubtedly has first choice of the position, but the younger player, with his accurate kicking and wonderful generalship, is giving the veteran a hard run for the place. Everybody conceded that Stott will fill the position in the game with California unless Lawson should find it necessary to shift him to an end, when, of course, Fenton would step in. Fenton also has more than a fighting chance to get into the big game on the strength of his ability at kicking field goals. He has displayed remarkable power and accuracy in drop-kicking, and this fact has not escaped the eyes of the coaches.

In this line, Friesell, the old Oregon guard, is putting up good ball for one of the guard positions, and at left end, Koerner, the ex-academy tackle and captain, who played an end on last year's freshman team, is playing in "varsity" form. Koerner has an excellent chance to make the team, since there are no veterans back to play either tackle or end. At present he is playing top-notch football.

But the "varsity" team is not the top of discussion at present, but rather the next day's "freshman eleven." Next Saturday, October 14, the 1906 team will clash with the California "babes." Contrary to the usual circumstances attending the selection of a freshman eleven, it is possible now, a week ahead of time, to make the team, and this much can be said definitely, that if no unforeseen accident occurs at Stanford, the "varsity" will appear in the back field—Raymond Holman at quarterback and Lane Goodell at full back. Both of these players were temporarily debarred from the game at the end of last season, but they have now again and have demonstrated their superior ability. Holman has distinguished himself in the field work, and Goodell, with his strong defense in backing up the line.

Stanford has a set of quarterbacks who are who are almost all the same, and tributes to their perfect football play. Each one has his admirers, and each one is doing remarkable work in his respective position. They are Plowden Stott, Kenneth Fenton and Raymond Holman, all of whom played early last year under Player Blane and at Portland Academy, the last distinguishing himself as a star player in the "varsity" combination, and the "Webfoot Trio" the subject of general comment on the bleachers.

Stott, the veteran of the three, has the advantage in weight and experience, and excels in running in the ball from the back field and giving interference. It is undoubtedly the preferred man to back up the Stanford field, it is almost impossible to knock him down.

Fenton, the youngest and lightest of the trio, is in a sense the best player, that is, he has the best football head and he is thoroughly acquainted with the fine points of the game. His unparalleled play in the annual freshman game last year, which he won by a wide margin, has already proved this point. He runs the team like lightning and calls signals from the bottom of scrimmage. Whenever he has the ball, there too will you always find him dodging in and out, and he will be down in kicking and hurdling leads them all. With 200 pounds of weight, this young player would do things which are almost beyond the power of any other player in the field.

The old men are playing in better form than ever before, and among the new material some star players are cropping out.

The "varsity" has played but two games so far, winning both easily, the first against St. Vincent's College, of Los Angeles, 50-0; the second against Willamette University, 12-0.

In the back field, Chalmers, Stott and Fenton are playing beautiful ball. Chalmers, particularly, is playing a game which, if he keeps up the gait, bids fair to control his game in Stanford football history beside the never-forgotten Murphy and Traeger. A peculiar circumstance attends the contest for the quarterback position. The fight is pre-eminently between Stott and Fenton. Stott, with his last year's record in the big game, and his extra weight, undoubtedly has first choice of the position, but the younger player, with his accurate kicking and wonderful generalship, is giving the veteran a hard run for the place. Everybody conceded that Stott will fill the position in the game with California unless Lawson should find it necessary to shift him to an end, when, of course, Fenton would step in. Fenton also has more than a fighting chance to get into the big game on the strength of his ability at kicking field goals. He has displayed remarkable power and accuracy in drop-kicking, and this fact has not escaped the eyes of the coaches.

In this line, Friesell, the old Oregon guard, is putting up good ball for one of the guard positions, and at left end, Koerner, the ex-academy tackle and captain, who played an end on last year's freshman team, is playing in "varsity" form. Koerner has an excellent chance to make the team, since there are no veterans back to play either tackle or end. At present he is playing top-notch football.

But the "varsity" team is not the top of discussion at present, but rather the next day's "freshman eleven." Next Saturday, October 14, the 1906 team will clash with the California "babes." Contrary to the usual circumstances attending the selection of a freshman eleven, it is possible now, a week ahead of time, to make the team, and this much can be said definitely, that if no unforeseen accident occurs at Stanford, the "varsity" will appear in the back field—Raymond Holman at quarterback and Lane Goodell at full back. Both of these players were temporarily debarred from the game at the end of last season, but they have now again and have demonstrated their superior ability. Holman has distinguished himself in the field work, and Goodell, with his strong defense in backing up the line.

Stanford has a set of quarterbacks who are who are almost all the same, and tributes to their perfect football play. Each one has his admirers, and each one is doing remarkable work in his respective position. They are Plowden Stott, Kenneth Fenton and Raymond Holman, all of whom played early last year under Player Blane and at Portland Academy, the last distinguishing himself as a star player in the "varsity" combination, and the "Webfoot Trio" the subject of general comment on the bleachers.

Stott, the veteran of the three, has the advantage in weight and experience, and excels in running in the ball from the back field and giving interference.
