

GALE AT COOS BAY

Schooner Sausalito Drags Anchor and Is Driven on Beach.

RAFT OF LOGS IS WRECKED

All Southbound Steamers Storm-Bound for 24 Hours—Wires Go Down and Bay Cities Are Shut Off From World.

MARSHFIELD, Or., Jan. 5.—Thursday brought the worst storm Coos Bay has seen for many years. The wind blew a gale and the rain was constant for over 24 hours.

The schooner Sausalito was the next to fall in line. She was anchored in the lower bay and had both anchors out, but the wind was too strong for her and she dragged anchor, going through the wharf at Jarvis landing and high across the beach, where she was wrecked at high tide by the tug with very little damage.

The telegraph and telephone lines were blown down and Coos Bay has been entirely cut off from the outside world, even the mail failing to make its appearance. The steamers Breakwater, Plant, Kilburn and Tamalpais were storm-bound for 24 hours, all being bound south.

Yesterday morning the Coquille River began to rise so rapidly that when the passenger train which left Marshfield at 8 A. M. for Myrtle Point, was unable to return after reaching Myrtle Point, it returned as far as Johnson's Mill and the passengers walked over to Coquille city and there was a special sent out from here to bring them in, but when the special train reached Coquille and attempted to return the water had risen so fast that it was impossible to leave Coquille city, so some of them are tied up by the freight.

Fred Schroeder, who has lived on the Coquille River for many years, says that in the last 20 years he has not seen the water rise so fast as it did yesterday.

It has broken many booms and millions of feet of logs have come out over the Coquille Bay, and the water to the mills and loggers will be heavy. While a crew of men was trying to break a jam on the north fork of the Coquille River, near Lewis, Jack Boon was captured in a boat and drowned, so far his body has not been recovered. Mr. Boon was a resident of Sumner and was a man highly respected by all who knew him.

OREGON CITY LOCKS CLOSED

Water Too High to Operate—Water Expected to Begin Falling Today.

OREGON CITY, Or., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—The Willamette River locks were closed at an early hour this morning because of the high water, which reached 12 feet 8 inches at 10 o'clock. The upper river has raised 1.7 feet in the last 24 hours, and is expected to come to a standstill before morning. During the day the river raised 4 feet, and during the night it rose 2 feet.

The Tualatin River is largely responsible for the late rise in the Upper Willamette, and the Tualatin has a large scope of level territory, and the water is already 4 feet 4 inches, making itself apparent.

Below the river stands at 22 feet tonight, but will likely fall before morning, as the Clark's falls have been falling for the last 24 hours, and there is no back water from the Columbia. Last night the lower river registered 18.7 feet, and has raised 2.7 feet in 24 hours.

There is no probability of the mills and factories at the falls having to close, although the power has been slightly affected.

Waters Subside at Roseburg.

ROSEBURG, Or., Jan. 5.—The high waters are subsiding and the extent of the damages to farms is now being reported, and is found to be very heavy. The mountain streams throughout the county have done a good deal of washing out soil, grain, fences and catching stock and drowning them.

The railroad tracks are now all clear, and there is no apparent reason for further delay of passenger trains. The first train from the north will arrive about midnight tonight.

Washington County Forewarned.

HILLSBORO, Jan. 5.—(Special.)—The heavy frosts of the first of the week did but little damage in this county, although the rainfall here exceeded that of other parts of the state by actual measurement. The bridges were several years ago built higher and out of the reach of high water, and as a consequence it is stated that $200 will cover the entire bridge loss of the past week.

Year's Rainfall at Albany.

ALBANY, Or., Jan. 4.—Albany's total rainfall in 1906 was 28.2 inches. It was distributed among the different months as follows: January, 1.5 inches; February, 5.90; March, 2.61; April, 2.01; May, 2.92; June, 2.35; July and August, none; September, .88; October, 2.31; November, .98; December, 2.49.

Gales Creek Overflowing.

