

KLAMATH REVENUE

Hitchcock Adds $1,000,000 to Fund for Reclamation.

WILL LET NEW CONTRACTS

Increased Land Office Receipts Sell Reclamation Fund—Money Allocated and in Prospect Will Finish the Project.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, July 14.—The Acting Secretary of the Interior has transferred another $1,000,000 to the reclamation fund for the Klamath irrigation project, making $2,000,000 now immediately available for construction. The greater part of this will be spent in Oregon, a small portion of the irrigated land being in California. Work is being energetically pushed on the construction of the outlet tunnel from Klamath Lake.

Secretary also pledges $2,400,000 to complete the project. This additional money is to be available as soon as needed. This increase is the result of Senator Fulton's work during the last session. Land Receipts Increase.

This increased allotment is possible because the public land receipts for the past year greatly exceeded the department's estimates. While the returns are not complete, it is found that the receipts will exceed the estimates by more than $2,000,000, and this increase has been divided among four states, Oregon and California, on the Klamath project; Washington, whose increases have been heretofore announced, and Idaho, which gets additional money for its two projects now building.

Will Let New Contracts.

Doubting the cash allowance for the Klamath project opens the way for the letting of new contracts to reclaim land not included in the first unit, now under construction. Just what work will be taken up next has not been fully determined. Much will depend on the recommendations of Engineer Henry, who now has full charge of this project.

The Klamath project can be built as a whole or in sections. It was originally intended to build it by units, completing one unit before taking up the next. This has been found, however, that there will be no trouble in getting settlers upon these lands as fast as water is ready for them. It was determined to push work hereafter.

Draining Lakes Long Task.

While only $2,000,000 is actually available for immediate use, another $2,400,000 will be forthcoming by the time the engineers are able to use it. Considerable land to be reclaimed is now in low water swamp. Until the water has been drained off and these lakes have dried, it will be impossible to complete the project. This draining and drying will take several years; but in the meantime all land now arid which is intended to be reclaimed will be brought under ditch.

The allotment for this fiscal year is believed that work on the Klamath project can proceed without interruption until the last ditch is dug and water turned on every acre.

More Money for Idaho.

The allotment for the Boise-Payette project is increased to $1,600,000, and for Minidoka to $1,555,000. The previous allotment for each was $1,300,000. The Boise-Payette project is to be completed by the original allotment; the increase for Minidoka will pay for building the storage reservoir at Lake Jackson needed to provide ample water for irrigation. Senator Dubois leaves for home tomorrow.

ENLARGE BOISE BARRACKS

Taft Allots Funds to Accommodate Four Troops of Cavalry.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, July 14.—Secretary Taft today informed Senator Haysburn that he would direct that $11,000 be expended in enlarging Boise barracks this fiscal year. This amount will start barracks for four troops of cavalry. It is assumed that additional allotment will be made next year to complete the enlargement. This allotment positively assures the permanent retention of Boise Barracks.

SOCIALISTIC ISSUES.

Farmer Discusses Events From Peculiar Viewpoint.

WOODSTOCK, Or., July 14.—(To the Editor.)—Although a busy farmer, working 16 hours a day in the sweating heat, I am ready to say that I am a great admirer of your newspaper with its accumulative stock of knowledge and everything handy for reference, when a fellow feels that he is right he does not like to subside like a clam. With your permission I wish to make further remarks in answer to your recent editorial, "Anarchists and Others," upon my article, "Bonnie and Anarchists," both of which appeared in the Oregonian July 14. I acknowledge the misquotation of Collier's, "Hounded," but in this case the difference is not material. Concerning Gorky, if the newspapers had told the truth in the first place, as some of them afterward did, when it was too late to repair the injury done, not even the immediate and exacting Mrs. Grundy could have taken offense.

