MR. FRAKES IS FOUND

On September 21, Mr. N. O. Almblom, editor of The Enterprise, Monument, Oregon, ordered the following advertisement inserted in The Weekly Oregonian, issues of September 27, October 4, 11, 18

INFORMATION WANTED REGARDING the whereabouts of J. H. Frakes, age 57. He was last heard from at 8t. Martin's Springs, Wash. Please adress N. O. Almbiom, editor The Enterprise, Monument, Or.

On October 20 Mr. J. H. Frakes wrote The Oregonian from Mineral Springs Hotel, Carson, Washington, as follows:

"Mr. Shipherd, the manager of this place, told me yesterday when I came back that he saw in The Daily Oregonian, about a month ago, an advertisement of some one wishing to learn my address. Will you please send me advertisement or a copy of it, and oblige, "(Signed) J. H. FRAKES, "Mineral Springs Hotel, Carson, Wash."

There is perhaps no paper published in the United States which assures advertisers quicker returns than The Oregonian. It is conceded generally by advertisers that The Oregonian is read by a greater number of people per copy issued than any daily paper in the world. The Oregonian's supremacy in the field of the Pacific Northwest is un-

VALUE OF CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

On October 24, the following advertisement was inserted in the classified columns of The Oregonian, on order of George L. Davis, editor Creswell Department, Eugene Weekly Register,

FOR SALE-MATCHED BLACK TEAM, 8 years, 2800 lbs., sound, R. H. Parsons, Creewell, Oregon.

Order called for insertion of this advertising one time. On October 25, Mr. Davis wrote The Oregonian, ordering this advertising inserted till forbid. Mr. Parsons, from the first day's insertion, received two inquiries about the team he offered for sale.

A noticeable feature in connection with the regular increase in the amount of classified advertising run by The Oregonian, is found in the recognition given this paper by patrons outside of Portland, advertisers who have found the use of The Oregonian's classified columns profitable.
