

Little Folks Not Overlooked by Dame Fashion

PRETTY VARIETIES OF STYLES ARE TO BE SEEN IN DRESS FOR THE TINY TOTS

SOMEWHERE between the covers of a family photograph album, or carefully preserved under the glass of an old-fashioned frame of gilt and stained wood, most of us possess pictures of ourselves as toddlers—carefully washed, curled and buttoned into prim little, stiffly-starched pinafores. The photograph albums of the future will doubtless show the same maternal care as to rigorous scrubbing and painstaking curls, but the prim little stiffly-starched pinafores will have become extinct; instead of this formerly universal infantile garment, the pictures will show a variety of costumes for the tiny folk, almost as wide and quite as modish as those of the fashionable "grown-ups" of the day.

Without a doubt the baby was always an important personage in any well-regulated family, ever since the infant Abel was "fitted into his fig-leaf slip; but it is only of recent years that the baby's wardrobe has been considered a matter for the careful attention of Dame Fashion. Extreme daintiness and exquisite needlework, to be sure, have always been lavished with loving hands upon the tiny garments for the cooing, winsome idol of the home circle, and every feminine member of the family, from gray-haired grandmas down to little sisters in the kindergarten, have had part in the styling of the tiny tot. The "Teddy bear" suit, and one gingham slip, or a beruffled little frock, was much like another.

Now, if you please, it is different. Notice the lordly occupant of any passing perambulator, or turn to look after any chubby 2-year-old tottering at the side of an doting elder. The latest of Dame Fashion and her handwork in the diminutive costume, from topknot to toe, is quite evident.

One of the most popular wrinkles in baby fashions is the "Teddy bear" suit, which is all that the name implies. Ever since the arrival of that irresistible little factotum and utility have been busy turning out different materials bearing resemblance to the curly and fuzzy pelts of the beloved little "Teddy," and naming them in their honor. From these materials come the "Teddy bear" suits, and a chubby little chap of 2 or 3 years, snugly buttoned into one of these, looks for all the world like a cute little "Teddy bear" himself. Furthermore, he is as warm as toast, and as comfortable in all the glory of a "dressed-up" occasion, as when at home playing about the halls in his little overalls.

performed, was crowded to the doors with the friends and relatives. A wedding was given away by her brother, Herman Heller, of San Francisco. Rev. Mr. Heller performed the ceremony, while Dr. N. Mossesohn and Rabbi J. Hoch delivered the charges. The maid of honor was Miss Paula Heller and the bridesmaids were the Misses Esther Goldman, Annie Weinstein, Pearl Barde and Minnie Davidson. The groomsmen were Messrs. Dave Pailay, M. Moses, John, Max Davidson and Milton Goldsmith. After the ceremony the bridal party and a number of friends were driven to the bride's residence at 395 Jackson street, where a reception was held during the afternoon. A wedding supper was served at 7 o'clock, at which David N. Mossesohn presided as toastmaster. Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Weinstein will be at home to their friends next Sunday, February 5, at 701 1-2 Hoyt street.

Moore-Price.
On Thursday, January 25, the wedding of Miss Alice K. Price and V. Eugene Moore took place at the Hill Military Academy, the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. J. W. Hill.

The regular Episcopal service was used by the Rev. D. B. Gray, who officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents. Only the family and a few friends witnessed the nuptials, and shortly after receiving their congratulation, the young couple left for their home in Baker City. The bride was crowned in a white lousene silk cut princess and wore a spray of orange blossoms. Attending her was Miss Lena Moore of The Dalles, sister of the groom, who wore a becoming silk, trimmed in white lace. The groom's best man was Ralph Baker of Portland. Mr. V. E. Moore is the daughter of the late Mrs. B. C. Price, of Portland. Mr. Moore was formerly of The Dalles and is well known in Portland and Baker City, in which places he has been in business.

