

CORRESPONDENCE PAGE OF FASHIONS & BEAUTY

Military Effect in Mid-Winter Suits

tary effects in women's raiment are more and more pronounced There are various reasons for this. First, the Louis coat. This elegant garment, designed especially for reception and calling costumes, and made from with brocaded or embroidered or braided vest, lace jabot and feather-laden hat, is quite beyond the purse and the needs of the average American woman. Yet its lines are so becoming, it gives such an air of distinction to the woman of even ordinary figure, that the American woman of moderate means insisted upon having it in a modified form, better suited to church going, simpler calls and even ordinary street wear.

Wherefore the pattern-makers evolved a cont of medium length, rather more tight fitting than the Louis coat pure and simple, with a snug vest, high collar, and simple, with a snug vest, high collar, sleeves either full length or three-quarter, and much soutache braid. Sometimes the coat is fitted closely to the figure, demanding the very perfection of the tailor's art. Again it is semi-fitting, and in the case of velvet, it is almost as loose as a kimono coat.

In the case of the tight-fitting coat, the vest is narrow and almost as long as the coat proper, but almost invariably of a matriasting color. A stunning model in this line was in a rich autumnal brown, heavily braided in selftone, and a vest of yellowish-ecru suede. Another model was in sage-green cloth, with a vest of rich cream-white broadcloth, braided in sage-green soutache.

cloth, braided in sage-green soutache.

The skirts for wear with these tailored military coats are generally pleated and trimmed around the bottom with graduated bands of braid: With the more dressy coats, loose fitting and three-quarter sleeves, the circular skirt, with much fine braiding, is the correct combination. With all the tailored coats along military lines, the very high straight collar appears, and this is trimmed heavily with soutache braid. In some of the fancy braids a touch of gold appears and many buttons, either all-gilt or enameled with a touch of gilt, appear. The design showing the tight-fitting, three-quarter military jacket was developed in a Copenhagen blue broadcloth, with a vest of ivory broadcloth braided oped in a Copenhagen blue broadcioth, with a vest of ivory broadcloth braided with the Copenlingen blue and sliver, a charming combination. This makes a distinctly tailored effect, but for dressy wear it can be developed in black velvet, the sleeves changed to three-quarter ki-mone design, with the vest of brocaded silk, showing delicate pink, blue and yel-low roses of a shadowy design, and a jabot of lace to match the flounces in the decided military front, a high military collar and less of the Louis effect. This is semi-fitting and the generally loose yet smart lines are improved by over-laying all seams with flat braid. The sleeves are the plain coat design, and the entire garment one that can be de-veloped at home. It is particularly suited to the new striped and checked broadcloths and English worsteds with flat applications of braid, and, to com-plete the military effect, a couple of heavy frogs down the front. Fancy sleeves are entirely out of place on such a coat, which can be made from 234 yards of material 44 inches wide.

Incidentally, the woman who dons the military coat must be discreet in select-ing the hat to be worn with it. Floating plumes, flowers in Winter colorings fluttering ends of any sort, are distinct-ly out of place, the correct combination being a felt hat on stiff lines with trimming of wings, quills or coque feathers. For the girl of medium height, the coque pompon, six or seven inches high, forms an excellent trimming on a hat to be wern with a military coat. For Miss Sixteen the military jacket is almost ideal, as it hides every angle.

A very smart design is snown in a hip length military jacket, with braid in two widths, wide and narrow. This covers both side and back seams and the front and lower edges of the coat. In the two widths it would set off most fetchingly any of the pleated skirts which are worn by young girls this sea-son. The cufts and collar on this jacket son. The cuffs and collar on this jacket are distinctly military. Frogs may be added, though for ordinary wear the average girl would rather they were omitted. A hat decked simply with broad, stiff bows of taffets ribben and a large buckle or quill, should be worn with this jacket, while dogskin gloves are a better combination than the finer rofter kids.

