Boys Say They Threw Bones Picked Up in Ruins Toward the Stove.

EXPERT HAS HIS DOUBTS

Dr. Goucher Examined the Charred Remains Found in Ashes, but Cannot Tell Whether They Are Human or Otherwise.

TILLAMOOK, Or., July 18 -(Special.)-The prosecution in the case against A. J. Hembree, who is on trial here charged with the murder of his wife and daughter, was somewhat surprised today when ter, was somewhat surprised today when the two sons of the defendant testified that they had picked up several bones while searching the ruins of their home after the fire, and that they carelessly threw them in the direction of the stove-where the accused is supposed to have placed pieces of skull for cremation.

The testimony of the two boys was practically the same, and was to the effect that while they were raking about the ruins they noticed that the stove had been upset. This happened, according to the sons, before the bones were found in the stove by the state witnesses.

The defense began its case this morning

The defense began its case this morning with Dr. E. E. Goucher, of McMinnville, on the stand as an expert witness. He said that the head of a human being would burn more readily than other parts of the body. He had examined the bones found in the stove, but could not state hether the bones were human or other-

Wise.
Upon cross-examination by District Attorney McNary, the witness was forced to admit that none of the pieces of bone found in the stove looked like those of a human being.

The courtroom was crowded when Hembree himself took the stand on his own behalf. He repeated the account of the fire which he gave to Coroner C. E. Reynolds and others soon after the fire, clinging to his first version of the affair with little variation. Hembree has told the story so many times that his testimony on the stand deviated very little, if any.

F. Atkinson, who lived near Hembree at Sand Lake, was recalled and questioned about a tooth found in the ruins. During the cross-examination be said that in gathering up the remains he did not find anything resembling skull

Following young Atkinson on the stand Hembree's two sons were called. This is all the evidence submitted by the de-fense, and the case will go to the jury

It is said here that, should the jury ac-quit Hembers of murdering his wife and daughter, he would be arrested again upon another charge.

FIRE PRECAUTIONS AT ASYLUM Patients Can Be Quickly Removed in Case of Danger.

SALEM, Or., July 28.—(Special:)—Lest friends and relatives of the 1420 patients confined in the Insane Asylum may be unduly concerned as to their welfare on account of the fire which occurred at that institution Friday, an official of the Asylum says that none of the patients were in danger, and would not be even in case of a fire serious enough to destroy a were in danger, and would not be even in case of a fire serious enough to destroy a considerable portion of the building. The facilities for getting patients out of the building are such that a disastrous fire need not cause the loss of a single life. In this particular the building could scarcely be improved.

The Asylum building is in the form of a capital letter E. It is of brick, three stories high, and was built a section at a time, as the increase in the number of patients required. Each section or tier of wards is, therefore, separated from the others by a brick wall, which has no opening except an entrance covered by a sfeel door. Each ward has an en-trance at each end, and there is a stairway at each ward division in taking patients out. Even in that case, resort could be had to the steel fire escapes on the outside of the build-

These fire escapes are in the form of huse steel tubes, with a spiral incline inside. When a man steps into the tube and atts down, he slides swiftly down the auger-shaped incline to the ground.

Crowe's employer are of the belief that he has committed suicide. A thorough search of the timber aurrounding the mill has not disclosed any trace of the missing man.

Crowe invested in the mill about four months ago. Besides being temperate he was very religious, while his business affairs were in good shape. Besides the mill, he owns 100 acres of rich timber land in this county and also 400 acres of land in Nova Scotia, where he has a wife and two daughters, and whence he came to this county. His liabilities are said to not exceed $400, and the only explanation that can be offered for his strange disappearance is that, while despondent, he has ended his life.

Henry Mây, one of the employes, says that recently, while at work about the mill, Crowe had a severe fall, striking on his head, and for this reason it is suspected that his mind has become affected, although, prior to his disappearance, he gave no indications of any mental trouble.

TACOMA. Wash., July 28.—(Special.)—
The Union Pacific franchise for an entrance into Tacoma by way of Jefferson avenue became void today. It was announced yesterday that the time limit was August 6. The confusion arose from the fact that the franchise provided for a payment of $108 a year for the use of the streets, to be paid on or before the first Monday in August. The time limit for the acceptance of the franchise, however, was fixed at 36 days after the ordinance had been signed by the Mayor. This limit is ended today, so that Union Pacific now has no right of entrance to Tacoma. The theory gaing ground now is that the long-reported alliance of the Union Pacific and the Milwaukee has actually been effected. broke the small cord which restrained him, and, with a scream, sprang into the scenery and climbed 20 feet above the stage, where he swung a moment and then, as the stage hands ran forward to capture him, leaped on the heads of a party occupying a box.
