

Washington Lionizes College Actors

Triangle Club of Princeton and Mask and Wig Club of Pennsylvania Stage Plays at National Capital.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(Special correspondence.)—The last week in April was started and closed, socially, by amateur college plays, the two having the reputation of being the best in the country—the Triangle Club of Princeton and the Mask and Wig Club of the University of Pennsylvania.

The scenic effects of each were fine, and the boys were as good actors as many professionals, while their high-heeled, daintily shod feet were the despair of their seats, and perhaps the envy of some of the opposite sex.

After the plays there were supper parties without number, and rare was the girl not invited to at least one of them to "meet the heroes of the evening." Among the box holders were President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Donald McLean, the newly re-elected president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, and Miss Pulo, daughter of Representative Pulo, of Louisiana.

On Tuesday Mrs. Roosevelt gave her first large affair since the beginning of Lent, illness in the family having caused a complete change in the White House calendar for the post-Easter season. The guests on this occasion were entertained with music and were invited for nine-thirty, or one hour earlier than for similar events in the winter. The entire lower floor was thrown open, brilliantly lighted and simply decorated with blossoms particularly appropriate to the season. Through the half-open windows was wafted the perfume of hundreds of narcissus blooming on the terrace and lawn.

After greeting the hostess in the green parlor, the guests passed to the east room for the musical program, after which light refreshments were served in the state dining-room. The ladies of the Cabinet and Miss Isabelle Hagner, Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary, assisted in receiving.

All roads led from Washington to Jamestown on Thursday, when President and Mrs. Roosevelt, several little Roosevelts and several special guests invited to join the official party on the Mayflower, and almost the entire diplomatic corps, on a steamer chartered for their use, set sail for the ter-centennial exposition opening the following day. A large party of Army and Navy people also went down for the official festivities, their interest centering in the special naval maneuvers.

The diplomatic contingent included, of course, the ladies of the various Embassies and Legations, Colonel Lefebvre and Commandant Michel, two Belgian officers in this country for the exposition, were also of the party, having arrived in Washington early in the week and since then been presented to the upper half of society, by their host, the Belgian Minister. In the absence of Baroness Moncheur, who is taking the rest cure at Johns Hopkins, the Legation is presided over by the Minister's mother-in-law, Mrs. Powell, who is the wife of the official translator, the Baron married while her father was accredited United States Ambassador to Mexico, is the second fair American to become Baroness Moncheur, the first, a Miss Padelford, of Washington, having died shortly after her marriage.

An interesting, and it is hoped far-reaching event of Monday afternoon, was the reception given by the Woman's Club committee of the Washington Playgrounds Association, "meet Mrs. Donald McLean, of New York, and Mrs. Samuel Ammon, of Pittsburgh." The parlors of the New Willard were prettily decorated for the occasion, for club folk as well as "Daughters" have an eye for the beautiful. Mrs. Ellen Spencer Murray, the recently elected vice-president-general of the D. A. R. with a dozen other titles of distinction, was master of ceremonies, and every club woman in the district, a committee of one, to assist in receiving the guests. A feature of the afternoon was the accounts of "What Woman's Clubs Have Done for Playgrounds," given by the guests of honor.

Mrs. Ammon was a leader in organizing the women's clubs of her home city as a means to secure larger effectiveness than those of almost any other American municipality, and as a result of their work, the entire playgrounds system of Pittsburgh was carried on by them for nearly ten years. Her more recent fame as chairman of the tellers at the last D. A. R. Congress, when, after a night spent counting the votes, she cast for the National board, Mrs. Donald McLean was declared re-elected president-general of the N. S. D. A. R. by an overwhelming majority. There were 12 candidates for the office of vice-president-general, but only ten could be elected. Thus, by constitutional requirement, were the ten receiving the highest majority vote. The result was a shock to the friends—and they were legion in the congress—of Mrs. Mary Wood Swift, of California, who, though re-elected by a flattering majority, fell one vote short of the number received by her successor, Mrs. Lindsay Patterson, of North Carolina. The unexpected defeat of Mrs. Swift was all the more keenly regretted by the congress, as it occurred on the anniversary of her severe financial losses and the destruction of her home by the earthquake in San Francisco.

