RECORD-BREAKING CREW GOES NORTH

Portland Rowing Club Has Best Senior Four in Its History.

COAST RECORD IS BROKEN

If Local Oarsmen Equal Practice Performances at Nelson, B. C., Canadians Will Have to Show Great Speed to Win.

Dan Murphy and the pick of the Port-land Rowing Club material will leave the Union Depot on the Spokane fiver at 6:15 this evening, bound for Nelson, B. where the fitteenth annual regatts of North Pacific Association of Ama-er Oarsmen will be held on July 27

For several months the local men have been training consistently and faithfully. The last few weeks their condition has been watched and safe-guarded as carefully as ever was that of any puglist. The places on the various crews have only been won by out and out competition and if the Fortland Rowing Club entries go down in defeat it will be only because other clubs of the North Pacific Coart have believe men.

because other clubs of the North Pa-cific Coast have better men.

Vancouver, Victoria and Nelson are the clubs entered and to beat the husky Canadian lads has been proved in the past to be a feat of no small proportions. The northerners are all heavy fellows, and they live in the boats.

The race of the meet, of course, will be the senior four. It can be said without hestitation that Portland has never been represented by a huskier or faster four.

the senior four. It can be said without hesitation that Portland has never been represented by a huskier or faster four than they will send north tonight. The work of these carsmen has been kept in the dark, but it is known that even in their heavy work boat and without compelition, they have often equalled and several times bettered the best time over made on the Willamette over a mile and a half course. In other words, at practice, the Portland Rowing Club crow has broken the record held by the University of California crew of 1866 and if the Canadians get away with the senior race they will at the same time have to get under Coast record time.

At the Portland Rowing Club all is bustle and excitement. Finishing touches are being put on the frall racing shells and everything put in readiness for the departure this evening for the regartia. The big senior crew took its last practice spin yesterday morning, accompanied by the combines, and "Dan" Murphy.

A speed trial was rowed quer a measured course and, although the time was not divulged. Coach Murphy wore a satisfied smile at the finish and the knowing ones said nothing but looked wise. It is known that the crew have been rowing in considerably under the record time, and that the final speed test was more than satisfactory. Their most been rowing in considerably under the record time, and that the final speed test was more than satisfactory. Their most formidable competitors are the senior four of the Victoria Club, but the Portland crew has been doing such good rowing that they should have no trouble in defeating this crew, which has pulled down the big race for three successive years. In physique the Portland crew is a fine-tooking "bunch"; strong and well built, tanned from the wind and the sun, they look like young giants. In weight they are considerably the heaviest crew that has represented Portland. Their average weight is 170 pounds. Their positions are as follows: Smid, bow; Pemberton, No. 2 Zimmerman, No. 3 and King, stroke. Pemberton and Zimmerman were on the Stanford crew this year, and were selected for the crew from 35 candidates. They have had the benefit of Murphy's coaching while at Stanford and are both finished oarsmen. King has been in the stroke seat in the senior crew before and pulls a splendid oar, as does Smid at Their blade work has improved, and they are swinging together in a manner which will make the other junior crews from British Columbia waters hustle to defeat them.

In the junior singles, Harley and possibly Pemberton will compete. Harley has had some experience, having rowed last year at the Lewis and Clark Fair. Pemberton is a novice at sculling, but in Altogether, the Portland Rowing Club is to be represented at the regatta by the best crews that have rowed on the Wil-lamette River for years. Much of this is due to the untiring efforts of Dan Mur-

The entries have all been received from the north, and it is found that Ed. Gloss will have no competition in the sentor singles, a fact which is deplorable in a way. Gloss is in the best condition he has ever made and he has a crackerhas ever made and he has a cracker-jack new boat specially made for him in England. He had hopes of Young go-ing against the cracks on the Coast and since Pape does not seem disposed to race him. Gloss must seek opponents in the north. However, the Canadians appar-ently thought it a hopeless care to enter any one against Gloss, and consequently he will have to row an exhibition race for his own editastion and that of the for his own edification and that of the races and the entries in full are

TENNIS GRACKS TO MEET IN TOURNEY

Play in the Oregon State Championship Begins Tuesday Morning.

LONG LIST OF ENTRIES

Goss and Lewis Will Contest in Doubles-Tyler of Seattle, Agar of Great Falls, and Benham of Tacoma Entered in Singles.

Tennis has been very popular in Portland this Summer, and now the days are at hand which will put a climax to the Tuesday morning play in the annual Oregon state championship commences, and the second week in August many of the local sharps will report at Tacoma for the Pacific Northwest International tournament, which is scheduled for that city.

There are two rattling good tennis clubs in this city, and best of all, they work in this city, and best of all, they work in perfect harmony. The Multnomah Club has always stood for the best in the racquet line on the Coast, and the Irvington Tennis Club has begun its career with an equally high standard.