The last illustration shows a fancy vest which can be used to make over last year's coat. This means cutting over a straight, semi-fitting, hip-length or three-quarter coat, facing the front pleces back with slik or satin, finishing the front edges with flat braid and wear ing the coat over the vest. The double vested or single-breasted style may be selected, and if the outer coat is plain cloth, then the vest may be selected, and if the outer coat is plain cloth, then the vest may be of figured or braided cloth, Vice versa, a faucy outer coat, such as check or stripe, demands the plain vest. Buttons are an important feature of any vest, and should be selected with care. It pays to put a lit-tle extra money in these, as they set off the little garment as nothing else

The new long storm coats with fur-lining or fur collars and turn-back cuffs. The skirt cut

The skirt cut four inches from the tans, in shades varying to almost brown, lead.

nearly all show a military touch in the frogs used for the finish. Military lines are also shown on some house dresses, and many of the sheath-like bolerost and jackets worn over house frocks are ducing pure olive oil into the daily ra-

The Right and the Wrong Belt to Wear

new exquisite the material, will spoil the woman are you? Leather belts and clastic belts of varihandsomest costume that any woman ever wore. This "hurry-up" age in which we live is largely responsible for such we live is largely responsible for such discordant combinations, against which every woman should fight.

With a thilor-made suit consisting of skirt and jacket, there is only one proper belt if you wish your jacket to set well and your entire costume to look right. That belt, made of a piece of the goods is not over an inch in width and is stitched all around until the entire belt is covered with stitching. This belt should be tacked on the back of the skirt and be fastened in front with a tiny book and eye. It is always ready, and without exception is the one and only appropriate belt to wear with a stiff tailored dress.

but believe me, nothing looks worse than a solied white leather belt on a colored dress is not quite so bad, but should never be worn with anything except a black skirt. A brown leather belt, worn with anything except a black skirt, is a combination. Brown belts with brown skirts; black belts with black skirts; light blue girdles with light blue dresses—this is the rule which leads to arise for such a discording of the counters are bewildering in their exquisite coloring, and the most fashionable dressmakers are using them ing costume by the addition of an stitched belt of brown cloth sewed on the skirt and fastened trimly in front. that does not harmonize wifh a gown, a No pins are necessary, and the belt seems to be part of the skirt. Which ous colors are still seen in the shops; hence, women must be still wearing them, but, believe me, nothing looks worse than propriate belt to wear with a stiff taitored dress.

Take, for instance, a brown broadcloth suit, such as is now so much worn.
With this is worn either a brown slik hlouse or one of net. Now picture to yourself two women—one with a light hipe crushed girdle, shirred in front and boned in the back. Of course, this cannot be fastened to the skirt, so if is pinned down in the back with a large gilt pin and is always riding up in front. Look the gowns. Years ago we used to think that all brown dresses should be relieved with a touch of color, generally pink or with a touch of color, generally pink of blue. Not so today. All trimmings, girdles and belts must be of blending tones, with perhaps a touch of gilt braid to relieve them.

Many women, and almost all young girls, wear lingerie dresses in the house all winter. Do not mar one of these dainty gowns with a solled belf of faded ribbon. The most favored way of join-ing belt, waist and skirt is to use a plece of insertion at the waist line, sewing waist and skirt onto it. Sash ribbons around the waist line of lingerie dresses are selidom seen on the well-dressed woman. Occasionally a bow is worn at the back or af one side, but not around the

So, I say once more to you, be careful and wear the right belt with the right dress, and with every skirt that you have made, have also a little belt of the same material. Else match it exactly in same material. Else match it exactly in a plain ribbon of heavy texture, which is the next best thing. For your evening gowns, have your girdles of soft ellk or Dresden ribbon, always harmonizing with the dress itself.

Bracelet Bags.

The bracelet bag is the newest thing in wrist bags. Its handles give it its name.
There are two rings of silver or silver gilt big enough to slip easily over the most heavily gloved hand. To these handles the sides of a flat full pocket in brocade or soft leather are attached.

For all the models the stem of the bracelet handles is round, but the stem varies in thickness and ornamentation. Practically all the different styles of round stem bangla bracelets appear in these handles, from the plain to the most ornate. Some of the more elaborate handles are studded with semi-precious

Etiquette of Afternoon Entertainment

Practically all the different styles of round stem bangh bracelets appear in these handles, from the plain to the most cornate. Some of the more elaborate handles are studded with gemi-precious stones.

An effective model has heavy handles in chased silver gitt set with amethysts. The bag is made of purple leather in smooth finish. Another style has bracelet in finish, another style has bracelet sags come in practical dark colors for everyday use as well as in delicate hues for festal occasions.