A book that is new but not yet eligible for mention in the review of new publications is known as "The Roll of Honor Book." It is bound in Serlian leather, and on the title page its originator, Mrs. Daniel Lathrop, of Boston, founder of the Society of Children of the Revolution, announces that it is dedicated to "persons, male or female, in whose names $50 or more are given to Continental Hall in the one year of its life. The book has brought in over $1500 for the building fund, though a comparatively few of the Daughters know of its existence until the name of the donor is published in the book. The mother, the late Mrs. Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia, was announced as having been added in a single day during the Continental Congress.

Many of the state regents became interested in the plan at once, and began to plan for bringing the matter up in their state work, with a view to having enrolled in the book the name of every "real Daughter" (those whose own father or mother performed an act of loyalty to the Revolutionary cause) now living within their jurisdiction.

Among the first to announce this as her purpose was Mrs. Walter Kemper, of Milwaukee, acting regent of Wisconsin. In this connection Mrs. Kemper spoke of the zeal of Milwaukee's real Daughter, Mrs. Florence C. Thiers, who though 92 years of age, made with her needle, within the past 12 months, $57 for Continental Hall.

The members of the John Paul Jones Chapter, D. A. R., of Boston, at the suggestion of their regent, Miss Brazier, signalled their meeting in Washington by electing to its honorary membership Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, of Denver, Colo., president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Decker will be in the Hub City at the time of the biennial of the G. E. W. C. when the J. P. Jones Daughters have invited her to their guest. The other honorary members of this interesting chapter are Mrs. Fairbanks, Mrs. Donald McLean, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. A. Kendall, of Maine, and Mrs. Richard Jackson Barker, of Rhode Island.

While the Daughters of the American Revolution were here talking about their distinguished regent in Washington, the kindergartners of Washington were busy preparing exhibits of the art work done in the schools of the city, which will be among the younger members of the coming generation. These exhibits are to be a part of the larger exhibition of similar work from other cities to be shown in the Museum of Natural History, New York, April 30-May 3, in connection with the annual meeting of the International Kindergarten Union. Curiously interesting will be the whole exhibit, not so much for its intrinsic value as for the indication of better things to come as the years are added to the little people of today.

Apocryphal is the news which reached Washington a few days ago to the effect that the Municipal Art League of Chicago is endeavoring to raise a fund of $2500 to defray the expense of decorating one of the juvenile courtrooms. The project includes a series of mural paintings intended to uplift and rally the little culprit. An interesting and novel undertaking, and a perfectly legitimate use of art.

Covered with laurels won in connection with their performance of "We Are in Society" here, and the reputation of it by request in Baltimore, as well as in Annapolis, the 100 young society folk who made up the original cast are being honored in a massy way after tea and after-the-play supper. Among the more recent of their hostesses is Miss Katherine Cullom Ridgely, daughter of the Controller of the Currency, to whose executive ability the welfare and the entertainment owes its unprecedented success. The local charity for whose benefit it was planned received a check for $400 as the result of a great deal of advertising. This, too, because a petted child of fortune, only 22 years of age, not unmindful of those less fortunate, was glad to bring to the party as promoter, her time, her strength, and, finally, her social position, for the benefit of others.

GRACE PORTER HOPKINS.

trial was continued to March 15, when verdict against them was rendered. Danielson was convicted of second degree murder, and Nelson of manslaughter. Both have been in the County Jail ever since awaiting sentence to be passed upon them. Swedish friends of the city, headed by F. C. Foules, rallied to the support of the men and circulated petitions asking aid to have a new trial, and were successful in their efforts.

California Man Wants Last Resting Place in Local Cemetery.

