

moter. Any man who would be foolish enough to hang up a purse running into thousands for a battle in which Kid Herman, who was never anything better than a poor second-rater, participated should not be allowed to live long as a promoter. What the Tonopah sporting man who dug deep into their cash ac-counts to foot the bills of this fight ought to do is to the a can to Riley. If he had any sense he would have known that in spite of Joe Gans' popularity he could not get the fight fans to the ring-side when he matched him against Her-man. Another thing that showed that he had no head was the date set for the had no head was the date set for the fight. New Year's may be a holiday all right, and the sporting men may be idle on that day, but when it comes to dragging them from their own firesides to a country of sagebrush and snow they simply refuse. When Tonopah matched Britt and Gans

it showed some signs of human intelli-gence. This fight should have attracted a great deal of attention. It should have brought the San Francisco and California fight fans to the ringside, but it could hardly have caused an Eastern invasion To close students of the game it was only another abortion. Even close admirers of Jimmy Britt admit taht he could not whip the Baltimore "Chocolate Drop." In the East, where Britt fought McGov-ern, he made no impression.

Has the Boom Bursted.

The failure of Tonopah to back up Riley's match is considered the end of the boom days in big purses for fighters. There is a limit to all things, and it would be a blessing for the fighting game if this did end the swollen purses. A good sample of the inflated purse offer-ing for fighters is Jack O'Brien. Time was when Jack O'Brien. If he cleaned up a couple of hundred dollars trimming dead ones around Philadelphia, thought he was in clover. Now O'Brien can't talk of entering into a match with any other fighter without first calling for a purse of $20,000 or more. Fighters are not to be blamed for holding out for fortunes every time they put on a pair of gloven, but the fight promoters who yield to their demands seem to have been missed by the fool-killer. In the days when men were real prize.

Anti-Fight Bill Dead. The Hartman anti-fight bill is considered as a dead 'un. Several days ago some of the Sacramento newspapermen

PORTLAND, Feb. 23.—(To the Editor.)—Portland and Oregon have on several occasions demonstrated athletic superiority in many sports. Baseball, rowing, running and fumping find their highest exponents within the limits of our fair city and state. These are splendid, healthful and manly sports. But there is another, the great universal Winter sport of the country, which is rapidly growing in favor in this city. 	Is considered an excellent bargain. The clubhouse will be two-story, set in against the hill. It will be provided with lockers on the first floor. In the second story there will be rest and reception rooms and a kitchen. The probable cost of the building will be about $2500. The association will hay off the ground for interstate cricket contests. Here- tofore, the Portland Cricket Association has not been able to invite other clubs here, but in the future will be able to do so.
