Extraordinary Purchase Sale of Standard Silks

Interesting Facts About Long Gloves

Cable reports from Chemnitz, as well as trade conditions throughout the country, indicate a famine in long kid gloves before the winter is over.

Many stores in this country are already short. We ordered an immense quantity of these gloves through our Paris house, from the best French makers, almost a year ago.

Before the winter is over, you may not be able to get your size at any price.

PLAN GIANT WHEAT CORNER

American Farmers Meet in Convention at Topeka Tomorrow.

REPRESENT ENTIRE WEST

Fifteen Hundred Delegates Will Voice Sentiment of 750,000 Tillers of Soil—Scheme Backed by Millions in Gold.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—Three-quarters of a million American farmers are about to corner the entire wheat crop of the United States. A concerted and somewhat strategic movement in the direction which has been under way for months, promises to crystallize into definite action immediately.

The congress is an offspring of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union—an organization whose phenomenal expansion entitles it to consideration as a factor of material consequence in the industrial and commercial affairs of this country.

The purpose is to urge co-operation all along the line, to keep the farmers posted, and eventually to control acreage so that there will be little surplus to carry over.

And the money to do all this—where is it coming from? For answer the organizers point to the $25,000,000 lying in the state banks of Kansas to the credit of the farmers as guarantee that this time Wall street will not be asked to stick a finger into the pie.

Among the states represented in the congress, as indicated by hotel reservations which have been made, are Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Virginia, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, South Dakota, North Dakota, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Wisconsin, Nebraska, New Mexico, Indian Territory, Tennessee, Colorado, California and Washington.

What is only one of many products to be taken up for discussion by the congress. It happens that just now particular attention is being directed toward wheat, the idea being to eliminate the middle men or speculators, in order that the reaper of the wheat may also be the reaper of the profit.

"It takes muscle to raise a crop; it takes brains to sell the crop for a profit." This is the battle cry of the Farmers' Union. Note the emphasis upon the word "organization." In 1892, the late Newt Gresham, a picturesque and brilliant character of southwestern rural life, organized the first union in Rains County, Texas.

Newt Gresham, the founder of the union, is dead, but his soul goes marching on, and from the humble start-up in Rains County, Texas, four years ago, the union has spread until membership now aggregates 700,000.

From these we have learned a simple lesson. We are told that all professions of men under the sun can be organized successfully except the man who plows. Is this true? If so, then we of all the people are most unfortunate. Great combinations of capital now control the price of every commodity that is made for man's use and happiness.

HAUNTED BY HIS VICTIM

MURDERER WILLIAM HOSE SAYS HE CANNOT SLEEP.

Face of Dead Woman Always Before Him as He Cowers Terror-Stricken in His Cell.

Continually haunted by the face of the woman he murdered, and ever feeling her parting kiss upon his lips, Henry Hose tosses on his prison cot, unable to sleep or eat.

Hose murdered Nellie Doyle, alias Madge Wilson, Friday morning in the Winchester lodging-house. Yesterday afternoon he was arraigned before Presiding Judge Sears on the charge of murder in the first degree.

"I only want the whole business to be over with quickly," he said as he turned his head towards the wall, and his body shook as though he was sobbing.

That Hose murdered Mrs. Doyle in a manner more brutal than he admits in the firm belief of Deputy Coroner Arthur L. Finley, who has charge of the investigation, and gives it as his opinion that Hose cruelly choked the woman with his hands, fractured her skull with a beer bottle, and then finished her with a razor.

Careful examination of the body revealed imprints of fingernails about the neck, plainly indicating that he had been choked, and there was a bad fracture of the skull, such as could not have been caused by a fall. It is thought a beer bottle found in the room was the weapon with which Hose crushed her skull.

A jury impaneled by Deputy Coroner Finley yesterday afternoon listened to evidence in the case and brought in a verdict that the woman met her death in the Winchester House, Third and Burnside streets, by incision of the throat, the deed by Henry William Hose.