It has always been counted a priceless privilege to live in the Rose City by those fortunate enough to be located here. Others, whose circumstances prevent a residence in this city which, alive, would be content to have their bodies lie in one of the cemeteries overlooking the coming metropolis of the Pacific. Included in the latter class is A. B. Parker, of Oakland, Cal., who has written J. R. Lober, secretary of the Board of Trade, inquiring to whom he shall apply for the purchase of a lot in one of the city cemeteries.

SORTING MAIL ON TRAINS

Thus it will be seen that the service in the last 20 years has practically doubled itself every 10 years.

Mortality in Wrecks.

The occupation of the railway postal clerks is most dangerous. It is said on the best authority that the percentage of mail clerks annually killed and wounded in the service is greater than that of the United States Army in the Mexican War and several times greater than that of the Spanish-American War. During the last year there were 23 wrecks in which mail clerks were killed.

Another cause that adds to the danger of the mail car is the use of gas and oil as a lighting agent. The moment there is a wreck, if oil be used for light, the contents of the lamps are strewn over the wreckage of the mail car, and the first spark starts a fire. In the case of gas, the pipes leading to the storage tanks are usually broken, with the result that there is an explosion, which makes it even more dangerous than oil. Electricity as a lighting agent would overcome all this, and would also be a great protection to the clerks.

Steel Cars for Safety.

There are perhaps more than 100 all-steel cars now building. The Hartman lines have 35 under contract. The Pennsylvania has a large number and other roads have care under construction. The all-steel postal car was built by the Erie and was exhibited two years ago in Washington. This car was in a wreck last year, and though it took a somewhat sharp descent, the car was not damaged, it came out none the worse for the experience and all of the clerks escaped serious injury.

The railway postal clerks have two organizations. The principal one is the Railway Mail Association, with a membership of 11,000. This association is a fraternal, beneficial organization. It has a paper of its own, the Railway Post Office, whose editor, George A. Wood, of Portsmouth, N. H., is also secretary and treasurer of the association. It was through him that the scope of the organization was so broadened as to make it considered by the department a valuable adjunct to the railway mail service in the solution of the many problems that arise in the custody of mail cars.

Father of Railway Mail.

Even to this day there are rival claims as to who originated the postal car service. The friends of the late W. A. Davis, assistant postmaster at St. Joseph, Mo., claim that he was the originator of the idea, but practically all the official testimony gives the credit to George B. Armstrong, at the time assistant postmaster at Chicago and afterward superintendent of the Railway Mail Service. Necessity has ever been the mother of invention and it was necessity that led Mr. Armstrong to the idea of the postal car on wheels. He had charge of distributing the mail to the various railroads diverging from Chicago and found his office swamped with the work. This led him to the Buffalo, N. Y., post office, where he found the mail distributed in central post-offices, he proposed that it should be done on moving trains.

We have the testimony of the postmaster that he began to fear that Armstrong was crazy. However, he assisted in getting the idea before the department, and Postmaster-General Blair agreed that the experiment should be made. The first car used was an old baggage car arranged in a very crude fashion. It was operated on the old Galena Railway between Chicago and Rockford, Ill. A monument now stands in the lobby of the Chicago post office to the memory of the man who founded this wonderful system.

VETOES BRIDGE ORDINANCE

MAYOR LANE THINKS MONEY CAN BE SAVED.

Requests Council to Allow Specifications to Remain Open for Bidders to Submit Plans.

Mayor Lane yesterday vetoed the ordinance authorizing the construction of a reinforced concrete bridge across Sullivan's Gulch, on Twenty-eighth street. The Mayor is not opposed to the building of the bridge, but objects to certain provisions of the ordinance. If the Council will pass another ordinance not providing that the specifications be prepared by the City Engineer, he believes that several thousand dollars will be saved the city. The structure is estimated to cost about $50,000.

