

GOODY BY NANCY LEE

MISS LISA WOOD, MAID OF HONOR AT THE HONEYMAN WEDDING.

MRS. D. T. HONEYMAN, nee WOOD.

James Honeyman, Thomas Honeyman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Honeyman, Mr. and Mrs. William Warren, Mrs. Jones, Miss Susie Stott, Miss Malle Ezzinger, Miss Carolyn Burns, Miss Hazel Dolph, Miss Inez Barrett, Miss Edith Houghton, Miss Margaret Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kerr, Miss Frances Lewis, Miss Rhoda Felling, Miss Margaret Montgomery, Miss Genevieve Parke, Miss Salie Lewis, Miss Hazel Weidner, Miss Amy Heitshu, Mrs. Frank Freeman, Miss Fanny Brown, Captain and Mrs. James T. Gray, Miss Jean and Miss Grace Gray, Miss Miriam Strong, Chester Murphy, Harry Corbett, Erskine Wood, Thomas Scott Brooke, Ernest Webb, Kurt Koehler, Edward Grele, Jordan Zan, Ione Lewis, Clinton N. McArthur, Marion Dolph, Carl Spahn, Brandt Wickersham, Thales Linticum, Berwick Wood.

And a shower of confetti Mr. and Mrs. Honeyman left in a motor, gaily arranged with flying streamers of white. The throwing of confetti was both novel and artistic, and was witnessed with the fact that it was Mardi Gras day. Mr. and Mrs. Honeyman departed the following afternoon for New York City. In the interim they were guests at Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett's country home on Riverdale Drive.

The trip will be of several weeks' duration. En route to New York City they will visit Max Wood in Ithaca, where he is attending Cornell, and will be entertained in Baltimore, which is Mrs. Wood's former home, and also in Boston.

The largest dinner-dance given for some time was that on Saturday evening at which little Miss Jane Hoge entertained forty of her young friends. Covers were laid for forty at tables where the dominant color note was red. Brass bowls of fresh, red hearts, darts, and a profusion of red tulle adorned the table. The drawing room was wonderfully artistic with hundreds of red hearts of all shapes and sizes which were hung from the ceilings and walls; the high mantel was flanked on either side by many-branched candelabra with lights capped in rose-shaped shades embanked in blossoms. Favors or gifts for the cotillion as the English term them, were huge hearts, which the boys wore, placing their heads through the tissue paper, and thus making an oval frame for the faces. Favors for the girls were white Swiss caps with scarlet streamers. At the dinner, the girls were red satin hearts filled with bonbons. Present were the Misses Nan Russell, Louise Leiter, Elizabeth Jones, Esther Jones, Margaret Meers, Margaret Ayer, Margaret Sheldon, Helen Ladd, Ellen Low Mills, Marguerite Doseh, Ruth Hall, Evelina Magruder, Jessie Colgate, Alberta Stewart, Francis Bradley, Zola Parker, Katherine Hoyt, Catherine Russell, Patsy Stewart, Holt Colgate, Howard Stokes, Harry Lytle, Louis Mills, Holt Cookingham, Bruce Ogden, Alexander Linticum, Walter Gates, Earl Coe, Wayne Coe, Don Tarpley, Ford Tarpley, Roswell Doseh, Henry Goode, Donald McKay, Frank Nau, Hughes Martin, Jackley Bradley, James Eassey, Harry Wright and Jack Wright.

At 10:30 a few of Miss Alice Sansbury's guests arrived for dancing.

Patsy Clarke, the Spokane capitalist, and his wife, passed through Portland, Thursday, en route home from a visit of a month's duration in Los Angeles, Cal.

Mrs. A. J. Giesy and Mrs. Louis G. Clarke entertained on Mardi Gras evening with a dancing party at Murlark Hall to which two hundred cards were sent. At a number of tables bridge was played by devotees of the game who seemingly prefer it to any other form of diversion. Mrs. Giesy wore a becoming gown of blue crepe, the corsage heavily trimmed with lace; Mrs. Clarke, an imported costume of blue chiffon, with insertions of lace. Mrs. Helen Giesy wore a charming dress of shell pink Dresden crepe, fashioned on the semi-empire lines; Mrs. Fletcher Lewis, a handsome, embroidered Dresden crepe in the pastel blue and pink tones.

Dr. and Mrs. James Zan have taken apartments at the Nortonia for the remainder of the winter.