The bag is opened by simply drawing the bracelets apart. The inside of the bracelets apart. A silk covered pocketsook with samp clasp in metal to match the bracelet handles runs across the bag, dividing it into two pockets. Little accessories, such gatherings-eilk stockings, feather boss, gloves, etc. Such prizes are acceptable to either the single girl or married woman, while bric-a-brac, table linen, etc., are often of the "not wanted" class of prizes.

There is no question as to whether you this hostess a call or not. The owe this instess a call or not. The answer is most emphatically "yes," and it should be paid within two weeks after the card party. As your husband was not invited to the affair, you need not leave his card. But the call must be made promptly and not put off from day to day, until, when you do call, your whole time is spent in explaining why you have not called before. PRUDENCE STANDISH.

Fancy color effects in shoes for day wear are gaining in popularity.

Banana brown and cinnamon form a favored combination of coloring in many

Patent leather shoes are being worn

Patent leather shoes are being worn this season, decorated with little folded bows of leather.

A trig little red English morocco bag is fitted with folding opera glasses, powder puff, and mirror.

An applied closk tuck, three inches wide, furnishes a tunic effect on many of the longcloth skirts.

For hardsome cowns mattens are wear.

For handsome gowns matrons are wearing black or dark, rich colored silks, brocaded in velvet.

Lovely are the evening bags of white frish crochet, lined with white slik and mounted in gold frames
Some of the Winter maffs are made of

Some of the Winter mains are made of tippet pieces, laid on flatly and hanging like a flap.

One of the most striking gowns seen at a recent wedding was of bottle green satin trimmed with green lace and yellow panne.

A chic departure in theater waists is the separate waist in chiffon, generally black, and worn over a pale colored or child foundation.

When the Frenchwoman wants her decollete gown for restaurant or theater wear she adds a transparent guimpe of white tulle and a tiny cravat of fur. A new fad is the evening cloak of the same color of the gown, especially to wear at little theater and restaurant

The return of the tight sairt is perhaps the harbinger of tight sleeves and waists that have been banished so long, to say nothing of the waistline and its nat-ural position. Chic to the limit is one of the rolling brim mousquetaire hats of black velvet, faced with khaki colored satin and swept to the limit sairch by a vellow card, come to match the bags. The handsomer bracelet bags cost from

MISSES' MILITARY COAT AND COAT WITH HIGH MILITARY COLLAR.

EGG RECIPE

M EAT prices have soared so high that few people are serving it more than once a day, and that is generally for dinner. Many families, however, like rather a hearty breakfast, and the plain boiled or fried egg soon palls on the early morning appetite. Here are some suggestions for cooking eggs tastefully: Scrambled Eggs With Celery-Take four or five pieces of crisp white celery, cut into small dice, wash and drain. Place in a saucepan with a pint of cold water, salt well and boil for twenty minutes. Remove from the fire and drain minutes. Remove from the fire and drain through colander. Break six or eight eggs in a bowl, season with salt and pepper and add a scant half cup of milk. Beat this well together. Heat a table-spoon of butter in a saucepan, drop in the eggs and celery, thoroughly mix with a wooden spoon and cook for five or six minutes. Serve on a hot platter, garnished with celery ting.

nished with celery tips.

Omelette With Sausages—Take six or eight fresh eggs and separate yolks and whites. Add to the yolks a scant half eight fresh eggs and separate yolks and whites. Add to the yolks a scant half cup of milk, sait and pepper, beat well togefher and then beat the whites to a stiff froth. Cut four skinned sausages into quarter-inch pieces, place in a frying pan with a tablespoon of butter and fry for five minutes, tossing them occasionally. Add half a teaspoon of finely chopped parsiey. Mix whites and yolks together, pour over the sausages, and mix for a moment. When brown, fold over half way. Turn on a hot dish and serve.

To Be Fresh and Rosy.

A woman doctor out in Iowa declares that appendicitis would die a natural death if people would freely partake of

According to the feminne apostle of bealing, clive oil is a regular jack of all trades. It aids digestion, builds tissue, renovates nerves and does a gen-eral purifying and healing business. "The skeleton frame calls for it," she declares; "the starved nerves demand it, the sluggish blood stream needs a ubricant, the pale cheeks need a rosy nue, the dead scalp calls for new life, and all these can be obtained by intro-may be used with nothing but good re-sults. Not only make your salad dress-ing almost entirely of oil, but put it into everything you eat. Then as an extra, take a dessert spoonful before every meal.

every meal.