With reference to the members of the notorious Pinkerton Detective Agency, I object to their having a vote in the regulation of citizens on the ground that they are a self-constituted organization, authorized by no one. They exist for the service of the rich and will furnish me if by any undertaking provided the cash is forthcoming. Mr. Watkins says that H. C. Frick employed a Pinkerton man at a salary of $10,000 per annum to do nothing but to watch me with a trigger and murder in his hand, should, in his opinion, occasion any. Mr. Frick's associates and imitators will not be deterred by invading the antipractical fields of Pennsylvania, where his criminal efforts consisted in a series of impassioned and anarchistic appeals to the mob whom he worked to commit murder. He being a man of masterful mendacity, found it a task of the utmost simplicity to influence his inferior associates and imbue them with the belief that ruthless murder was their legitimate avenue of redress for any grievance against a man. The result was that he created out of and among them with purported facts concerning the Molly Maguire organization. On the strength of his testimony—prepared beyond the fact of a man of a doubt—a number of men were railroaded to the gallows, where they expired criminals for which Mr. Frick should have been punished.

Then Mr. Frick took to the tall neck. He is now polluting the atmosphere of Idaho with his poisonous presence, and is engaged in the practice of the practice of corporation plugging, and the manufacture of false evidence. His infamous employers retail the stuff to the personnel of the Mine Owners Association. Backed by Mr. McFarland conducted the kidnapping of the three officers of the Western Federation of Miners—Moyer, Pettibone and Haywood—from Colorado into Idaho, an act that would further disgrace even the State of Colorado.

These men, who are now held in custody by the Sheriff of Ada County, Idaho, were extradited from the State of Colorado by methods that would reflect no credit upon the official barbarism of Cossack-ridden Russia. They were seized in the darkness of night by the official desperadoes of Idaho and Colorado, and through the collusion of the Governors of two sovereign states placed on board a special train and guarded by a military escort. They were taken to the State of California, where they were held in the walls of a state building. They were denied the right to communicate with friends or attorneys and denied a hearing in the courts of the state in which they were residents.

This outrage was committed by men who wear the badge of authority, and who have sworn to uphold the law and the constitution. You say that both ex-Governor Peabody of Colorado and Governor Gooding of Idaho have been sustained by the courts in what I call their "anarchy." I beg to differ. The situation in Colorado was as follows: There had been an eight-hour law upon the statute books which the Supreme Court had declared unconstitutional. A constitutional amendment making it obligatory for the Legislature to enact such a law was adopted by a general election by a majority of 46,000 votes. The corporations of the state, by means of a lobby and the collusion of Peabody, prevented the enactment of the law. With this high-handed piece of lawlessness began the history of Colorado's shame, and the long list of crimes that have since been committed with such a beginning. Every official elected by the people was deposed at the point of a gun, and millions of Peabody and the Mine Owners' Association were put in their places. The members of the Western Federation of Labor were rounded up, beaten, shot, deported or thrown in bull-pens, their stores destroyed and their wives and daughters insulted and abused at the point of a gun.

Peabody afterward had much to say about lawlessness. But if anything has ever happened in the history of any state that betrays such contempt for law and such utter disregard for the principle upon which popular government is founded, it has not up to this time been disclosed. Concerning the kidnapping by Governor Gooding and McFarland of Moyer, Haywood and the courts have not yet passed judgment.

It is to be remembered that all depends upon the viewpoint. Russell, Tarbell, Steffens, London, Sinclair are all muck-rakes—according to the interests affected by their writing. To be virtuous is to be loquacious and to tell the truth is to be a crank. As to impudence, I fully acknowledge it. Impudence is the chaotic order of things and the indifference of so many who could help to revolutionize matters. It is necessary to build a fire under some people to get them out of their slumber. This does not move backward. Neither does it stand still, although at times it appears to move very slowly.

Some few years ago no Socialist writer could get an article published outside of the Socialist press. There appeared to be a conspiracy of silence on the subject of socialism, that all depends upon the viewpoint. Russell, Tarbell, Steffens, London, Sinclair are all muck-rakes—according to the interests affected by their writing.

SEATTLE ON SIDE TRACK

NORTH BANK ROAD WILL DIVERT MUCH BUSINESS.

Easy Grades Along the Columbia Will be Utilized to the Advantage of Portland.

SPOKANE, Wash., July 14.—(Special.)—Spokane railroad officials believe President Hill will carry out his promise to extend the Portland to Seattle line through an independent route, and the inference is that Portland will be materially benefited.

Northern Pacific engineers are already in the field between Spokane and the proposed right of way of the Pasco-Riparian branch in an effort to locate the most advantageous grade and the least curves, aged six years, and the route out, it is said, touches Waahutena, thence through Devil's Canyon to the Snake River, tapping the western terminal at or near Lewiston.