The Oregon state tennis tourney is the event of the year. The beautiful Fiske cup is the trophy around which competition centers, and fortunately for the sport it has had wide axparience in the marker cup is the trophy around which competition centers, and fortunately for the sport it has had wide experience in the matter of holders. By the terms of the gift, the cup must be won three years in euccession, and there is no immediate prospect of its finding a permanent home. Since its offer the cup has gone the round of winners in this wise: W. A. Bethel, 1889; W. A. Goss, 1800; A. T. Goward, 1801; W. A. Bethel, 1802; L. R. Freeman, 1803; R. B. Powell, 1904; G. R. Busch, 1905.

Busch, who lives in San Francisco, will be unable to play again this year, and accordingly the beautiful trophy is seeking a new owner. For a time it looked as if the cup would become the property of Goss, Wickersham or Bellinger, the three strongest local players, but now word has been received that Tyler, of Seattle, who disposed of Goss in the last competition, will enter, and also Agar of Great Falls, Mont, and Benham of Tacoma, both players experienced and clever wan the racquet. In the face of these entries, if the cup stays at home it will only an experienced and its will only a stay and form the second form to the second to the coup stays at home it will only an experienced and clever wan the racquet. Goss and Lewis in Doubles.

But the greatest interest in the coming tournament from a local standpoint prob-ably centers about the doubles. Goss and McAlpin have been the hardest competi-tors of Bellinger and Wickersham, who tora of Bellinger and Wickersham, who have cleaned up things so far, but now Carl Lewis, Goss' old partner, has returned, and these two are entered in the doubles. For two years Lewis and Goss carried off the doubles honors in the state tourney, and they are out to scalp Bellinger and Wickersham, last year's winners. McAlpin has hooked up with Agar, the Montana crack, and this team may also figure strongly in the doubles.

Miss Heltahu, the present holder of the state cup in the ladies' singles, will be pitted against Mrs. Baldwin, Mrs. Judge. Mrs. Josephi and Miss Leadbetter, all of whom have been playing in pretty form. There is always much enthusiasm over the ladies' matches, and these promise to be much more closely contested this year than ever before.

Tacoma to Have Tournament.

Since the North Pacific International tournament was held on the Multnomah courts last Summer, the international matches this year at Tacoma will attract more than passing interest from Portland players. In all probability, the best from city will enter this play, along with try and British Columbia. The gentle-men's singles in this play carries with it possession of the Multnomah cup, offered last year by the local club. This cup is now held by W. A. McBurney, of Sponow held by W. A. McBurney, of Spo-kane.

During the same week the champion-ships of the Pacific Northwest, which have been played on the Tacoma courts for the last 17 years, will also be decided. Walter Goss is the present Northwest champlon, and holder of the famous Thorne cup: which goes with this event. The Portland player will be on hand to defend his title. Many other valuable prizes will be offered by the Tacoma club to stimulate interest in this tournament.

The Seattle dispatches say that Gum did not appear to have anything—he was unlittable. Herein lies a tale. Gum is one of the coolest, grittlest youngsters who ever put on a baseball suit. Last week with his southpast thumb as hig as a watermelon, he asked to be allowed to go in, saying he could win with siralght that was my first professional fight and as I have not had the gloves on for a year and a half I was a bit surprised myself to find that I could make it warm for O'Brien. SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 21.—(Special.)—Largely because of pressure exerted by President Joseph Maccabe, of the Amateur Athletic Union, the Pacific Coast Association, a branch of the A. A. U., has dropped boxing from its list of sports and in the future will sanction no exhibitions in any clubs. It has been a long time coming—this purification—but it was bound to be, and no one was greatly surprised at the vofe.

Herbert Hauser, of the Century Athletic Club, was the one to bring the matter to the attention of the officials of the association. He directed the attention of the officials to the so-called four-round amateur boxing matches that have

This, of course, is only one step in clarifying the situation. Whether the Olympic Club will withdraw from the boxing game entirely is a question, but if it follows the implied orders of the association it will have to do something of the kind. But it is not the Olympic Club that has brought disrepute, although it is only fair to say that Olympic Club members have been among the boxers. The supervisors have been in the habit of parceling out permits for monthly or semi-monthly amateur bouts. As has already been suggested, what the supervisors should do is to rate these bouts as professional. It would give the right name to the matches, for no one supposes that the boys are working for the mere that the boys are working for the mere

Al Coney, an enthusiastic athlete of the city, who had planned to take a team of San Francisco athletes to New York in September to compete in the A. A. U. games, had a black eye put on his project and has concluded it would be best to abandon his plans. There was no objection to the team poing East, but the Olympia Cith, wanted it distinctly no objection to the team going East, but the Olympic Club wanted it distinctly understood that it should not be known as the Olympic Club team, and furthermore, than Coney should not solicit funds under the guise of sending the men of the famous club to the far East. Therefore the club passed a resolution forbldding its athletes to form any team for competition. Andrew Glarner, the long-distance man; Plaw, the weight man, and Ollie Snedigar, the University of California crack, were all slated to make the trip. The club resolution was a blow to the aspirations, and Glarner and Plaw, both of whom are members of the Olympics, and Coney evidently discovered that he would have a hard time collecting funds to send an unidentified team to the East. For all of which reasons the plan was given up.