"If you find it hard to take it clear you can add lemon or other fruit juices, milk or sait. But after a while you will find it palatable when taken quite up faces we see which are all the ghastller for the wretched attempt at an occasional emile. They need off. freshness return to such faces.

"But do not expect the miracle of an to complete the lubricating process." Let People Know About It.

Let People Know About It.

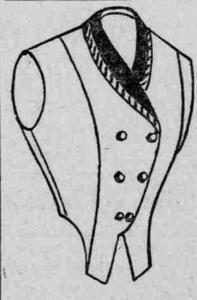

Chicago Record-Herald.

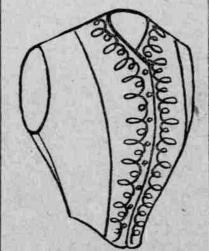

If you have done a splendid thing
Get on the roof and shout It;
Don't fall to make the welkin ring.
Let people know about It;
Don't merely sit around and wait
For other men to sound your praise;
They'll never know that you are great Unless the hubbub which you raise Convinces those who doubt It.

If you have talent don't neglect
To draw attention to it;
Don't wait in silence and expect
That some one else will do it;
Get out and boast; a few may say
That you are o'erauppited with gall,
But don't forget that even they Will, talking of you, after all,

"afternoon," and thus a jolly if informal room than any other article of apparel. circle will result. When you give an informal affair your invitations should be simple little notes written in the first person, or given over the telephone, or delivered personally if you happen to meet a friend in the street. An hour should always be set for the affair, no matter how informal. The Win-ter afternoons are short, so ask your guests to come at half-past two. They, of course, will be expected to remove their hats and coats at these little affairs.

If the guest, do not sit all afternoon with and your hair neatly combed.

and your hair neatly combed.

If you are the hostess at such an informal gathering, be quite sure you do not invite two women who are not friendly. At a large gathering this would not ly. At a large gathering this would not matter much, but in a room where there are only five or ten people, the situation would be most embarrassing to all the guests, as well as yourself, thus putting a damper on an otherwise pleasant afternoon. Without doubt, one of the greatest secrets of a successful hostess is her ability to get the right people together.

A question that has always been more or less under discussion is whether or not you owe your hostess a call after an informal affair—an afternoon at cards, a tea, etc. I think no definite answer has yet been given, but it is well to be on the safe side and drop in on your friend dressed in your most gorgeous raiment, but pay her a call in the same informal spirit as the occasion was given.

With formal receptions and large afternoon teas, the rules are quite different. Although men are invited to these festivities, they do not go in anything like tha

Often a women trying to manipulate a fork and hold a plate and a muff at the same time is so overburdened that something is bound to be spilled.

At formal teas and receptions you should stay only a short time. Sometimes a hundred or more invitations have been sent out, the hostess knowing that only a few women will be present at a time. If you meet several friends and want to chat with them a few moments, you should not jet that chat run into a visit. Even when you know the hostess very well, half an hour is long enough to stay at any formal function of this sort.

At formal teas and receptions you ural position. Chie to the limit is one of the rolling brim mousquetaire hats of black velvet, faced with khaki colored satin and swept by khaki plumes, caught by a yellow letter or deep folds, one over the other, narrow-ling in as they reach below the elbow. Serges are going into tailor-mades, with the serge there is always apt to arrive the vogue for velvet trimmings, or rive the vogue for velvet trimmings, or of this sort.

Here, again, the question arises, "Do I owe that woman a call?" And again my answer is as before. Drop in some after-

Softening Angles and Curves

T seems almost inconsistent in this | and just before the cream hardens of in high favor, to write an article for women who long for curves, There are many women, notably dressmakers, who will protest that no woman desires to possess curves since the Louis coat and the Paquin sheath-like skirt are in vegue. But the fact remains that hundreds of women all over the country do write to me bewailing their angles and the seeming impossibility of covering them with firm, curving

The most common causes of thinness unattractive thinness, not slenderness -are indigestion or malassimilation of food, and extreme nervousness or the habit of worrying. The woman who eats, but does not secure any strength from her food, will never take on any This means that a diet should nux vomica, 3 grams, Take six to ten drops in a spoonful of water just before meals.

If it is a case of nervousness and worry, the faculty of taking everything in the hardestsway and fretting about the unavoidable thing, then no tonic, no appetizer, no cream or emol-lient or skin food can work a cure. The cure lies within the mind of the woman. She must stop fussing and when the pores are open, rub the cream in wherever hollows are found.