Mrs. Lloyd Wentworth entertained on Friday afternoon with a large tea in compliment to her sister-in-law, Miss Hazel Wentworth. Mrs. Wentworth's pretty home in Irvington was fragrant with the first spring flowers. Upon the mahogany dining table a brass bowl of jonquils gave a charming dash of color. Serving tea and ices were Mrs. George Wentworth, Jr., Mrs. Walter A. Goss, Mrs. Ernest Laidlaw and Mrs. William Morrison (Miss Kate Bellinger), Miss Carlotta Parker and Miss Malda Hart assisted in serving. While not a violet luncheon, those assisting wore corsage bouquets of these attractive flowers. Among the guests were Mrs. Otis Wright, Mrs. Clarence Sewell, Mrs. Russell Sewell, Mrs. Chester Sewell, Mrs. C. H. Goodhue, Mrs. R. H. Leiter, Miss Rhoda Felling, Miss Hazel Croker, Mrs. Frank Kerr, Mrs. Millard C. Holbrook, Mrs. Felix Friedlander, Miss Camille Doseh, Miss Lillian Doseh, Miss Alice Sansbury, Miss Luita Hall, Mrs. Samuel P. Lockwood, Miss Jean Gray, Miss Grace Gray, Mrs. Hugh Laidlaw, Miss Mabel Goss, Mrs. John Peters, Miss Mildred Nichols, Miss Veda Nichols, Miss Nan Robertson, and others. Mrs. Wentworth wore an Empire sunburst gown of an American beauty shade, and Miss Wentworth a cafe-au-lait crepe frock. A picture is given on today's page of Mrs. Wentworth.

Mrs. J. Wesley Ladd is again on the invalid list, with a recurrence of a bronchial trouble, which confined her to her residence some weeks ago.

Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Barbery, of New York (Miss "Florence" Barbery) is another recent bride who received many beautiful wedding presents, including a diamond necklace, a gift of Mrs. Henri C. S. Wood with antique rings, all of different designs. Miss Lisa Wood's being composed of pearls with a cross of emeralds.

Among the guests at the reception were Mrs. W. S. Ladd, Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Ladd, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ladd, Mr. and Mrs. William Ladd, Miss Etta Felling, Miss Mae Felling, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore B. Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Zera Snow, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ayer, Mr. and Mrs. James McL. Wood, Mrs. William Honeyman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. David C. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt Lewis, Mrs. Harriet K. MacArthur, Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Morrison, Bishop and Mrs. Scadding, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Burns, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Koehler, George H. Williams, Miss Nellie Williams, Mr. and Mrs. John Alzoworth, Mrs. E. H. Brooke, Dr. and Mrs. Millard C. Holbrook, Mr. and Mrs. James Laidlaw, Mr. and Mrs. William McLaster, Mr. and Mrs. Sibson, Mr. and Mrs. George Good, Mr. and Mrs.

A fitting termination for the winter season, the Honeyman-Wood wedding stood out pre-eminently. The weather was ideal on Tuesday and brought a goody array of smartly gowned women, who presented a charming color scheme as they issued from the handsome stone edifice of Trinity Church into the brilliant sunshine. It was generally noted that Miss Wood was one of the handsomest brides of many seasons. The shimmering lines of the cloth of silver which formed a foundation for her wedding robe was veiled with tulle, the effect was most pleasing and was a departure from the conventional dead white which so frequently mars a bride's natural appearance.

She wore a necklace of aquamarines, a full length veil and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley tied with silver gauze ribbon.

The ceremony was marked by many pretty features, the stunning gowns of the attending maids, contrasting effectively with the dainty frock of the maid of honor and combined with the stately sacerdotal robes of Dr. A. A. Morrison, who performed the ceremony, and Bishop Scadding, who pronounced the benediction.

Miss Frances Lewis, Miss Margaret Walter and two matrons, Mrs. Thomas Kerr and Mrs. David C. Lewis, composed the bridal party and were in old rose liberty satin cut en princess and combined with lace. The effect was further enhanced by the addition of large black velvet picture hats with nodding plumes and a solitary rose of the same attractive tone as the gowns. The shower bouquets were composed of violets, arranged with gold gauze tied in lovers' knots.

Miss Lisa Wood, a sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor. Her brunette type of beauty was set off to advantage in a stylish frock of chiffon, daintily embroidered with silver and combined with Dresden satin of a delicate pink and American beauty shade. The gown was fashioned on semi-empire lines, and held in place with broad bands of silver. She wore a picture hat of Neapolitan straw with full-blown La. France roses and carried an arm bouquet of freesias and silver gauze.

Mr. Honeyman was attended by Mr. Jordan Zan. The ushers were Messrs. Harry Corbett, Thales A. Linticum, Erskine Wood, Edward C. Grele, Brandt Wickersham and Chester Murphy.

The King's Heights residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wood with its handsome paintings, objects, d'art, etc., was the scene later of reception to which one hundred and fifty guests were bidden.

