

New Play "Sham" Contrasts Eastern and Western Society

Florence Roberts Will Appear in Modern Drama by Miss Geraldine Bonner and Elmer B. Harris.

"SHAM," a new, modern society play by Geraldine Bonner and Elmer B. Harris, will be the vehicle for Miss Florence Roberts at the Marquam Friday and Saturday.

MISS FLORENCE ROBERTS.

"Sham" is a New York comedy containing a bright story, and some comparisons between Eastern and Western society that are more or less amusing without being impolite to either.

Katherine Van Ripper, a descendant of one of the old Knickerbocker families, is left penniless and brought up by a pair of aunts, and like all young ladies of her set, taught to regard the male sex as her food supply.

Now it happens that Old Jeremiah Buck, a copper king from Idaho, has brought his boy and girl to New York and is launching them in society.

wish for, for the East is as full of Kath- erines as the West of Tom Jaffrays. "Sham" doesn't rant, nor preach. It flows on smoothly and prettily, hiding its satire, and aiming to amuse as a fair and square love story.

Great Pianist to Appear in Portland

Madame Teresa Carreno Coming, Under Direction of Lois Steers-Wynn Coman.

A versatile genius, Madame Teresa Carreno, the great pianist, who will soon appear in Portland, stands at the head of her profession.

MADAME TERESA CARRENO.

When, of a sudden, one of those operatic cyclones which from time to time devastate the operatic horizon broke over the heads of the devoted company.

Carreno had a voice, and it is universally admitted that she possesses all the other qualities which Mapleson pointed out to her.

assumed name. Her success was so brilliant that she immediately re- sisted not having sung under her own name, and thus perhaps secured a last- ing place in the fascinating world of opera.

RED TAPE OVER STATUE Italian Government Seeks Art Gem Found by Seashore. ROME, Jan. 4.—(Special.)—A very remarkable Greek statue representing either a muse or a young priestess assisting at some festival, which was discovered 30 years ago in the Villa of Prince Aldobrandini at Anzio, was reported to have been purchased by the Italian government. The sum of $6,500 was allotted for its purchase, and the enthusiasm of lovers of art here and in other lands was kindled at the prospect of seeing it in a museum and studying its exquisite workmanship to better advantage than could be given by the numerous photographs of it that were published. In December, 1878, the steep banks of the Villa Aldobrandini were sapped and a mass of earth fell seaward, bringing in its fall this statue which for centuries had been concealed from view in the earth which covered the ruins in the grand residence in which it originally stood. After the storm abated the fair white marble figure was discovered lying on the shore where it had fallen. It re-
