Why William Harder, general agent for the Great Northern, returned to Portland from a recent hunting ex-pedition with the feathers largely picked off his pheasants, is an interest-ing tale. The birds hardly bore any resemblance to the gaily-plumed Chi-nas that thrive so well throughout the Willamette Valley, for they had been robbed of their brilliant plumes. The reason was that a musical comedy com-pany boarded the Southern Pacific train at a Valley station and the chorus girls were so delighted with the beautiful plumage of the pheas-ants that they begged the feathers. PENDLETON, Or., Oct. 17.-(To the Editor.)-The Oregonian states that Bull Run and Portland are names known all the world over.

While to some extent this is true I will venture to assert and do not believe it can be successfully contradicted, that if a letter is posted anywhere east of the Rockles and the word "Oregon" is not affixed to the word "Portland," the mail will go to Portland, Me. This the writer has tried and found to be the case. This was also tried with the words "Scattle" and "Tacome" and asch letter "Seattle" and "Tacoma" and each letter reached its destination, without delay. Still another reason why the word Port-land stands for nothing locally or of the West. Let some of our good Port-landers get away from the Pacific Coast or their immediate circle, and the writer bioks they will see many persons for the thinks they will see many reasons for the change although a shorter name would no doubt be better than Multhomah.
