CAT RESCUED AT THE FIRE

Last Living Thing Taken Down the Ladders.

A black cat named Bill was rescued by Fireman Everett E. Fisher during the fire and was the last living thing to be fire and was the last living thing to be taken from the building. It was sporting around fire headquarters yesterday. The firemen declared that Bill would be made a mascot and kept at the station. Fisher discovered Bill as he was crawling along the edge of the roof. Bill was just making his way into a box that was still burning and which had been made for him by Binajhi. Most of the hair had been burned from his back and his whiskers were hadily singed. Fisher his whiskers were badly singed. Fisher descended the fire escape with his little bundle of life and deposited the cat with Rarely if ever in the history of the city have so many features been developed. Firemen have a thousand and one little incidents to relate, some comical, some pa-thetic, and even heartrending. At fire headquarters and at the auxiliary sta-tions many of the boys sat up until after the midnight hour discussing the part they took and the unwilling part that the rescued ones had taken during the prog-

Many Deeds of Heroism.

Many deeds of herolsm, which were overlooked during the spectacular lifesaving half hour, were brought to light.

The stories of the firemen would make a volume in themselves. The tale of D. L. Cappa, the chef who jumped into a life-net, the yarn of the cat "Bill," which was really the last life to be saved from the flames: the episodes that Tony Binajhi. the second cook, who was one of the last to leave the coping on the eighth floor, have to relate are thrilling, and innumerable little things go to make up the features that will be a fund for conversation

James Herman Maybie, a 5-year-old boy, youngest son of Henry B. May-ble, was accidentally shot through the ble, was accidentally shot through the head about 8 o'clock last night, which resulted in his death at Good Samaritan Hospital three hours later. The lad had been left at home with an elder brother, Charles, aged 9 years, who was the only other occupant of the room at the apartments of the children's parents at 667 Hood street. The elder lad told Detectives Hellyer and Vaughn, who were sent to the scene on being noti-fied of the shooting, that a man had entered the room and shot the little fellow. The story was not believed by the officers, who found the father's 32-40 Winchester rifle, which had been recently discharged, on the floor where it had fallen after being han-dled by one of the boys. The father of the boys is employed as teamster at the Portland Lumber Company's mill and is a member of the night shift, being at work at the time of the accident, while the mother of the boys was down town sho The injured lad was taken to the pital in the patrol wagon, and died shortly after being received there. The children are believed to have dis-covered the rific and essayed to play with the weapon which, in some man ner, was discharged with fatal results. Coroner Finley took charge of the re-mains and is investigating the circum-stances with a view of holding an in-

Mitchell Awaits Extradition.

Jack Mitchell, accused of stealing horses from a farmer at Asotin, Wash, was arrested at Eugene, Or., by Detectives Vaughn and Hellyer and Special Agent Hindman, of the Northern Pacific. He was brought to Portland yesterday and will be confined here until taken to Washington by Hindman. A charge of being connected with a train robbery may be placed against Mitchell when he is taken to Asotin.