The drawing-room where Mr. and Mrs. Honeyman received was done in a profusion of palms, almond blossoms, pussy willows, roses and terra cotta vases filled with swanstonia. The ceilings of the entire lower floor were massed with fragrant cedar and streamers of scarlet ribbons. Brass bowls of orchids were arranged effectively in the library, the mantles in this room as well as the dining and drawing-rooms being banked with brilliant red and yellow tulips. Lilies of the valley and bridesmaid roses decorated the dining table, and numerous candles in tall silver candelabra added to the effectiveness of the ensemble. The presents in quality and number eclipsed any smart wedding hitherto solemnized in this city.

Some of the smartest gowns seen at the reception were the following:

Mrs. C. E. S. Wood, mother of the bride, in a shadow velvet in two tones of green, elaborately trimmed with Carickmacross lace.

Mrs. Theodore B. Wilcox was most distinguished in a lovely gown of cream lace worn with a stylish lavender plumed hat.

Miss Susie Stott, an sunburst violet chiffon, with touches of Irish crochet lace, and picture hat of pink.

Mrs. J. Wesley Ladd, in a brown panne velvet costume, a picture hat adorned with a willow plume, and worn with a handsome set of sables.

Mrs. William MacMaster, ivory tinted Irish lace, worn with an antique necklace of pearls.

Mrs. William Honeyman, mother of the groom, black chantilly lace over white.

Mrs. Walter Honeyman, white lace gown and picture hat.

Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett, claret-toned velvet gown, and hat, worn with handsome stole and muff of sable.

Mrs. Zera Snow, gray velvet.

Mrs. James McL. Wood, buff-colored pongee with a stunning hat of black velvet.

Miss Fanny Brown, blue rajah silk, with black velvet hat and mandarin coat in the dull blues and gold shades.

Miss Robert Lewis, a lovely gown cut en princess of lavender chiffon, combined with velvet of a deeper hue, and worn with a becoming lavender hat.

Miss Inez Barrett, a turquoise velvet frock, with white lace and Dresden trimmings.

Mrs. E. H. Brooke, a handsome gown of gray chiffon.

Mrs. A. A. Morrison, black Chantilly lace.

Miss Nellie Williams, in a beautiful gown of white, lace and worn with an antique necklace.

Miss Hazel Dolph, apricot shade of yellow satin, cut on the empire lines, with large picture hat with nodding plumes.

Mrs. Allen Lewis was handsome in gray chiffon, a blended gray plumed hat and worn with a diamond star brooch.

Mrs. John Alzoworth, London smoked gray velvet, with a black velvet hat and pink ostrich plumes.

In cutting the bride's cake, the thimble fell to Miss Frances Lewis, the money to Mrs. David Lewis and the ring to Miss Margaret Walter. The bride's bouquet was caught by Miss Claire Houghton.

The attending maids were presented by C. E. S. Wood with antique rings, all of different designs. Miss Lisa Wood's being composed of pearls with a cross of emeralds.

trip next summer through Continental Europe. Upon their return from a fortnight's visit at Palm Beach, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Barbery will take possession of their new home in Tuxedo, where they will remain until June 1, going thence abroad. Mrs. Jane De Laval Flower and Miss Estelle Flower are also to spend the coming summer in Europe, where they will join Mr. and Mrs. Barbery in France and travel with them through Brittany.

Mrs. A. E. Baldwin entertained on Monday with ten tables of bridge. Among the guests were: Mrs. Whitney L. Boise, Mrs. J. Wesley Ladd, Mrs. J. B. Montgomery, Mrs. James Hart, Mrs. Louis Goldsmith, Miss Mae Montgomery, Mrs. Belgram, Miss Ella Hirsch, Mrs. Frank Freeman, Miss Mabel Goss, Mrs. S. Heitshu, Miss Amy Heitshu, Miss Inez Barrett, Miss Susie Stott, Mrs. Walter Y. one of the most thoroughly enjoyable events of the season by the several hundred guests attending. They were entertained by the hosts and hostesses of the court. The invitations issued were of approved St. Valentine style, being red hearts printed in white ink and enclosed in artistically sealed red folders. The large dining-room which served as a dancing hall was completely metamorphosed with its profuse decorations of Cupid hearts and crimson shaded lights. Parsons' orchestra furnished the music in an adjoining anteroom. Valentine maids served iced punches. Assisting Mrs. Mulford on the reception committee were Miss

Linn and Mesdames Steaves, Robinson, Keeney, Campbell and Bassett. Elton Court has among its guests many young folks, both of the married and unmarried sets.

A remarkably pretty Valentine party was given on Thursday by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kerr at their residence in Irvington. Apropos of the day, hearts were played, and the decorations consisted of effective massings of red flowers, red being the dominant color note in all the appointments. Misses Grace and Jean Gray, Jack Crawford and Joseph Hill were the prize winners. Those who