A main line from Spokane to Portland, more adequate than the present one, can be made. The extreme grades between Spokane and Moscow, approximately 1 per cent in many instances, as well as the multitude of curves that are encountered, have long been perplexing to the engineers. Hundreds of allegations, several officials even go so far as to say that almost any route would be preferable to the one now being used.

One effect of the new route will be to divert immense passenger and freight traffic from Spokane to the Coast by the way of Portland. It is said that the plan if carried into execution would result in a reduction of trans-Pacific business for Seattle.

Most of the Puget Sound business, it is believed, would be transported to Tacoma and Seattle as usual by the proposed new line to the Coast. The new route, it is believed, will become the short line to the coast, and in a year, it is said, will be required to finish the Pasco-Portland line, only 15 miles of grading having been completed to date.

FOUR CHARGE

Strange Story of Proof of Dreyfus' Innocence.

TOLD BY OLD SCHOOLMATE

Discovery Made by Bunau Varilla in Comparing Letter With Bordercau—Publication of the Document Convicted Esterhazy.

PARIS, July 14.—As a fitting epilogue to the acquittal of Alfred Dreyfus, M. Philip Bunau-Varilla today gave the Associated Press a remarkable story of how he first discovered positive proof of Dreyfus' innocence and the guilt of Major Count Esterhazy, a story heretofore known to only a few intimates, including Dreyfus, who had been in a recent dinner here that while the establishment of his innocence was attributed to many causes, M. Bunau-Varilla's chance detection of the counterfeit bordercau, or the main document on which the prosecution relied, was the real cause of the triumph of justice. M. Bunau-Varilla said:

Dreyfus and I entered the polytechnic school together in 1885. One way parted on our graduation, he going into the army and I becoming a government engineer. We seldom came together, but once, on a project which I was directing for the development of the French Congo. Later Dreyfus wrote me asking information about the project for the purpose of writing a geographical study of the French possessions in Africa. Through an oversight the letter remained unanswered.

Had Photograph of Bordercau.

It was some years later that Dreyfus was arrested and convicted before a secret court-martial. I first thought he was a victim of the prevailing anti-Semitic sentiment, the conviction appeared to establish his guilt. Happening to dine afterwards with my brother Maurice, proprietor of the Matin, he spoke of having a photographic reproduction of the bordercau constituting the only proof on which Dreyfus was convicted. One of the official photos of the bordercau had been submitted to the court, but some one had photographed one of the photos and this was delivered to my brother with the idea that its publication would prevent further assertions of its authenticity. However, Maurice decided not to publish it, as he did not wish again to call public attention to Dreyfus, who was then considered to be a vile traitor.

Handwriting Not Dreyfus'.

When my brother spoke of the bordercau, the idea flashed across my mind that I might compare the document with the thing written by Dreyfus during our school days at the polytechnic school. I finally found the old, unanswered letter in which Dreyfus asked for information relative to the Congo.

In Dreyfus' letter to me, the words having a double "r" were written with a long "r" first and a short "r" second, the bordercau was just the reverse. My brother made an independent comparison of the bordercau and the letter, and reached the same conclusion, namely, that the handwriting of the letter about the Congo was not that of the bordercau. As together we realized this discovery, we felt as though an earthquake had shaken us.

Proves Esterhazy Wrote It.

Maurice immediately announced his determination to publish the photograph of the bordercau, so that everyone possessing a copy written by Dreyfus would be able to make comparisons, and the following day the people generally and the Dreyfus family were made acquainted with the handwriting of the bordercau. The appearance of the photograph of the bordercau led M. Castro, a stockbroker, to recognize it as being in the handwriting of one of his clients, Count Esterhazy, thus precipitating Esterhazy's trial and the publication of Zola's famous "I accuse" letter. If I had not forgotten to destroy the photograph of the bordercau, it would have appeared in the Matin and Dreyfus would be dead in shame or still confined on Devil's Island.

DREYFUS HERO OF FRANCE

Besieged by Friends and Swamped With Congratulations.

PARIS, July 14.—The celebration of the French national holiday today assumed special significance in connection with Dreyfus resuming his place in the army. The Queen's letter this morning published a decree announcing his reinstatement and promotion and inscription on the list of chevaliers of the Legion of Honor.