If only the breasts have turned

If only the breasts have turned

For home een Ectal)— If only the breasts have turned For home cen Ectaly—flabby or atrophied, the flesh can be Eh? wat ees dat? You say does men the safe side and drop in on your friend nformally some morning or early after-noon. Do not make a fashionable call, conscals, add the essences Massage the skin with this every day, doing the work slowly, firmly and conscientiously. Spasmodic treatment of either too much flesh or a shortage in flesh will secure no results what-

Best of all for the thin woman are the deep breathing exercises so often mentioned in these columns. I will be glad to send these exercise, together with any advice for individual cases of KATHERINE MORTON,

Egg Recipe.

Eggs with Rice.-Plunge a quarter of a cup of rice into a pint of bolling water and cook for thirty minutes, thoroughly drain, then place in a bak-ing dish and add a scant cup of cream or rich milk, a tablespoon of butter, plean. This means that a diet should be ordered by the family physician and some special tonic or speciar grated nutmeg. A dash of curry powder advises this appetizer for the nervous, thin, fussy woman:

Tincture of star-anise, 3 grams; tincture of rubbarb, 2 grams; tincture of rubbarb, 2 grams; tincture of pure vomica, 3 grams; tincture of the number of the numbe

The Laborer and His Hire.

Catholic Standard and Times. Hallo! Signor, I aln't see you For manny, manny day, All time you was away, lient or skin food can work a cure.

The cure lies within the mind of the woman. She must stop fussing and worrying.

For a general skin food, to be used to feed either flabby skin or actual hollows, there is nothing better than this:

Tannin, ½ grain; lanoline, 30 grams.

To get best results from this massage cream, take a warm bath and, when the pores are open, rub the flabby or atrophied, the flesh can be fed externally with the above lotion and then the patient may take internally the following potion;

Liquid extract of galega (goatsrue), 10 grams; lacto-phosphate of lime, 10 grams; tincture of fennel, 10 grams; simple syrup, 400 grams.

This can be prepared by any druggist. It is to be taken interally, two soupspoonsful with water before each meal. Keep the bowels open and drink:

Liquid extract of galega (goatsrue), 10 grams; tincture of fennel, 10 grams; simple syrup, 400 grams, 10 grams; simple syrup, 400 grams; simpl soupsponsing with water before each meal. Keep the bowels open and drink extract of mait or ale with your meals instead of water.

A very simple flesh food, especially good for the woman whose skin is dry and harsh, a condition which often exlets in connection with extreme thinness, is this:

Event lard 100 graphy, elached (28)

See the bowels open and drink bey pay for all dey tak. Dey pay for all dey tak. Dey pay for all dey tak. Dey pay for all dey tak.

Weeth goods road an' street, weeth goods road an' street, went good a food an' street, we then goods road an' street, we the goods road an' street, we then goods road an' street, we the goods road an' street, we then goo Instead of water.

A very simple flesh food, especially gooft for the woman whose skin is dry and harsh, a condition which often exists in connection with extreme thinness, is this:

Fresh lard, 100 grams; alcohol (30 per cent), 20 grams; essence of rosemary, 11 drops; essence of bergamot, 11 drops.

These ingredients can be purchased

Weeth goods road an' street, Weeth crops dat spreams from da soil An' geeve you food for eat, Weeth wheat dat mak' your bread so good, Weeth graps dat mak' your bread so good, Weeth graps dat mak' your bread so good.

Weeth goods road an' street, Weeth crops dat spreams from da soil An' geeve you food for eat, weeth graps dat mak' your bread so good.

Weeth goods road an' street, Weeth crops dat spreams from da soil An' geeve you food for eat, weeth graps dat mak' your bread so good.

Weeth goods road an' street, weeth crops dat spreams from da soil An' geeve you food for eat, weeth graps dat mak' your bread so good.

Weeth goods road an' street, weeth crops dat spreams from da soil An' geeve you food for eat, weeth graps dat mak' your bread so good.

Weeth graps dat mak' your bread so good.

Weth wheat dat mak' your bread so good.

Weath geeve you food for eat, weeth graps dat mak' your bread so good.

Weeth graps dat mak' your bread so good.

Weeth graps dat mak' your bread so good.

Weeth goods road an' street.