Why Change Goes to the Wrong Man

Each Member of Little Sociability Party in a Local Buffet Airs His Theory, Till Finally the "Barkeep" Comes Through With the Real

THERE was a discussion last night among a lot of local "men of the world" on a question that seldom if ever is brought up in temperance meetings and is only lightly touched upon in the home circle.

"Can you explain to me," said one who had the appearance of being a rather regular patron of what are nowadays called cafes and buffets, adays called cafes and buffets, "why it is that barkeepers always give change for the drinks to the wrong fellow?"

"That's easy" spoke up one of the party; "a barkeep' has no time to bother his head with financial problems. It's his whole business to serve his customers and collect the price, put the change coming on the bar and let the owner look out that he gets it. If anybody else is smart enough to 'grab the sieeper,' it's no affair of his."

"Entirely wrong, my boy," said an old-timer. "I have given that subject thoughtful and prayerful attention for many years, and only recently have I been able to figure it out.

"There is no class of men in the world better judges of human nature than saioonmen. They know with whom to be familiar and with whom to be dignified.

"It happens that when we pick up a plece of money on the bar and go to make change, the fellows on the outside shift around and when we come back the positions of the crowd have reversed and the only thing we can do is to put the money at the place where we got it. We cannot remember who gave us the pay, especially in a rush."

"By jove, you'd make a poor hand at the hat act in a big dining-room," retorted the clubman.

ARRESTED AS PICKPOCKET

Innocent Man Taken Into Custody by Sheriff at Gresham Fair.

SELLS INTEREST IN SARGENT HOTEL.—
Nicholas F. Sargent has disposed of his interest in the Sargent Hotel, on Grand and Hawthorne avenues, to E. A. Baldwin, owner of the building. With his family Mr. Sargent left for the Sound yesterday afternoon. He has not yet decided whether he will remain in Portland or go to San Diego, Cal.

Sheriff, at about the same time Bryant was taken to the rear of the grounds where an automobile was in waiting, and despite his protests and the fact that he bore numerous cards and other means of identification, he was hurried into the machine and the party started for Portland. Kittel stoutly maintained his innocence, but all his explanahis innocence, but all his explana-tions were given no consideration. He suggested that the Sheriff telephone at the first opportunity to Commissioner Lightner, who is a near neighbor of Kittel, and this was done at a point about two miles from Gresham. The officer upon returning to the auto-mobile made an apology and explained that Kittel had been seen to come from a saloon at the same time that Bryant was first observed, and by a curious coincidence they traversed the grounds together, and this excited the officers' supplies.

At a point six miles from Gresham At a point six miles from Gresham Bryant was given over to the care of another officer and Kittel was taken back to the fair in the automobile with the officers. He is very indignant at the manner in which he was treated, as he says a large crowd witnessed the affair, which caused him much humilisation.

SMALL CARE GIVEN BOYS

Raised With Less Attention Than Livestock, Says Dr. Casseday.

Dr. Frank F. Casseday yesterday afternoon delivered an address on "The Problem of Delinquent Children, and Woman's Relation Thereto," before the Governmental study section of the Portland Women's Club, at the home of Mrs. T. P. Wise, 568 Elizabeth street.

Dr. Casseday referred to the work of the Juvenile Courts in the reformation of delinquent children and paid a high tribute to Judge Frazer, of the local court, in his work in dealing with young offenders.

"It is a lamentable fact," said he, "that there is less care devoted to the boys of this country, in the larger sense, than is given to the raising of livestock. In other words, the methods of our courts, heretofore, in the treatment of juvenile offenders and delinquents, have placed the boy on the same plane as the habitual adult criminal, and have not treated him adult criminal, and have not treated him as a boy, whose habits are not yet formed, but as a man. The successful treatment of delinquent boys and girls today is not a question of reformation but a question of the development of the boy, morally and mentally. It is absolutely wrong to attempt to try a boy by the same standards as the man. Among the agencies for the improvement of delinquent and dependent children who have never received proper mental and moral training, we may cite the various organizations which are being carried on in the large cities of the country. Among these are the childrens' play ground, boys' clubs, settlement work, camps for boys, fresh-air' funds and good literature."

That the mob really intended to hang Kenny, there is little doubt. He was given half an hour to arrange his affairs. He was then taken out by the mob and a rope placed around his neck. The rope was drawn taut over the limb of a tree and the cracker box, on which he had been placed, was kicked from under him. He was revived and then ordered to leave the country.