FOREST GROVE, Or., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—The rain and wind have done no serious damage here, but the water of Gales Creek has spread far out over the bottoms, and is said to be higher than it has been for three years.

Gray's Harbor People Shiver.

HOQUIAM, Wash., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—Gray's Harbor is experiencing the coldest snap of the year, and tonight the thermometer is very low. No snow fell today.

WANT ADDITIONAL JUDGES

Senator Piles Asks to Have Two Added to Ninth Circuit.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—If a bill introduced yesterday by United States Senator S. H. Piles is passed and approved, Cornelius H. Hanford, now Judge of the District Court here, is expected to be made Circuit Judge.

The Piles bill provides for the appointment of two additional judges on the Court of Appeals, for the ninth circuit, which includes Washington, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, California and Nevada.

ICE IN STAKE RIVER

Tie-Up of Steamboats Hourly Expected at Lewiston.

TEMPERATURE IS FALLING

Colder Weather in Sight and Vessels Seek Safe Anchorage—Wheat Situation Will Be Affected. River at Good Stage.

Ice is forming in the Snake River and a general tie-up of river steamers is hourly expected. A general snow storm has been raging for the past two days, and the thermometer has been hovering between 22 and 24 above zero. Today much colder weather is expected and sufficient ice to stop navigation will have formed by tomorrow morning.

LIVED OVER 100 YEARS

CHIEF JACKSON HAS GONE TO HAPPY HUNTING GROUNDS.

Well-known Character at Coos Bay for Sixty Years Dies at North Bend Home.

MARSHFIELD, Or., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—Jackson, the old Indian chief, has gone to the happy hunting grounds. He passed peacefully away at his home near North Bend yesterday. The old chief had been on Coos Bay for nearly 60 years, and his age is not known, but he was over 100 years old.

THOMPSON OUT FOR HUNT

This Practically Decides That the Nominee Will Be Speaker.

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 5.—(Special.)—It is pretty well settled that J. Frank Hunt will be chosen Speaker. The plan of holding the caucus this evening was abandoned and the matter will not be settled until tomorrow. The north has been entirely unable to agree and it seems some of those from the section have no desire to appear as candidates. This is noticeable in the Nez Perce delegation, which appears to be guided in its position by G. W. Bennett, who is a member of the caucus.

Mr. Hunt is a resident of Lewiston and has been a member of the caucus for several years. He is a well-known character in the north and is expected to be elected. The caucus will be held at 7 o'clock tonight.

Name Hatch's Successor Later.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 5.—Governor Mead announced yesterday that he would not decide upon the appointment of a successor to the late Judge George W. Mead until after the caucus, which is held in the afternoon at Jefferson, and Chlallam Counties, until after the convening of the Legislature, on January 14.

Several candidates are already in the field for the position. Among those whose names have been suggested by their friends are: A. W. Biddison, City Alder; J. H. Bennett, Mayor; J. H. Bennett, Mayor; J. H. Bennett, Mayor; J. H. Bennett, Mayor.

Prizewinners in Map Contest.

CHEHALIS, Wash., Jan. 5.—Drawing was held in the map drawing contest at Chehalis. The contest was won by Bennett, who received $100. The runner-up was U. E. Harman, who received $50.

Relief to Send Her to Oregon.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 5.—A majority of the Supreme Court this afternoon, in deciding the Maud Creffield-Bether Mitchell case, refused to allow deportation to Oregon, but sustains the action of Judge Prather, of the King County Court, with respect to calling a tenancy commission. The opinion is signed by Judge Dunbar, Hadley and Bucklin, Chief Justice, and Justice Root stands the opinion opposing deportation, but not stating his reasons.

Want Mail Service Resumed.

HOQUIAM, Wash., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—The settlers in the Clearwater county north of here are preparing a petition for the members of the Jefferson County legislative board praying that a mail service be established again in that district.

Bryan's Date at Eugene.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Or., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—William Jennings Bryan will lecture at the University of Oregon, in Willard hall, on the evening of Monday, January 7, and is expected to greet the distinguished orator.