Dreyfus, who remains in his apartments, is besieged by many friends, who are congratulating him on his final success. Hundreds of congratulations have reached him by mail, telephone and cable. The date of his receiving his sword and putting on his regiment awaits his assignment to a regiment.

CROWDS CHEERING DREYFUS

Review of Troops on Bastille Day Causes Demonstration.

PARIS, July 14.—President Fallieres today reviewed the troops at Longchamps. The principal features of the day were the enormous crowds and the frequent shouts of "Vive Dreyfus," showing the prevailing sentiment.

He passed a calm night, and no complications have developed. The wound is on the upper part of the right lung.

HURT COMES TO RELIEF

to the cause, nothing has been said against him by the members of his flock. Outsiders have disapproved of his methods of working people up to a high pitch of religious feeling. Ryan has been engaged in evangelistic work here for six or eight years, and has always had a band of followers of the sort that take up with him with novelty in religious worship. It was he who, a few years ago, rented the "Half Way House," a resort of exceedingly bad repute in North Salem, and turned it into a refuge home for fallen women. The enterprise fell through.

After the failure of that project, Ryan secured the property of the old State Blind School, on Twelfth street, and opened his mission. A church was erected and the old Blind School building was used as a "holiness college," a sort of boarding school, where several families, mostly women and children, lived. Some time after the exposure of the Greenfield proceedings at Corvallis, it was discovered that U. B. Evans, one of the preachers in the Holiness Mission, was maintaining improper relations with a woman teacher, and an investigation brought a confession. Evans was dismissed and left for the East.

Ryan was an advocate of extending foreign missions. In the continuation of the controversy, his exercise of authority was questioned. He had not been successful in securing donations as had Dowle, he followed the same policy in retaining absolute control of the property and funds. In the contest for control, possession prevailed, however, and the dissenters withdrew. He erected a new church building and selected W. McCandlish as leader. Ryan still rules at the mission and has also acquired a five-acre tract south of this city, where he expects to build up a mission under his exclusive control and managed according to his ideas.

But the tragedies of Holy Rollerism have had a retarding effect upon the type of religious enthusiasm which manifests itself in wild shouting, embracing and prostration. In such cases, fanaticism no longer be safely preached or quietly taught, for an aroused public sentiment will take vigorous action to put an end to such practices. Many people who were regular attendants at the Holiness Mission, and worshippers in the church, have ceased even this connection with the orthodox sect, and themselves unwittingly involved in scandal.

CONTRACTS FOR REBATES

Damaging Evidence Against Standard Oil Is Being Collected.

CLEVELAND, O., July 14.—(Special.)—Certified copies of contracts which show that the Standard Oil Company has colluded with the government to give rebates to the country have been demanded of all the railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Circular letters sent out by the commission by the railroads in this city, and it is understood that most of them will be prompt in sending in the copies of the contracts. In case any of the railroads fail to do so, the company with the commission's request, that they will at once issue subpoenas for the contracts and will administer punishment to the railroads if the process-servers fail to get the contracts.

The contracts wanted are for the supplies of lubricating oil that are bought by the Standard Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company of Franklin, Pa., which is an offshoot of the Standard Oil Company. Independent oil men have put forth every effort to get some of this oil business away from the Galena company, but none of them have ever succeeded.

ROOSEVELT WILLING TO MEDIATE.

RAMSEY CONFESSES POOLING

All St. Louis Bridges Combine and Divide Earnings.

ST. LOUIS, July 14.—Joseph Ramsey, Jr., former president of the Washburn Railroad, who was president and general manager of the Terminal Railroad Association from 1882 to 1898, was the principal witness today in the Government's suit to dissolve the Terminal Railroad Association, which combines the three corporations owned to solicit business. Mr. Ramsey said the new terminal "community of interest" prorated the revenue of all traffic crossing the Mississippi. The Eads Bridge Company received 55 per cent as its share, the Merchants' Bridge Company 25 per cent, and the Terminal Association 20 per cent, irrespective of the volume of business handled by each company. Mr. Ramsey was held in custody by the Government, which the Terminal Association obtained possession of the Washburn Ferry Company and how subsequently 10 of the 14 roads and bridges in the city combine and secured control of the Alton bridge, thus preventing absolutely any railroad from acquiring an independent entrance into the city.
