CAPTAIN RATHBONE HEHE

ACCOMPANIED BY GUGGENHEIM-MORGAN REPRESENTATIVE.

Comes to Confer With Stockholders of Anglo-American Oil & Coal Co. Developing Rich Properties.

Captain E. J. Rathbone, field superintendent of the Anglo-American Oil & Coal Company, an institution organized and financed by local capitalists for developing extensive oil and coal interests in Alaska, accompanied by Captain George L. Hill, was in the city yesterday to confer with the stockholders of the company. Captain Hill is the personal representative of J. Pierpont Morgan and the Guggenheims, who are having built at Supple's yards in this city a $30,000 steamboat. This vessel will be placed in commission as soon as possible, in charge of Captain Hill and will run from Katalla, the terminus of the Morgan & Guggenheim Railroad and carry supplies up Copper River.

The railroad which these people are building will run up Bering River and across the lands owned by the Anglo-American Oil & Coal Company. Construction will be rushed in the early Spring, $10,000,000 of bonds having just been sold in New York. The building of this railroad means much to the Anglo-American Oil & Coal Company, which owns over 11,000 acres of the choicest oil locations in the Bering River coal and oil fields. The holdings of the company include some of the richest coal fields in the world, producing anthracite and semi-bituminous coking coal.

Professor George C. Martin, geological expert for the United States Government, after spending several years in this immensely rich coal and oil region, made the following report as to the deposits in that section:

The Behring River coal field covers an area of about 70 square miles, including 25 miles of anthracite and 45 miles of semi-anthracite or semi-bituminous coking coal. The seams are numerous and very large, many exceeding 20 feet in width. The average quality of the coal is excellent, the most of the seams being remarkably low in both ash and sulphur. These coals are the equivalent of the Pocahontas, New River and George's Creek coals of the East, and are eminently adapted for use on warships and other purposes for which a high-grade, pure, smokeless steaming coal is required, and for these purposes will command a considerably higher price than any coal now being mined on the Pacific Coast.

There is every prospect that when these mines are opened up and the needed transportation facilities provided, the United States Navy will draw its supply of coal for vessels on the Pacific from this source. A Japanese officer, cousin of Admiral Togo, recently visited the coal fields of Alaska for the purpose of officially investigating them for his government. He reported that the coal was superior in all respects to any that could be procured on the Pacific Coast. He also stated that it was identical with that obtained from Cardiff, Wales, which was used by the Japanese in the recent war.

The Anglo-American Company has expended more than $150,000 in the development of its properties to date and has plans outlined that involve the expenditure of a greater sum during the present year. A drilling outfit, costing $10,000, has been ordered from Pittsburg, and the stockholders of this company will immediately proceed with the thorough development of their promising properties that the assurance of needed transportation facilities justifies.

The officers of the company are: Louis G. Clarke, president; H. L. Pittock, first vice-president; Fred S. Stanley, second vice-president; D. W. Wakefield, third vice-president, and George H. Hill, secretary and treasurer.

ASK INCREASE IN WAGES

Union Teamsters Issue an Ultimatum to Draymen's Association.

Portland's union teamsters have decided to ask for an increase in wages and if the new schedule they propose is not adopted by their employers, will go out on strike March 1. They ask for a raise of wages amounting to 25 cents a day, recognition of the union and time and a half for overtime, Sundays and holidays. The union is composed of practically all the drivers employed by the Draymen's Association and has 340 members.

The new scale of wages adopted by the union and which the draymen will be asked to grant is:

For truck drivers, regularly employed, at ordinary hauling, a minimum of $2.75 a day; for regular work at moving safes, boilers, etc., $3 a day; for ordinary furniture hauling, $2.75; for moving furniture, pianos, etc., $3; light delivery wagon work, $50 a month; lumpers and helpers, $2.75; lumpers and helpers regularly employed to check freight at depots, steamer docks, etc., $3.

The regular work day is set at 10 hours, the same as at present, and 50 per cent extra will be charged for overtime or holiday work. The agreement further specifies that union men must be given preference and that when a non-union man is employed he shall be given but 15 days' time in which to join the union.

Last September the men asked for a new scale of wages and threatened to strike. They held a conference with their employers, when it was pointed out to them that the Fall was a bad time to strike, as men were then pouring into the city for the Winter. The bosses also said that they were not financially able to grant the raise. The men then decided to postpone action until Spring.

PRIZE BREAD ON DISPLAY

WOMEN OF LENTS GRANGE PROVE ABILITY AS BAKERS.

Judges Distribute Three Cash Prizes, and Winners Tell Their Methods of Breadmaking.

Bread, beautiful, creamy, white bread, made from snowy flour, the staff of life, was on exhibition yesterday in the hall of Lents Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, delighting the critical eyes of more than 100 spectators. The occasion was the contest for the $10 in three prizes offered by Professor J. C. McGrew for the three best loaves of bread, and the response was liberal. On a long table in the middle of the room were the loaves entered for the contest. They looked equally good, attesting the skill of the makers, and it was evident that it was going to be a hard matter to decide with fairness to all who had entered. A. F. Miller, the master, selected three judges, Mrs. H. L. Vail, Mrs. A. J. Mason and Mrs. Mary Gilbert. Each loaf placed on exhibition had been carefully wrapped with the name of the baker on the inside. This was removed, and numbers substituted. After careful inspection and long consultation the following awards were made:

First prize, $5, Mrs. L. W. Aussmus, a teacher in the Lents Public School. Second prize, $3, Mrs. W. L. Hotchkiss, of Lents.

