School Children to Participate in Rose Carnival.

WILL MARCH 1760 STRONG

Drills by Little Folk Will Constitute Spectacular Feature of Pageant. Solicitors Will Raise $1000

"Whirlwind" subscription-getting campaigns seem to be contagious. The Rose Show and Piesta committees have decided ort to one for raising an additional $1000 for the rose carnival June 20 and 21. This campaign will be inaugurated tomorrow morning, when the soliciting committees will make a canvass of the city in ana ttempt to raise the needed funds. Rather than reduce any of the appropriations that have been made for the different attractions, the executive committee decided to make another effort to bring the carnival fund up to the necessary amount to insure the success of the flesta.

Yesterday members of the general committee, riding in a carriage elaborately mittee, riding in a carriage elaborately decorated with roses, distributed through out the city cards and other advertising matter announcing the show. The gayly decorated conveyance attracted a great deal of attention and was in itself a splendid advertisement of the carnival. One of the most spectacular features of the parade on the opening day will be the appearance of 1760 thoroughly drilled children. These children will come from the city's schools and are being drilled in kaleldoscopic movements by Professor Krohn. The different schools will be represented in the parade by the following numbers of children, the names of the principals in whose charge each division will be also being given. Like interest is being shown by outside cities in the generous prizes offered for the best float from any city outside of Portland. Astoria has already notified the committee that it will be represented in this contest, and efforts will be made to induce other Columbia River cities as well as towns in the Willamette Valley to enter the competition.

to wear, the clients of the Olds, Wort-man & King store are assured of a rare treat in the way of exclusive fashions direct from the cities that set the styles.

To send a garment-buyer direct to Europe is an innovation in Portland department stores, but on account of the rapidly growing business of the suit section, and the largely increased demand for finer goods and exclusive styles, this store has found it imperative to send a representative to the fountain-head of fashion. The most fastidious women in the Pacific Northwest look to Olds, Wortman & King to supply their wants for the finer sorts of ready-made goods, and this new effort of the firm to secure the best to be had at first hands is only another demonstration of their determination to maintain their supremacy in the garment field.

The women of Portland and the Northwest will watch with keen interest for Miss Bernard's return, for terest for Miss Bernard's return, for it is expected that she will be closely followed by many artistic creations from the foremost makers of fine appared in Europe.

It is a certainty that the clientele of the Olds, Wortman & King suit department will not be disappointed in the results of Miss Bernard's trip, as shown in the rich costumes and wraps that she will purchase in the gay style headquarters of the Old World, and they are assured for the coming seathey are assured for the coming season, assortments and styles that can-

His death is one of the most mysterious brought to the attention of the officials for many months in this city. He left the home of Mrs. Anna Spang. 27 Sixth street, apparently in his usual good spirits, after paying a month's room rent in advance and leaving money for the payment of his laundry bill. His actions thereafter are unknown, except that he telephoned to the manager of the University Club, saying: "I may be delayed tonight." Early that evening he appeared at the Graham hotel and engaged a room, which he occupied that night.
