DREAD OF WHITE PLAGUE

Victims Compared With Lepers of Middle Ages.

PARIS, Feb. 1.—(Special.)—Sufferings of the consumptives have never been more vividly shown than in the posthumous writings of a literary genius named Mecislas Goldberg, who died a few days ago at a sanatorium near Paris.

"A man afflicted with consumption," he writes, "is a modern leper. I am treated as an outlaw. As in the Middle Ages people fled from the path of a leper, who was compelled to herald his approach by means of a rattle, so today people avoid a man afflicted with consumption. In the room adjoining mine in a small hotel was a professional tenor, who practiced with his voice for hours together.

"One day, in the middle of a scale, he suddenly stopped to listen to my hacking cough. He must have made inquiries, for when he passed me on the stairs next day, he hastily placed his handkerchief over his mouth and nose and kept it there until he was outside. Then the landlord came to me and explained that he must ask me to leave at once, for my next-door neighbor, the tenor, was afraid of losing his voice if I lived near him."

Goldberg had to leave and wandered from one small hotel to another, ordered to leave as soon as other customers took alarm at his presence.

ATTACKS VICTORIA'S REIGN

Prestige Lost Through Queen's Influence, Declares Globe.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—(Special.)—The London Globe, the organ of royalty for nearly a century, has made a most surprising attack on some of the results of Queen Victoria's reign. "In spite," says the Globe, "of the enormous expansion of the British Empire between 1837 and 1901, and of the unparalleled growth in wealth, population, and all material resources, in spite even of the commanding personal position which her Majesty occupied in Europe, the influence and prestige of Great Britain on the Continent experienced during the latter half of that period a most unmistakable eclipse."

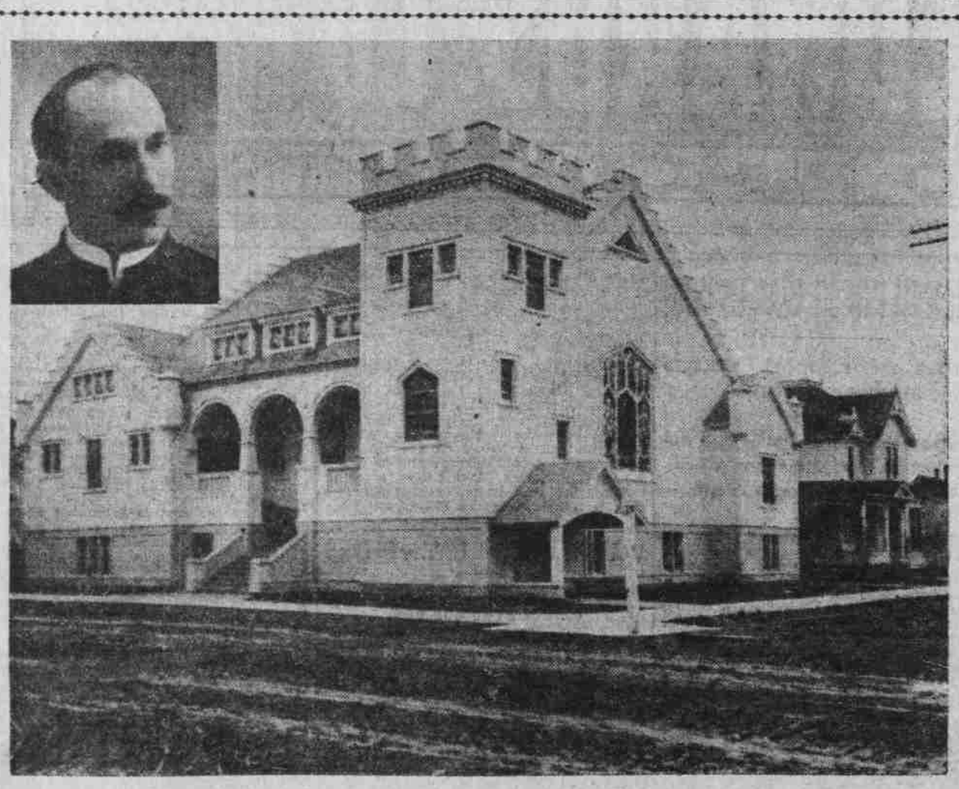
Then it goes on to show that this was all due to the personal influence which Queen Victoria insisted on exercising. Her German sympathies led her to take sides with Germany against France, and thus she assisted in raising up the greatest and most powerful enemy that has ever confronted the British Empire.

The article is based on a contribution by Sir Rowland Blennerhassett to the National Review, in which, however, he is content to permit his readers to infer what the Globe flatly asserts.

New Garage at Windsor.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—(Special.)—The King's new garage at Windsor is being rapidly pushed forward, and when finished will be one of the most complete of its kind in existence. The site chosen is close to the royal mews, and accommodation is being provided for nine or ten cars, the necessary money being provided for in the forthcoming civil service estimates.

This garage will be used for the accommodation of the royal cars not actually in use, and all minor repairs will be carried out on them here, a staff of mechanics being specially employed for this purpose.



ALBANY'S NEW BAPTIST CHURCH, ERECTED AT A COST OF $12,000; REV. S. A. DOUGLAS, PASTOR.

ALBANY, Or., Feb. 1.—(Special.)—The new First Baptist Church in this city is now almost complete and dedication ceremonies will be held within the next two weeks. The church stands at the corner of Fifth and Lyon streets, on the site of the old church, and is one of the finest churches in this city. It was erected at a cost of $12,000.

The exterior of the church is neat and well designed, but it is the interior of the building which attracts attention. There architectural skill has been employed to the best advantage and the decorator's art has been used most advantageously. The ceiling is one of the prettiest of any religious edifice in the state and the woodwork is unusually attractive.

Besides the auditorium, which will easily seat 750 and many more if necessary, there are eleven different classrooms and the pastor's study on the main floor. There is a choir loft and baptistry well arranged, and the building is equipped with every convenience for satisfactory church work. The basement of the church is being fitted up for social purposes.

A prominent feature of the new church are the memorial windows. One of them was donated by Dr. J. L. Hill, of this city, in honor of his father and mother, Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Hill, who founded the Baptist Church here. The other memorial, comprising a set of three windows, was donated by Mrs. S. M. Penington in honor of her deceased daughter, Miss Celia Penington, formerly a prominent member of the church.

The First Baptist Church was founded in Albany, May 15, 1867, with ten members. The membership is now 190. The present pastor, Rev. S. A. Douglas, has been here since June, 1904, and his work has been highly successful. He came to Oregon ten years ago and prior to coming to this city he was pastor of the Baptist Church at Roseburg for six years. To his energetic work the new church is largely due, and his experience, in that he was pastor of two congregations in Illinois while new churches were being built, has contributed materially to the architectural beauty and convenience of the new church.

Our Drug Department

Is constantly supplied with the purest and best goods the market affords. Why are drugs bought here always fresh and new? It's the constantly increasing trade and demand for pure drugs and our frequent purchases to supply this demand that never allows our drugs to get old. In addition to this, we keep a staff of experienced pharmacists, educated both theoretically and practically, to wait upon the public. We appreciate your patronage and hope to merit, with our utmost endeavors, a continuance of the same. Our services are always at your command. Questions in regard to drugs and chemicals gladly answered at any time.