Third prize, $2, Mrs. A. F. Miller, of Sellwood.

According to the conditions of the contest each winner of a prize was required to tell how she baked her bread. Mrs. Aussmus said:

"I selected a yeast cake and placed white potatoes in water, which extracted some dark coloring matter from the potatoes. Then boiled them and drained all the water off, mashed and beat them thoroughly with a silver fork, until white and creamy; took half a cup of flour, poured the potato water over the flour. Then I took one cake Magic yeast, soaked it in lukewarm water, added this and the potatoes to the flour and the potato water, added spoonful of sugar and same of salt, thoroughly beat until perfectly white. This, I consider the most important part of the work. Then I let it rise until white. Here I took a quantity of flour in a cup of yeast and a quart of water and milk, two-thirds milk. I added salt and water, thoroughly mixed and beat it until it bubbled, making a sponge, and set it to rise until very light. Then mixed to a stiff dough, not too stiff, thoroughly kneading it until white, and let it rise. Then kneaded it again and let it rise a third time. Then again kneaded it and baked it in a covered pan."

Mrs. Aussmus said in conclusion that her success was reached by following the old-fashioned way of constantly kneading the dough until in proper condition.

Mrs. Hotchkiss, who won the second prize, said she took up the following course: "Took a yeast cake, three large-sized potatoes, which were boiled in just enough water to cover them. When done run them through fruit press, mixed with potatoes and potato water three cooking spoonfuls of flour, three spoonfuls of sugar and two of salt. When cool added one cake of previously soaked yeast, and set in warm place to ferment. Boiled one quart of milk, added one cooking spoonful of butter upon taking the milk from the stove. When cool enough added two spoonfuls of salt and two of sugar. Added flour to make batter and one cup of yeast. When light made the sponge rise to double its size. Then molded into pans, let rise and bake."

Mrs. Miller, winner of the third prize, used the following method: Boiled about five medium-sized potatoes, drained and mashed and strained into a pan, put in about half a cup of sugar, one-third cup of salt and a yeast cake previously soaked in warm water. Used Yeast Foam cake. I let it stand over night and in the morning sifted in warm Hood River flour, kneaded into dough, let it rise and kneaded well a second time. Then molded into loaves and set to rise in warm place. Baked it in moderately heated oven one-half hour.

At the close of the contest the prizes were presented to the winners. Professor McGrew, who supplied the prize money, said that in families where such fine bread was baked as was displayed there could be no such thing as divorce.

The following officers were then installed for the coming year: Master, A. F. Miller; overseer, Mrs. Maud R. Darnall; lecturer, Professor A. F. Hershner; steward, Donald Furey; assistant steward, H. A. Darnall; chaplain, S. Belle Beard; treasurer, F. O. Snuffin; secretary, Mrs. Grace Furey; gatekeeper, W. E. Thomas; Pomona, Emma L. Snuffin; Flora, Christie Thomas; Ceres, Nellie Chauncey; lady assistant steward, Isabel Rockwell. Mrs. H. L. Vail was installing officer.

Duniway and Mr. and Mrs. W. S. O'Brien.

The association, which has returned to its work under its old-time declaration of principles, has issued the following open letter:

"To Every Voter in Oregon. Dear Sir and Friend:—As it has become necessary, as a result of recent developments, to remove from the voting mind the idea that we are masquerading as suffragists under the management of a minority part, the undersigned take this method to inform you, that, while we welcome as voting allies all believers in the fundamental principles of liberty for all the people, regardless of their opinions or affiliations upon any and with every other question in which they may be interested, we are not ourselves a political party, nor do we owe allegiance to any political organization of any name or nature. We believe in the inherent right of self-government for every law-abiding citizen; and we are seeking freedom for ourselves that we may become your legal coadjutors in the formation of a government of all the people, for all the people and by all the people. The mother half of all the people are now rated in law with idiots, insane persons and criminals, from whose legal classification we are looking to you to release us, your wives, mothers, sisters, daughters and sweethearts, at the June election of 1908, thus leaving us free to choose for ourselves at every succeeding election, as to whether or not we shall avail ourselves of the opportunities to which we know it is your duty, and ought to be your pride, to extend to us of your own volition, without waiting for the initiative to come from us.

"ABIGAIL SCOTT DUNIWAY,
"President.
"ELIZABETH CRAIG,
"Corresponding Secretary."

NURSERY AT GRACE CHURCH

Young Women Care for Babies While Mothers Hear Sermon.

In order that tired mothers who have little ones to care for may be permitted to attend the Sunday services at the Grace Methodist Church, 12 young women have banded themselves together for the purpose of amusing the youngsters while the mothers are listening to the sermon. Three of the young women take their turn each Sunday. Thus they have a sort of nursery and kindergarten in the church vestry, with the mothers within reach if it is necessary to call them.
