YOUNG MURDERER MAY GO TO JAIL

Supreme Court Decides Imprisonment of Chester Thompson Legal.

BASED ON OLD STATUTE

Important Decision Holds That Persons Dangerodsly Insane May Re. Sent to Penitentiary, and Denies Two Restraining Writs.

OLYMPIA, Wash., April 27.—(Special.)—Chester Thompson, who killed G. Meade Emory, may be legally sent to prison, is the decision of the State Supreme Court, rendered this afternoon Supreme Court, rendered this afternoon in the application made for a writ of mandate to compel Trial Judge Snell, of the Pierce County Superior Court, to empanel a jury to determine Thompson's present sanity, and for a writ to prohibit that judge from ordering Thompson committed to prison. In its decision, which denies both these writs, he Surgear the Supreme Court says the case is governed by the old territorial law of 1854, evoked in the case of Thomas Brown, of Chehalis, who was acquitted of fratricide on the ground of insanity and promptly ordered confined in prison.

Ruling of Court.

The decision in part says:
"When we remember that there are different types of insanity and when we reflect that the purpose of caring for the insane involves both a regard for them and for the safety of the pubwe cannot say that this statute conflicts with any subsequent statute or any principle of sound public policy. Good reasons readily occur in justification of its enactment. There are occasionally defendants acquitted of murder on the ground of insanity who should and can be com-mitted to the penftentiary under this statute. A defendant so committed or otherwise restrained of his liberty would have the right, upon asserting a recovery of his sanity, to have the quastlon of such recovery determined by the court.

Authority for Sentence.

"The statute in question authorizes e committing of a defendant to prisan if the discharge or going at large of such insane person shall be by the court considered manifestly dangerous to the peace and safety of the community. The question is suggested as to what evidence establishes his manifestly dangerous condition. The fact of his having killed a human being is conviusive that he was dangerous and the verdict of the jury that he was insane at the time of the homicide; and unless there is clear and income the state of the state of the state of the homicide; and unless there is clear and the state of the state of the state of the homicide; less there is clear, ample and conclusive evidence that his mental condition has undergone a radical change toward has undergone a radical change toward a normal condition since that time, the trial judge should not hesitate to find him manifestly dangerous within the meaning of the statute.

"Of course his physical condition by reason of sickness, disease or otherwise should have rendered him absolutely incapable of doing violence. We think the word 'prison' used in this statute comprehends the penitentiary, any county jail and any state hospital for the insane, and that the trial judge for the insane, and that the trial judge may commit to any of these in accord-ance with the nature of the alleged insanity and the other facts of any
