

NEW FRUIT MARKET

O. R. & N. Sends Agents into British Columbia.

EXPLOIT NEW TERRITORY

Will Try to Develop Demand for the Oregon Products in Territory but Recently Opened up to American Settlers.

A new and promising market for Oregon fruit and vegetable products is about to be developed, under the fostering care of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company.

These familiar with the Canadian Northwest say it is an immense country that is being rapidly settled by a big immigration, largely from the United States.

Mr. Miller has already detailed A. A. Morse, special representative of the freight department, to make a study of the country about to be opened to Oregon products.

The first step taken by the O. R. & N. to market Oregon products in this Canadian territory is to put in a rate of $1.10 per 100 pounds on dried prunes from all points on the Southern Pacific.

GROWERS SHIP PRUNES EARLY

More Than Half of Oregon Crop is Already Moved.

Never before in the history of the prune industry in Oregon has there been such an early movement to markets of the finished and packed product.

All conditions favored the prunegrower this season. Prices, quality and quantity and size were never better and the crop has been moved to market more rapidly than ever before.

Practically the whole crop has been packed in boxes, the fruit making packing being a thing of the past in this attractive shape, the fruits making a more favorable impression on the buyer.

RAILROADS CHANGE RULES

Take Steps to Limit the Reconsignment of Freight.

Important changes in the railroad rules for the reconsignment of freight in transit are to be made. The O. R. & N. announces that it will make additional charges for this service after November 15.

It has been customary for shippers to divert cars frequently in transit by changing the destination and sometimes the names of consignees. In fact, some shippers have made a practice of shipping a car of freight to some particular destination and either before or after arrival at such destination order the car reshipped to some other place.

messenger service, clerical work, additional risk, etc. Certain requirements are made for the reconsignment of freight in transit, among them being that the car must be consigned before arrival at first destination or within 24 hours afterward and before delivery is made.

When a shipment is stopped in transit short of its destination, such stop-over shall be considered as the first destination, and the car shall be subject to the same rules as would have been applied had it gone to the first destination as billed.

The company will permit diversion of grain, livestock, fresh fruits and vegetables in carloads and other freight, less carloads, either in transit or after arrival at original or subsequent destination at the through published rate plus car service, storage and other charges, if any, at original or subsequent destination, provided final destination is in the same general direction as the point to which freight was originally consigned.

WILL GO AHEAD ON TUNNEL

Harriman Bore Through Peninsula Will Be Built at Once.

Bids for the construction of the long tunnel through the peninsula for the Oregon & Washington, the Harriman extension to Puget Sound, were to be opened tomorrow, but owing to the absence of Chief Engineer Boesche in California the matter will not be taken up until his return.

General Manager O'Brien says the work will not be stopped, but will go ahead. This will mean a big construction job for the next few months and the consequent employment of a large number of men.

Northern Pacific Officials Coming.

J. M. Hannafor, third vice-president, and C. M. Levey, third vice-president, of the Northern Pacific, are on their way to the Pacific Coast on a trip of inspection over the west end of the system.

Forest Grove Confident.

FOREST GROVE, Or., Nov. 9.—The patrons of the First National Bank at this place are depositing in it much more money than is being withdrawn.

Men who are close to the President have said that the President would like to go to the Senate for more reasons than one. Primarily he would like the toga because of the opportunity he would have to keep alive the issues that have been raised during the past four years.

HOW TO PRESERVE TIMBER

Lessons for United States in Policy of France.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Nov. 9.—France years ago learned the lesson that is now being taught in this country, under direction of President Roosevelt and the Forest Service, namely, that the perpetuation of the forests is essential to prosperity and growth.

The extensive denudation of the primeval forests began on a large scale in this country during the early centuries of the Christian era and continued so unrelentingly that Colbert, the great minister of Louis IV, exclaimed in the seventeenth century: "France will perish for lack of wood."

From cover to cover, not a word is said of the ocean trade on the Pacific; no statistics of shipments from Pacific Coast ports are given, and the west half of the country is entirely ignored.

Usually the Department of Agriculture is more thorough and reliable in its work. This particular publication should be withdrawn from circulation, for it conveys an erroneous idea as to the ocean trade of the United States.

TAKE PLACE OF PLATT

Views Differ as to Purpose of Roosevelt After Retirement, but Argument Favors His Entrance to Upper House.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Nov. 9.—Authorities differ as to the plans and purposes of President Roosevelt in case Taft is nominated and elected President. It is positively as-and worthy men to the United States Senate to replace Platt and Dewey. New York state, because of its size and importance, ought to be one of the most powerful states in the Senate; as now represented it is without exception the weakest.

In view of this situation, and in view of the many attractions offered by the Senate, it is quite reasonable to suppose that the President would like to succeed Senator Platt, and if elected to the Senate he might be willing and probably would forego the opportunity of criticizing the acts of previous Presidents.

PACIFIC COAST IGNORED

Government Limits Freight Rate Treatise to the Atlantic.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Nov. 9.—The Department of Agriculture has been to considerable exclaimed in the seventeenth century: "France will perish for lack of wood." The damage wrought in this country by forest destruction had far exceeded that which is now deplored in the United States when it was realized, and systematic attempts were begun to correct it.

The French forestry policy is administered by the Minister of Agriculture, who operates through a Director of Forestry and three administrators. Their duties include the conservation, exploitation and amelioration of public forest lands, the correction of fires in mountains and the correction of mountain torrents, the regulation of the pasture lands owned by the state, and the utilization of water on pastoral and forest regions and the surveillance of river fishing and fish culture.

At the present time a total of 7,429,578 acres is under the direct control of the forestry service, of which 6,771,559 acres consist of forests properly called. The far greater portion of the forest area—4,955,444 acres—belongs in fee to the communes, but it is under rigid control of the state, experience having demonstrated that the communal governments could not be relied upon to maintain the public property.

The absolutely bare mountains have been replanted, very surprising local results are now visible, and the forests, especially true in the Hautes-Alpes, which had the unenviable reputation of "the poorest department of France," and in fact one of the few from which the United States has obtained several thousand French immigrants. There are now many artificially planted forests in this department of 25 years standing and in the bottom lands below conditions have so improved that a state of general prosperity prevails.