Compton-Compton.
On Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the Taylor-street M. E. parsonage, in the presence of intimate friends, the marriage was solemnized of Charles Burns Compton, of Manila, P. I., and Miss Nella Compton, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Benjamin Young. Mr. Compton is a native of Ohio, but at present holds the position of Inspector of the Bureau of Posts at Manila, P. I. He left Manila eight months ago and after completing a pleasure trip around the world stopped in Portland to take his bride back to the islands with him. Miss Compton is a beautiful and accomplished young woman, having lived in Portland for the last few years, coming here from New York. After the wedding dinner was served the happy couple left at once for Seattle, from which city they called on January 29 for Manila, making stops at China and Japan.

Morrison-Whiteway.
Mr. Samuel Richard Morrison, of Seattle, Wash., and Miss S. Whiteway were united in marriage in Grace M. E. Church last Monday evening, January 27. Mr. Morrison is engaged in the real estate business there. They will make their home in Seattle.

Smith-Hengeveld.
Tobias Smith and Miss Sadie Hengeveld, parties of Portland, were married by Rev. Henry A. Barden at 271 College street, January 27. N. H. Gieschen, a friend, accompanied the groom and bride. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home in Portland, 308 North Seventeenth street.

Ewing-Cook.
On Monday afternoon, January 27, Mr. J. N. Ewing and Mrs. Sadie B. Cook, both of this city, were united in marriage in the reception room of the White Temple. Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougier officiating. Only a few intimate friends and relatives were present.

Madison-Nudelman.
A very pretty wedding took place in Gevarts hall on Sunday, January 19, at 3 P. M., when Miss Pearl Nudelman, the modern baby should be equipped, are shown in the accompanying pictures, kindly posed for The Oregonian's photographer, under the aluring promise of a striped stick of candy, by a small tenant of a Morrison-street apartment-home.

Picture No. 1 shows him in his "rompers," one of a dozen little gingham outfits in which he scurries about the halls, and with which he helps to heap the laundry basket full, slipped over another frock, and completely enveloping the busy little body from neckband to knee, the "romper" suit is a most useful garment, indeed, protecting the under garments from dust and dirt, and allowing the active little limbs free play.

The up-to-date youngster enjoys all the luxuries of his elders, even to that of bathrobe and bath slipper. No. 2 shows The Oregonian's subject in negligee attire, with his diminutive flannel bathrobe slipped on over his undershirts, and his fat little feet thrust into red felt slippers with tops of white fur. The robe is made after the regular bathrobe pattern, with stitched hilles of the valley and orchids. The white was attended by Mr. B. Barde.

Following the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the banquet hall, where dinner was served. Mr. Barde acted as toastmaster. M. C. Barde, in behalf of Mr. I. Nudelman presented the newly married couple with a check for $1000 as a wedding present.

Mr. and Mrs. Madison left for Aberdeen, their future home.

FLAGS FOR MILK WAGONS
Health Board Has Plan to Improve Dairy Standard.
A system of flags to be displayed on milk wagons indicating the quality of milk sold by every dairy in Portland, was under consideration by the City Health Board yesterday morning, and it would not be surprising if the measure is adopted, judging from the sentiment of the members, including Mayor Lamm. Dr. J. F. Wilson brought up the subject, by stating just he had recently read in a medical journal of the successful operation of the plan in some cities. No definite action was taken at the

VICTOR VICTROLAS

THE VICTOR WITH CONCEALED HORN
So many people who dislike the prominence of the horn demand the character of drawing-room entertainment which only the Victor can supply, that this instrument has been designed—with the horn, all moving parts, albums for 150 records, and a special drawer for accessories concealed in a handsome mahogany cabinet.
The Victor Victrola not only overcomes the objection to the horn, but it combines the pure musical tone and the Victor's extensive and exclusive musical repertoire in an instrument of artistic and imposing appearance.
The Victor Victrola is appropriate to the most elegant surroundings. We want you to hear it for in no other way can you realize the wealth of music it produces.

meeting yesterday morning, but it is probable it will be more fully discussed at the next session. It is said that some such a measure is urgently needed to raise the standards of milk sold in this city. That some of the dairies are kept in bad condition, is said to be a fact, and it is believed by many that if some means can be adopted to compel the proprietors and distributors of the product to sell only pure milk, it would serve a great purpose. Many think the so-called flag system would accomplish first-class results.