Mayor Lane's veto message will be submitted to the Council Wednesday afternoon. The Council is determined to build the Twenty-eighth street bridge, and upon Wednesday will either pass the ordinance over the Mayor's veto or order that another one be prepared. His message, in part, follows:

"To the Honorable City Council: I herewith return ordinance No. 16,427, not approved.

"This is an ordinance which authorizes the Executive Board to advertise for and receive proposals for the construction of a reinforced concrete bridge on East Twenty-eighth street.

"It is provided in this ordinance that said bridge shall be constructed in accordance with the plans and specifications prepared by the City Engineer and now upon file in the office of the City Auditor.

"In relation to this matter, I have to say that I am reliably informed that a saving of several thousand dollars in the cost of the construction of this bridge could be made, and as equally as good, if not a better bridge could be constructed at a much lower cost, if the specifications were left open, allowing bidders to submit their plans submitted by the bidder for the same. Being assured that an alternative clause in an ordinance providing for such bridge to that effect would make material reduction in the cost of this expensive structure without impairing either the beauty, strength or life of the same, I have deemed it best to return the ordinance to you with the request for your further consideration of the same.

"HARRY LANE, Mayor."

Persistent Flirt Must Leave Town

JOHN BELL, dry-goods salesman and Washington-street flirt, was run out of town by the police authorities yesterday forenoon because of his highly flirtatious disposition. Should he ever return to the city, even to say good-by to his friends, Bell will be sentenced to a term on the rockpile. Street flirtations are becoming a very persistent pest.

Of all the persistent dudes that ever spent a month's salary for clothes and cigarettes, Bell was possibly the most audacious and annoying in his attitude towards women pedestrians. It is said he would follow a woman who chanced to catch his fancy for hours until an opportunity presented itself to form an acquaintance. He never waited for an introduction, but at a favorable moment would step up, lift his hat and force his acquaintance on the oft-times unwilling woman.

His arrest occurred Friday at the instance of Miss Lehman. She complained that the dude had been following her daily for more than a week past. Seemingly he would await her appearance on the street and proceed to shadow her, endeavoring to catch her eye and wink as frequently as possible. Finally, he insisted on introducing himself in front of a Washington-street theater Friday and the young woman at once called a policeman. Bell was taken to the police station and charged with disorderly conduct.

When his case was called in the Municipal Court yesterday, Bell made a strong plea for release. He claimed Miss Lehman encouraged him, as he thought, otherwise he would not have approached her. Judge Cameron gave the flirt the privilege of leaving town to avoid a jail sentence. Bell reluctantly availed himself of the offer. He wanted time in which to terminate what he called his business affairs and was given until sundown.

EVIDENCE FOUND BEARING ON LUNDGREN MURDER.

Nelson and Danielson Are Hopeful of Securing Release—Swedish Friends Have Been Active.

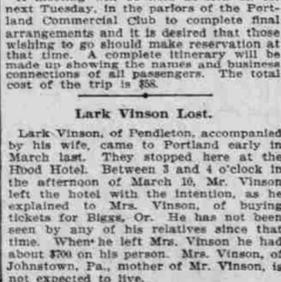

Days of incarceration for C. H. Danielson and Edward Nelson in the County Jail are drawing to a close, and the chances are the men will soon be free. Deputy District Attorney C. C. Moser announced yesterday that he had discovered new evidence indicating that other persons are the murderers of Oscar Lundgren, and that he was of the belief that both of the men now in custody had been wrongly convicted of the crime. Moser requested of Judge Fraser yesterday that another hearing be granted the men on the grounds that an alibi established now by the new evidence indicates that the men were not in the city at the time of the murder, while there was more or less doubt about it during the trial. The judge consented, stating that he thought the men were entitled to a new trial.

"There will probably not be a new trial," said Mr. Moser. "I have found evidence that points to other persons, and I will probably file a motion in a few days to dismiss the case against Danielson and Nelson."

Nelson and Danielson were arraigned for killing Oscar Lundgren last week in his saloon at the Garfield Hotel, Fourteenth and Savier streets. The
