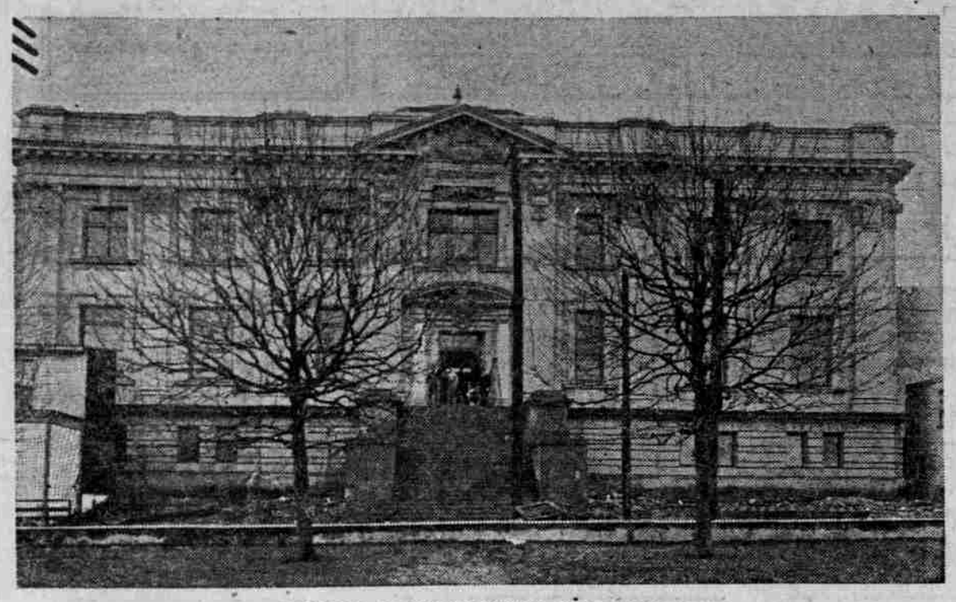
CLATSOP COUNTY'S NEW COURTHOUSE IS CONSIDERED THE FINEST IN THE STATE



BUILDING WITH FURNITURE WILL COST $200,000.

ASTORIA, Jan. 25.—(Special.)—Clatsop County's new courthouse is now practically ready for occupancy and it is by far the finest county building in the state, if not in the Northwest. The structure was commenced three years ago, and when all the furniture is installed will have cost in the neighborhood of $200,000. The building, which is located on what is known as the Courthouse square, is 120 feet wide, facing on Commercial street, and 96 feet deep, two stories high, with a basement. The foundation is what is known as the blanket type, being constructed of several feet of crushed rock overlaid with concrete reinforced with steel bars. The basement is built of Tenino sandstone, while the upper portion of the building is of pressed brick with terra cotta trimmings. The exterior of the structure is plain but substantial and presents a solid appearance, there being none of the "gingerbread" work, which is expensive and at the same time useless. The first floor is 12 feet from the ground, with 28 steps leading up to it and the building is 60 feet in height to the base of the glass and copper dome, which surmounts the center.

The main entrance is from Commercial street and the stairway to the second floor leads from the corridor directly opposite it. There are also two other entrances to the building, one from the south on Duane street and the other from the west on Seventh street. The interior of the structure was designed with a view of providing ample quarters for the various offices, a safe place for keeping the county's valuable records, and is finished in a style that combines beauty with substantiability. In the main corridors the floors and wainscoting are of marble, as is the wainscoting in the Circuit Court room, and the woodwork is of quarter-sawed Eastern oak with golden finish.

The County Clerk's and Recorder's office are located in the northeast corner of the first floor adjoining the main entrance, with the Sheriff's office directly back of it. Between the two is a mammoth vault, 26 by 32 feet, built of concrete reinforced with steel. It is divided by a steel partition and can be entered from either the Clerk's or Sheriff's office. Adjoining the main entrance on the west is the County Court room and opening from this is located the County Judge's private office. Back of these, but separated by a corridor, are the Treasurer's and Assessor's offices with a vault between them. Both these vaults extend to the basement so that the lower portion can be used for storing records and documents, which, while of great value and must be preserved, are not in constant use. Each of the officers is provided with a private office, adjoining the public rooms.

On the west side of the second floor is located the Circuit Court room, and it is a scene of beauty. It is lighted by a huge skylight as well as several large windows and is decorated with tiers of cornices that give it an imposing and handsome appearance. The judge's bench and other furniture is of quarter-sawed oak, while the wainscoting is of marble. Directly back of the bench and in the northwest corner of the building is the court's public chambers and adjoining this is his private office. Opening into the private corridor, which leads to the court's office, and arranged along the front of the building are a witness room, two jury rooms and the District Attorney's office. Directly across the corridor from these is the School Superintendent's office, while the southeast corner of the second floor is occupied by the Surveyor's quarters.

The counters in the various offices and the furniture for the entire building are of quarter-sawed Eastern oak, golden finish, in keeping with interior woodwork. The vault furniture is constructed of double-enameled steel, olive green finish, and the combination gas and electric light fixtures are of what is known as brush brass. The building is provided with every modern convenience, is heated with steam and has all the latest improvements in the lines of ventilation and plumbing. It is a structure of which the county may well feel proud and one that has long been needed.
